Seth Nichols Confessed to Murdering Dr. Helen [redacted] of Indianapolis [redacted]

CAUGHT IN [redacted], N.H.

First [redacted] Drunkenness, He Breaks [redacted] Tells of Crime—[redacted] Named "Knight."

[redacted] York Times.

[redacted] N. H., April 1.—The [redacted] the murder of Dr. [redacted] of the best-known of women [redacted] the United States, who was [redacted], throat slashed from ear to [redacted] October in Indianapolis, has [redacted] Seth Nichols, a deserter from [redacted] States ship Dixie, who [redacted] last Friday, confessed [redacted] Entwistle to-day that [redacted] murdered Dr. Knabe, and [redacted] $1,500 from a man [redacted] to desert the navy and put [redacted] out of the way. Nichols is a [redacted]

[redacted] Nichols had confessed Chief [redacted] to Chief Hoyt of [redacted] details of the murder. In the [redacted] of dispatches confirmation in [redacted] details convinced the head of the [redacted] police that Nichols could [redacted] learned of the murder only by [redacted] part in it. He described it step [redacted], from his first meeting with the [redacted] "Knight," the events leading to and [redacted] the murder.

[redacted] the man had been arrested for [redacted] and was charged in court [redacted] carrying a loaded revolver, he [redacted] to think that back of these [redacted] was some hint of the Knabe [redacted]. When asked why he carried a [redacted] down and said that he [redacted] commit suicide in case he [redacted]

[redacted] pressed him for particulars, [redacted] drawing out the confession, [redacted] been bound over for the [redacted] on the carrying concealed [redacted] and went to jail in default [redacted] $100.

[redacted] Confession.

"[redacted] care what happens to me," [redacted] cold sweat standing out on [redacted] in great beads. "Ever since [redacted] of that house, my hands sticky [redacted] blood of a woman I had never [redacted], I have been scared I would [redacted], and I have been tormented, [redacted] from city to city to escape [redacted]

[redacted] I've got to get it off my mind, or [redacted] crazy. I was drinking the night it [redacted], so that some things are not [redacted]. But I know what I did, and I [redacted] willing to pay any penalty to get [redacted] out of the torments.

"I got $1,500 for the job. It is about all gone now, and most of it was used in getting from one place to another.

"I was in Indianapolis some time before Oct. 23, when I murdered the woman, visiting my sister, Mrs. Grace Blackman, at 243 East Avenue.

[redacted] "Knight" Was With Him.

"It was about 2 o'clock in the morning. We got in by a back alleyway, and, so far as I knew, no one saw us.

"After we got into the house—Knight seemed to have it all fixed so that we could get in—we had to go from room to room till we found the one in which the woman was.

"Knight was right there with me. When we found her asleep Knight passed me a light, sharp knife like a razor.

"Then the woman woke up and yelled. Before she could yell more than once or twice I had killed her. I did not leave Indianapolis till the next day.

"I was around the skating rink and the barrooms a good deal, and ran into this Knight. He was a good dresser and spent lots of money, bought lots of drinks.

"Shortly after that I met him in New York, in the Y. M. C. A., when the Dixie was in port. It was then that he put it up to me to desert and skip back to Indianapolis and do the trick for him.

"He told me there was no danger; he would take care of everything but the murder, and he would give me $1,500 cash. He gave me enough to square the officer on the watch, so that they would not chase me and spoil the job.

"I was in Indianapolis a short time when Knight showed up. That night, Oct. 23, he loaded me up pretty well with booze, and then together we went to Dr. Knabe's house.

"I did not know who the woman was till I saw in the papers the stories of the murder and the police were after a clue. And I have since been jumping from place to place, expecting every moment to be pinched and brought up for it."

Dr. Helen Knabe, a former State bacteriologist of Indiana and a prominent physician of Indianapolis, was found dead in her apartment in that city on the morning of Oct. 24, 1911, and the first evidences gathered by the local authorities pointed to a baffling murder mystery, interest in which spread all over the country. This interest was augmented by the brutality of the killing, the absence of clues, or any assignable motive for the crime and the rather remarkable life which the woman had led.

The doctor's assistant, Miss Katherine McPherson, found Dr. Knabe lying on the floor with her throat cut from ear to ear, with such force that the head was all but severed from the body.

There were those who advanced the theory that she had committed suicide, for they knew she had financial and other worries, and the authorities had been unable to show how the murderer, if there was one, had escaped undetected from the apartment house, and also why any one should wish to kill Dr. Knabe. On the other hand, it was pointed out that no weapon was found in the apartment, and that there were marks on her arms which suggested that they had been used defensively against an assailant.

Later a witness was produced who said that at 1 o'clock in the morning Dr. Knabe was found dead in her apartment, he had seen a man with a handkerchief over his face running out of the alley behind the apartment house, and still another witness who said that earlier on the preceding evening, as he was passing the building, he glanced through the window and saw two women and a man in the Knabe apartment.

Dr. Knabe, in the thirty-five years of her tragically ended life, rose from the position of a poor peasant girl in Germany to that of a brilliant and accepted scientist and physician. She came to this country as a penniless and uneducated girl and began life in Indianapolis as the maid-of-all work in a doctor's household.

DOGS ATTACK A WOMAN.

Priest Helps to Save Her from Infuriated Terriers.

Mrs. Mary Peddie of 232 West Tenth Street went into the basement yesterday to feed two terriers owned by Mrs. Josephine Brooks. The dogs sprang at her and felled her.

After one had torn her lip Mrs. Peddie put up her hands to protect her face, and was bitten on the arms.

Boys heard her cries and asked help of Father Philip McGrath of the Catholic Seamen's Mission and Patrolman Manning. The priest and the policeman beat off the dogs and locked them in a room.

Mrs. Peddie's wounds were dressed at St. Vincent's Hospital. The dogs will be observed for symptoms of rabies by the Health Department.

COAL FILLS DINING SALOON.

The Olympic Taking No Chances of Running Short at This Port.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, April 1.—To guard against a possible shortage of fuel on her arrival at New York, the White Star liner Olympic, which sails on Wednesday, has been coaled to her utmost capacity. The third-class dining saloon has been completely filled with coal, accommodation for the passengers being provided in another part of the vessel.

Justice Bargrave Deane in the Admiralty Court to-day gave judgment in a test action brought by two members of the crew of the Olympic against the owners for a month's wages in lieu of the three days' wages that were offered after the Olympic's collision with the cruiser Hawke.

The case turned on the legal definition of a wreck. The court held that the Olympic was a wreck within the meaning of the Merchant Shipping act, and that consequently the crew were entitled to only three days' wages.

Judgment was accordingly entered for the defendants.

MARY GARDEN OPERA HOUSE.

Prima Donna to Direct It—Americans Backing Paris Scheme.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, April 1.—With reference to the report previously sent to THE NEW YORK TIMES that a section of the actionnaires of the Opéra Comique are about to take over another theatre and turn it into an opera house run on business lines, it is now rumored that an American syndicate which is backing Mary Garden is likely to join the French enterprise with a view to renting the Vaudeville Theatre in the Boulevard des Italiens and making it a luxurious lyric house in which a modern, and especially a French, répertoire will be given.

It is further said that the house will be called the Mary Garden Opera House, and that the American prima donna will have the artistic direction of it besides interpreting star rôles.

SENATE'S NEW CHESTERFIELD

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Of the four new Senators from Arizona and New Mexico who have presented themselves at the Capitol, one made a deep impression to-day, though they will not take the oath until to-morrow. That one is Henry F. Ashurst of Arizona, and it was his manners that did it. Though Mr. Ashurst is a Democrat from the Far West, he was welcomed by the old guard as a new Chesterfield.

On the arm of a member of the House, Mr. Ashurst began his progress toward the Senate Chamber shortly before convening. He was attired faultlessly in a becoming frock coat and striped pants—yes, they were pants—with only a broad black sombrero in honor of the West. His escort was tastefully attired in blue, with a combrero of the tan Rough Rider variety.

As no announcement of the approaching statesmen had gone ahead of them, there was only a single doorkeeper to receive them, but the statesmen made the most of them. Five feet this side of the door they stopped, doffed their hats to the doorkeeper, and bowed profoundly. Then they advanced and introduced themselves with warm handclasps that until to-day had been considered distinctly Southern. After that they entered the Chamber.

Mr. Martine of New Jersey is the sociable member of the Senate, and he took Mr. Ashurst in tow, presenting him to everybody he could find. Then the Senators saw the fine shadings in Mr. Ashurst's manner. To the older members he bowed till his frock coat was at right angles to his trousers; to the venerable Senator Cullom he bowed even lower than that. But to the young Senators his greeting was more virile; no bowing, just a giant's grasp and a long look into the eyes, man fashion.

His softest manner he reserved for Mr. Martine alone, and he and the friendly Senator from New Jersey made the circuit of the Chamber, hand in hand.

Mr. Ashurst, his colleague, Mark Smith, and the two Senators-elect from New Mexico, A. B. Fall and T. B. Catron, both Republicans, will take the oath to-morrow. They will draw lots for their assignments to the Senatorial classes. Two of them will draw terms of six years, one of four years, and one of two years.

POISON AFTER APRIL JOKE.

Girl, Believing She Is Jilted, Swallows Tablets of Mercury.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 1.—Ida Kaiser, 19 years old, living in Vonversen Avenue, ran to meet the mail carrier this morning. She broke the seal of the letter she received, and the opening sentence read "I have married another."

She went to her room and swallowed a dozen mercury tablets. Physicians removed her to the Jewish Hospitl, where it is doubtful if she will live. Frank Davidson, to whom she was to have been married in two weeks, hurried to the hospital and is at her beside begging forgiveness. He sent the letter as an April Fool joke. Miss Kaiser's parents are from Washington County, Ala.

MUMPS DON'T HALT WEDDING.

Miss Lola Gaskill Takes Max Kirsh, Swollen Face and All.

Special to The New York Times.

PLEASANTVILLE, N. J., April 1.—Even the fact that the bridegroom had the mumps did not stop the wedding last night in the Wesley Methodist Church of Miss Lola Gaskill and Max Kirsh. The bride thought it would be unlucky to postpone the ceremony, so it went on according to programme, except for the absence of half a dozen men who allowed their fear of the disease to keep them away.

The Rev. Dr. Wells, the officiating clergyman, warned the guests in advance of the infectious nature of the bridegroom's affliction.

GAGGED AND BOUND BY THIEVES, HE SAYS

Brooklyn Merchant Found Dazed in a Deep Cut of the Long Island Railroad.

THROWN THERE AT NIGHT

Robbed at Noon, Thieves Who Felled Him Kept Him a Prisoner in Cellars Until After Dark.

Robert H. Cooper, a wholesale produce merchant, with offices at the foot of Forty-seventh Street, at the Bush Stores, South Brooklyn, was found gagged, blindfolded, and bound at the bottom of the Long Island Railroad cut at Fifth Avenue and Sixty-seventh Street last night. His groans attracted the attention of persons who chanced to be passing by. He was bruised and dazed.

When assisted to the Fourth Avenue Police Station, Cooper told a most remarkable story of having been robbed of $1,200 in cash and $300 in checks by two men, who attacked him at noon yesterday at Forty-fourth Street and Second Avenue, Brooklyn, and who after felling him had carried him around Brooklyn, bound, gagged, and blindfolded, sometimes in a cart and sometimes in and out of cellars, for the next eight hours.

According to the story he told in the Police Station, Cooper, who lives with his wife and one child at 566 Decatur Street, Brooklyn, received a telephone message from a customer yesterday at noon. The customer, who lived nearby and whose name the police will not make public, told Mr. Cooper over the 'phone that he was anxious to meet him and to pay a certain debt. Putting $1,200 in cash and $300 in checks in his breast pocket and meaning to deposit both this and the customer's money in the Flatbush Avenue Branch of the Corn Exchange Bank, Cooper set out to meet the customer.

Attacked at Noon.

"It was just noon time and the streets were crowded," he told the police. "But, as I was walking through Second Avenue at Forty-fourth Street, two ratherly poorly dressed young men, each about 25 years old, came up to me and struck me heavily on the breast with some metal instrument, and I fell to the sidewalk.

"I don't know what happened then, but when I came to I found that I was bound and gagged. The bandage over my eyes was sufficiently thin so that I could detect the quality of the light around me. Judging from this and from the damp smell and feeling of the atmosphere, I judged I was in a cellar. I seemed to be half sitting, half lying on a box.

"I could hear the two men talking near me. They seemed to be discussing how badly I was hurt. I lay still, so as not to excite them. But gradually I began to feel faint and became unconscious again. Finally I felt myself lifted out of the cellar and carried, one man being at my head and the other at my feet, to an open wagon. I wasn't shrouded or screened in any way, so far as I know.

"The wagon seemed to travel quite a distance. I don't know exactly how far, because I was very weak and kept relapsing into unconsciousness, then partly recovering.

"Finally I was lifted out of the cart. The two men lifted me up high, as though over a fence. Then they let me go. I seemed to be falling a long, an endlessly long distance, before again becoming unconscious."

The place where Cooper's fall apparently took place was the 40-foot excavation of the Long Island Railroad at Sixty-seventh Street and Fifth Avenue. While Dennis Mahoney of 366 Sixty-ninth Street was passing through Fifth Avenue at this point last night he heard groans issuing from the excavation.

Clambering down to the tracks he found Cooper with his hands tied behind him and cloths bound around his mouth and eyes. He seemed stunned and bruised as a result of his fall, but to be otherwise uninjured. His hat was gone and his clothes disheveled.

Bruised by His Fall.

Mahoney ran up to the street and called several other men. Cooper was carried to the street by them and given restoratives. He was then assisted to the Fourth Avenue Police Station, and Dr. Carter was summoned with an ambulance from the Norwegian Hospital. Dr. Carter found that Mr. Cooper was suffering from bruises apparently resulting from his fall down the embankment. He seemed to be otherwise uninjured. Neither the police nor the doctor believe he had been drinking.

One of the puzzling features of the case is that Cooper's gold watch and chain were found in his waistcoat, as well as $60 in cash and several checks in his hip hip pocket. A diamond ring also was left upon his finger by the thieves.

Cooper refused to go to the hospital. While he was recovering from his experience and describing his assailants to the detectives in the police station, his brother, the Rev. Hedley Cooper of Greenwood Lake, L. I., was summoned and came to the station.

Detective Lieut. Fay and ten other detectives set out on Mr. Cooper's suggestion to try to find the produce merchant's assailants. Their search up to a late hour was fruitless.

Cooper can give no clue to the cellar to which, he says, he was carried. The place on Second Avenue where he says he was assaulted, is about two miles from the railroad cut where he was found.

PARK AVENUE BARRIER DOWN.

First Vehicles in 40 Years Cross It at Fifty-first Street.

For the first time in more than forty years it was possible yesterday for both foot passengers and vehicles to cross Park Avenue at Fifty-first Street, as a result of the completion of improvements by the New York Central.

For twoscore of years the tunnel through Park Avenue prevented vehicles from crossing between Forty-second and Fifty-fifth Streets, although bridges were built over the tracks for pedestrians at Fifty-fourth, Fifty-second, Fiftieth, Forty-eighth, and Forty-sixth Streets. Now the street has been built over the tracks from Fiftieth to Fifty-fourth Street. At Fifty-first Street the wall was taken down and a roof erected over the tracks.

BERLIN BACKS DOWN ON KAISER'S DENIAL

Only Meant to Say He Did Not Advise Goethals to Fortify the Canal Against Japan.

ASTONISHED AT THE COLONEL

Press Gibe at "Garrulous Foreigners"—Observers Think Denial Was Intended to Soothe the Japanese.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

BERLIN, April 1.—Col. George W. Goethals's action in giving the lie to the official "denial" of the German Government with reference to his conversation with the Kaiser on the subject of fortifying the Panama Canal has caused a profound sensation in Berlin.

American cablegrams having reported that Col. Goethals sticks to his guns, the Foreign Office to-night deemed it wise to issue a statement which considerably qualifies, if it does not wholly withdraw, the flat-footed "denial" published on Saturday.

The Foreign Office now declares that the Kaiser never meant to say that he had not discussed the fortification question. His Majesty meant merely to deny that he advised America to fortify against Japan or England or any other power which might eventually attempt to seize a coaling station in the region of the Isthmus. The Kaiser, in fact, carefully avoided the discussion of anything so concrete and confined his remarks strictly to general observations.

The Foreign Office adds that the version of Col. Goethals's remarks which reached Germany was doubtless distorted and that the official contradiction was leveled at a palpable garbled reproduction.

The newspapers have not yet been favored with this post-mortem effort of the Foreign Office to close what they describe as "a most painful incident." Meantime the papers are full of articles abusing the "garrulous foreigners" who gain access to the Kaiser's presence. They declare the Kaiser's experience with Col. Goethals ought finally to teach him that it is unsafe to open the doors of the German Court to Americans, Frenchmen, and others, who unburden themselves to the first reporters who run across them.

The press universally assume that Saturday's denial was issued for the purpose of assuaging Japan. The Kaiser rubbed the Japanese the wrong way under identical circumstances five or six years ago, when he discussed the "yellow peril" with a talkative member of the American House of Representatives. The Japanese Ambassador in Berlin protested, and thereupon an official "denial" was issued, stating that the Kaiser had discussed yellow fever, not the "yellow peril," and Japan was appeased.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., April 1.—Clara Ide, a wealthy spinster, whose estate in the town of Riga, near Rochester, is a show place of the county, willed 160 acres and $30,000 to found a model farm for the benefit of persons who may wish to study agriculture in a practical way. The will, admitted to probate to-day directs the organization of a corporation with a Board of Managers, to include the Master of the Riga Grange, the Supervisor of the town, and the Chairman of the County Board of Supervisors.

Miss Ide left the income of $2,500 to a person, to be selected by the executors, who will care for her parrot, "Capt. Flint." "Rattlesnake Pete" Gruber, who cured the bird of a distemper, will be appointed guardian of the bird. He says "Capt. Flint" will live fifty years more, barring sickness or accident.

Miss Ide's will directs that her saddle horse Pollux be cared for by the model farm corporation, and that he be buried alongside Castor, another favorite horse already dead, and she orders that the ground shall never be plowed in the part of the farm known as the horse cemetery.

WEDS FOR THIRD TIME.

Mrs. Staunton Elliott Now the Wife of Daniel A. MacRae.

Mrs. W. Staunton Elliott, daughter of William H. Henriques, a stock broker of 34 Riverside Drive, became the wife of Daniel A. MacRae, a salesman for the Paul Lacroix Automobile Company about eight months ago, it was learned yesterday. They were married in Europe.

Mrs. MacRae obtained a divorce from her first husband, Douglas J. Neame, of London, in 1892. He refused to recognize the American decree and sued for divorce in London, naming Frank Ellison as corespondent. Ellison, who was often seen in company of Mrs. Neame, was a witness in her divorce suit. Later he attacked Mrs. Neame's father, for which he served a prison term.

Her second husband was W. Staunton Elliott, a Boston commission merchant. They were married in 1899 and divorced a year and a half ago.

AKAROA, New Zealand, Tuesday, April 2.—Lieut. Pennell, Commander of the Terra Nova of the British Antarctic Expedition of 1910, which arrived here yesterday, brought with him a long and intensely interesting account of the work and experiences of the expedition up to Jan. 3 last, written expressly for The New York Times by Capt. Robert F. Scott, the leader of the expedition.

Capt. Scott's story is as follows:

By CAPT. ROBERT F. SCOTT.

McMURDO SOUND, Oct. 30, 1911.—Shortly after the departure of the depot-laying party from Cape Evans on Jan. 25, 1911, the sea ice broke at South Cape and severed communication with the station. The depot party consisting of twelve men, eight ponies, and two dog teams occupied till Jan. 30 in establishing a base camp at the barrier seven miles east, southeast, of Hut Point. Owing to the heavy weights to be transported the main part of the supplies were left at this camp. The party proceeded with single loads east, southeast, twenty-seven miles to a spot named Corner Camp, before turning south to avoid the crevasses of White Island. The snow surface proved very soft, making terribly hard work for the ponies. A three days' heavy blizzard at Corner Camp was a further severe trial to the animals, which were not in good condition.

On Feb. 8 we proceeded south, marching by night and resting by day. The weather was exceptionally bad, but the surface improved. The three weakest ponies were sent back, but these unfortunately were caught in another bad blizzard and two succumbed. With the remaining ponies and the dogs we reached latitude 79½ degrees on the 16th, when I decided, owing to the condition of the weather and the animals to make a depot here and return. We left more than a ton of stores at this point, which we named One Ton Camp, and which should be a great help to us this season. We then returned to our base camp with dog teams.

Perched on a Crevasse Bridge.

Whilst cutting a corner of White Island in a bad light the whole of one dog team fell into a crevasse. Meares, myself, and the sledge were miraculously held up on part of a bridge across the crevasse, along which we had been traveling, and most of the dogs hung by their harness. With great difficulty and after three hours' work we extricated the animals. One, which was badly injured by falling sixty feet, afterward died.

At Base Camp I found every single pony well, and visiting Hut Point I received news of the Terra Nova and Fram. On Feb. 24, with men on skis, and a single pony, I started to take more stores to Corner Camp. On the outward journey we passed returning ponies going well. Returning from Corner Camp I was held up by a blizzard on the 27th, but reached Base Camp on the 28th. I found the storm had been phenomenal at this place, raging for three days and causing enormous accumulations of snow. Shifts of wind had baffled all efforts to shelter the ponies with snow walls, and the animals had suffered very badly, so I decided to retire to Hut Point without delay.

Wilson and Meares, driving dog teams, reached Hut Point in safety. Oates, Grain and I remained to try and save one pony which had been badly hit by the blizzard, whilst Bowers, Cherry, Gerrard, and Crean with the four best ponies set out to follow the dogs. Nearing Hut Point they found badly working cracks in the sea ice, and hastily turned and marched four miles south.

Adrift on Floating Ice.

There at 2 A. M. on March 1 the tired condition of the ponies obliged the party to camp. At 4:30 Bowers, awakened by a noise, found the ice broken all around the camp and moving with the heavy swell. One pony had disappeared from the picketing line and was not seen again. Hastily packing their sledges, the party decided to try and work southwest over the pack ice. With infinite difficulty the sledges were dragged, the ponies jumping from floe to floe toward the barrier. About noon the party neared the Barrier, but found its ice wall unclimbable and the swell churning and breaking heavy floes against it. In this dilemma Crean was allowed to attempt to obtain help. He traveled east over the moving pack to find a break in the ice wall, and eventually hoisted himself to the barrier surface by wedging his ski stick in a crack.

Ignorant of these events, after failing to save our sick pony, my own party had reached the barrier, where the ice, breaking under foot, forced us to retreat hurriedly, with the gravest anxiety for our companions. My fears were confirmed when Wilson, who had traveled out over land, reported having seen with glasses ponies adrift on sea ice. An hour later Crean was seen approaching, and learning his news, Oates, Crean and I set off immediately to the west. Working around the bay we approached the barrier edge, and at 6 P. M. by good fortune discovered the missing party on a pack which had been drifting slowly northwest and had temporarily stopped owing to the swell subsiding.

Rescued With Ropes.

With Alpine ropes the men were rescued with difficulty. Working on through the night we succeeded in salving the sledges, and their loads, but could no nothing for the ponies, which were only thirty yards away. At 4 A. M. the pack began to move again. We left the ponies with full nosebags and rested till 8 A. M., when the pack was again stationary. We marched north, found the ponies, and made desperate efforts to save them. Bowers and Oates risked a long detour over the pack and led the animals over many jumps, while the remainder of us dug a trench to the lower part of the barrier. The edges of the floes were high above water and very uneven. Killer whales hung about within a few yards. The ponies, failing at the jump, were irretrievably lost. One pony only won through. The pack was moving again as we left it and drifted clear to the north.

On March 4 we ascended hills east of Castle Rock, and on the 5th the party with the two remaining ponies and the dog teams was safely housed at Hut Point. By this incident we lost three of our strongest ponies. This was a severe blow to the expedition, but not enough to wreck its plans if the remaining animals could be preserved. The heavy swell which caused this disaster broke more than ten miles of fast sea ice, large fragments of the barrier, and two miles of glacier tongue, a feature which had remained otherwise unchanged since discovery in 1902. The hut was found almost completely filled with hard snow, the windows broken, and the door unhinged. With much labor we cleared and repaired it. It then afforded good shelter.

While forced to wait for the sea breeze to blow over we settled down to a very primitive life.

With old tins and discarded fragments of metal we constructed an excellent blubber stove and several blubber lamps. We fed almost entirely on seal meat. Seals could only be obtained at a distance over hills, and were sometimes scarce, but the supply never failed entirely, thanks to the ingenuity shown by my companions in improvising arrangements with the slenderest resources. With splendid health we were quite comfortable and enjoyed the discovery of a box of old magazines.

On March 15 the Western Geological Party returned, bringing our total to sixteen persons. This party had spent six weeks making a close survey of the Dry Valley, Lower Ferrar, and Koettlitz glacier regions, thus completing an important part of our plan for the geological survey of the coast.

Preparing for the Winter.

On March 17 Lieut. Evans led a party to Corner Camp, completing the depot arrangements for the coming season. The temperature at the barrier had already fallen to minus 40 degrees. Throughout the month ice continually formed over the sea, but strong winds quickly drove it north. After March 25 the ice remained fast in the sheltered bays, but continued to drive out of the sound. Huge land-ice falls on the southwest slopes of Mount Erebus prevented any possibility of returning to Cape Evans by land, but with the freezing of the bays I decided to make an attempt to reach the station, partly by land and partly by sea ice.

With eight companions I started on April 11, and, though caught by a storm on sea ice, we reached Cape Evans early on the 13th. We found the station, which had been left in Simpson's charge, in excellent order, and arrangements for comfort remarkably perfect. Numerous self-recording instruments were in full swing, and all records complete to date. All the news was good, except the loss of one of the nine remaining ponies and one dog. During our absence there had been much wind, the mean velocity for two months being twenty-four miles per hour. For nineteen per cent. of the whole time the wind had been over gale strength. All observations pointed to an exceptionally severe season.

On April 17 I returned to Hut Point with a fresh sledge party carrying supply stores. As it was impossible for animals to travel on the route taken, I left Meares and five others in charge of those at Hut Point, and again returned to Cape Evans on April 30. Sea ice continued to drive out of the sound until the first week in May. It was not until May 13, three weeks after the sun had gone, that the men and animals left Hut Point and safely returned to the main station. The sound froze solid in May and later in Winter packed ice extended to an unprecedented distance northward, despite numerous gales.

Lectures and Football.

After the return of the absentees we settled down very comfortably in our Winter hut. Its arrangements for lighting, heating, cooking, and ventilation proved eminently satisfactory. A comfortable stable had been built for the ponies and some shelter improvised for the dogs during the four Winter months. The temperature at the station was rarely below minus 40 degrees, at lowest minus 50 degrees. The wind averaged fifteen miles an hour, but sometimes blew hard with the temperature minus 30 degrees. Every one was very fully occupied with station and scientific work, exercising animals, &c. A series of lectures was organized and football was played to within a month of midwinter.

Adventures of an Exploring Party.

Frequent visits were made to Cape Royds and Hut Point. The animals steadily improved in condition. On June 27, middle Winter, Wilson, Bowers, Cherry, and Garrard started on a sledge journey to Cape Crozier to observe the incubation of emperor penguins at their rookery. Very heavy surface on the barrier forced the party to relay work during the main part, and a fortnight was taken on the outward journey. The temperature was seldom above minus 60 degrees, and often below minus 70 degrees, the lowest observed with a sling thermometer being minus 77 degrees.

Behind a land ridge on the slopes of Mount Terror the party spent three days in building a stone hut which they roofed with canvas from this camp. The men had great difficulty in crossing the huge barrier pressure ridges in the dim noon twilight to reach the rookery. They were successful at a second attempt. They found comparatively few birds at the rookery, but these had begun to lay even at this early date. Fortunately some eggs at different stages of development were secured, which should give considerable information concerning the embryology of this interesting bird.

The same night a violent gale commenced and the ridge proved inadequate shelter from the hurricane gusts which whirled down on the hut. A tent and other carefully secured articles were blown away, and after straining for fourteen hours the roof of the hut flew to ribbons. For thirty hours more the travelers were confined in their frozen sleeping beds, half buried beneath snow and rock debris. Forty-eight hours elapsed before the wind decreased and they were able to get a meal. Searching for lost articles they were fortunate in finding the missing tent among some morainic boulders, practically uninjured.

The state of their equipment now forced them to turn homeward. On the return journey they were held for two days by another storm, after which the temperature fell and remained below minus 60 degrees. The party returned after five weeks' absence incased in ice and suffering from want of sleep, but otherwise well.

Having regard to the darkness and extreme temperatures this first Winter journey in the Antarctic remains a remarkable feat of endurance. It also shows the extraordinarily severe conditions that obtain on the great snow plain barrier during the sunless season. Since the return of the sun in August considerable increase of wind has been recorded, and temperatures have remained as moderate in Spring as in Winter.

On September first Meares and Mimintri, with dog teams, made their headquarters at Hut Point, the dogs leaving for that depot in splendid form. At intervals since our arrival, however, some obscure disease has robbed us of four excellent dogs. In every case the dog attacked appeared vigorously healthy, but died in a few hours. It is thought the cause may be some minute thread worm entering the brain.

First Antarctic Telephone Line.

At the end of the month telephone communication was established with Hut Point through fifteen miles of bare wire. This telephone has already proved extremely useful for reporting the movement of parties, pending changes of weather. Lieut. Evans, Gran, and Forde traveled to Corner Camp to rebuild cairns. They experienced temperatures between minus sixty and seventy, and Forde's hands were badly frost-bitten, but are now recovering rapidly.

With Bowes, Simpson and Petty Officer Evans, I traveled west on Sept. 15. Ascending Ferrar Glacier, we found by stakes planted by Wright that the ice stream had moved thirty feet in seven months. Later, forty-five miles northwest of our station, we found part of the glacier tongue broken in March, with the forage depot left by Campbell intact. Owing to work at the station and the need of increasing exercise for the ponies, we have been unable to undertake further Spring journeys.

The western geological party, consisting of Taylor, Debenham, Gran and Forde, delayed by Forde's accident, will leave in a few days for Granite Harbor.

Start Delayed to Save Ponies.

All plans and preparations for the southern journey are now complete and, despite the accident of last season, we have great hope of success. The necessity of getting the utmost out of our remaining ponies has decided me not to expose them to great cold. We shall, therefore, start later than originally intended.

The motor sledge party consisting of Lieut. Evans, Bay, Lashley, and Hooper, started five days ago, with two motor sledges dragging fuel and forage. The motors experienced unexpected difficulty on sea ice where it was very thinly covered with snow, but were last seen going well on the surface of the barrier beyond the base camp of last season. They have, therefore, placed the possibilities of motor traction beyond question.

CAPT. SCOTT'S THRILLING STORY

The pony party, consisting of myself, with Wilson, Oates, Bowers, Cherry, Garrard, Atkinson, Wright, Evans, Crean and Keohane, will start about November 1. Independently of the success of the motors, ponies will be worked with light loads in easy marches to Corner Camp, with full loads and easy marches to One-Ton Camp, and with such pressure as necessary thereafter. Dog teams starting will rejoin us at One-Ton Camp and help to advance loads. By these means we hope to get thirty units of food to the foot of Beardmore Glacier, a unit being a week's provision for four men. Then with three divisions of four men and twenty-one units of provisions, I hope to extend the advance to the required distance if the weather conditions are not wholly unfavorable.

Of the ten remaining ponies one is unreliable and one doubtful, the remainder being in very fine form. Officers and men are in splendid health and eager to go forward. Owing to my decision to postpone, there is an obvious chance that the most advanced southerly party will be unable to catch the Terra Nova before she is forced to quit the Sound. Under these conditions, having regard to important scientific work done and facilities offered for further work, I have decided to maintain the station for a second year. The majority of the shore party will probably remain, but details depend upon the date of our returning from our journey, on home news, and the extent of fresh transport provided. I shall greatly regret the departure of any member, as we have lived in the happiest social accord. Ponting probably returns with a large batch of photographic material, to which a second year might add little of importance. Owing to Ponting, the photographic results of the expedition are a most remarkable series of cinematograph pictures, giving a comprehensive record of our polar life. The plans arranged for the scientific work of the expedition have succeeded so far almost in their entirety.

Off for the South Pole.

Nov. 24, Latitude 81.15 S.—We left Hut Point on the eve of Nov. 2, having decided to march by night and rest during the day to give the ponies the benefit of warmer day temperatures. We reached Corner Camp this morning. Traveling south for sixty miles, we followed the tracks of the motors, then we found the machines abandoned. The party had proceeded onward as directed, were delayed by a blizzard on the eighth, but reached One Ton Camp on the morning of the sixteenth. The dog teams had caught us up some days earlier, and the whole party proceeded in company. A day's rest was given the animals at One Ton Camp, which we left on the seventeenth. Having regard to the weight of the loads, the heavy surfaces and limited number of animals, I decided to march fifteen miles only every night. This distance has been maintained eight nights, and, so far as we can foresee, it should be continued.

The ponies are going very steadily and keeping condition remarkably well. The first pony has been shot for expediency, but could have traveled further. The animals have ten pounds of oats and three pounds of oil cake daily. We are hopeful of getting the men's food supply to the Glacier, according to programme, without great difficulty, but shall be a day or two later than anticipated.

Overheated Motors Abandoned.

We found the motor party waiting at latitude 80½. Two of their number now leave us. The sole cause of the abandonment of the motors was the overheating of the air-cooled engines. Time did not permit of the defects being taken in hand. The system of propulsion of the motors proved entirely satisfactory. The machines dragged heavy loads over the worst part of the barrier service and crossed several crevasses. Considering inadequate trial, their success has been remarkable. With the experience now gained a reliable tractor could be constructed which could travel anywhere in this region and save the sacrifice of animals.

We are building snow cairns at intervals of four miles to guide the homeward parties and leaving a week's provision at every degree of latitude to the barrier. The surface was extremely bad and trying to the ponies up to One Ton Camp, but has been comparatively good since. The greater number of the ponies have been dragging over 650 pounds.

Progress Through Violent Storms.

Dec. 10, latitude 83 degrees 15 minutes.—After the return of the motor party from latitude 81 degrees 15 minutes we pushed steadily south, hopeful for better weather conditions. A second pony was destroyed at latitude 82 degrees 10 minutes, a third at latitude 82 degrees 45 minutes, and two more near the eighty-third parallel. None of these animals were exhausted, but were sacrificed on account of lightening loads and as food for dogs.

As we approached, the weather grew worse, snow storms were frequent, the sky continually overcast, and land very rarely visible. Under these circumstances it was most difficult to keep a straight course and maintain steady marches. The ponies continued to pull splendidly. The excellent condition they retained under severe work I attribute entirely to the management of Capt. Oates. In spite of delays we reached latitude 83 degrees 24 minutes, within twelve miles of Mount Hope, on Dec. 4. We could have reached the glacier with five ponies on the following day but for the intervention of a southerly gale which lasted four days, during which we did not sight land, although only a few miles away. The wind was very violent at times, a prodigious amount of snow fell, and we had continually to dig out ponies and tents. The temperature rose to plus 3, the snow melting on our equipment and completely soaking everything with water. No such prolonged storm has hitherto been recorded in these regions in December.

Hard Work in the Deep Snow.

On the ninth, after the storm, eighteen inches of wet snow covered the originally soft surface. We could not have advanced at all had not the leading pony worn snow shoes. The men hauled on skis. It took fourteen hours without a meal to do eight miles. At the first halt the ponies were destroyed, as we had no more forage for them. To-day we have come through the pass and descended on Beardmore Glacier, but only with infinite difficulty and after twelve hours' work. The soft snow brought by the storm continued over the pass. Men on foot sank to their knees and sledges sank to their crossbars continually. The dogs have given some help, but could only be lightly laden on such a surface.

I send this note by returning teams. The party is very fit but cannot keep up the hours which we have been working. The storm has already cost us five days. Its effects may yet delay us further, which would be a serious matter. Otherwise everything has worked as planned. We hope to find better conditions as we advance up the glacier. We are necessarily dependent on the weather, and the season thus far has been very unpromising.

A Struggle to Achieve Five Miles a Day.

Dec. 21, latitude 85 degrees 7 minutes south, longitude 163 degrees 4 minutes east, height about 6,800 feet, four miles south, thirty west, of Mount Darwin. Largely as a result of the storm reported in my last dispatch, the lower reaches of the glacier were filled with terribly soft snow. Men on foot sank to the knee at each step. It would have been quite impossible to advance, had we not pulled on skis. As it was the runner surface of sledges proved inadequate. They frequently sank to the crossbars, requiring to be extracted with standing pulls. For four days we struggled in this morass, scarcely advancing five miles a day, although working ten to eleven hours. It is difficult to pitch camp and load sledges on such a surface. On the fifth day the surface grew a little harder, and we were able to push on, still pulling on skis. We did not get abreast of Cloudbreaker Mountain until the seventeenth, so that the snow cost us a week's advance.

Since the sixteenth we have been able to make very good marches, working up from thirteen to twenty-three statute miles per day. By programme I arranged to push on from the eighty-fifth parallel with eight men and twelve units of provisions, but I hoped to reserve a margin over this. As we stand we are only half a day's food short on programme and should have a good chance of getting through. The weather continues unsatisfactory. We had to march without sight of land on occasions. We are getting intermittent fog in this most crevassed part of the glacier. Everybody is in the best of health and spirits.

It has been most difficult to select the returning party of four which carries this note. Our position constitutes our upper glacier depot. Complete depots have been established on the homeward route. The track of the barrier is well marked with snow cairns. The members going forward are Scott, Lieut. Evans, Wilson, Bowers, Oates, Lassley, Petty Officer Evans, and Crean.

150 Miles from the Pole on Jan. 3

Jan. 3, 1912, latitude 87.32, height 9,800 feet.—After leaving the upper glacier depot, south of Mount Darwin, I steered southwest two days. This did not keep us clear of pressure ridges and crevasses, which occurred frequently at first and gave us trouble, but we rose rapidly in altitude. Probably the difficult places were more snow-covered than further eastward. The advantage of this course was mainly felt on the third and fourth days, when, owing to our altitude, we got a splendid view of the distribution of land masses fringing the ice sheet and the arrangement of ice falls. Since leaving the depot our marches have averaged over fifteen statute miles a day.

On Christmas Day we were close up to the 86th parallel, and the prospect of Christmas fare gave us an excellent march, seventeen miles, but the effect was not so happy the following day. The surface grew more difficult as we approached the 87th parallel. On New Year's Eve, in latitude 86 degrees 56 minutes, we depoted there a unit of provisions and rebuilt our sledges with new short runners, which remarkable piece of work was performed by the seamen of the party under adverse conditions.

Although it cost us nearly a day's march, the change amply repaid us. We have been able to keep up our average and we are now within 150 miles of the pole.

Five Going On to the Pole.

I am going forward with a party of five men, sending three back under Lieut. Evans with this note. The names and descriptions of the advance party are: Capt. Scott, R. N.; Dr. Wilson, chief of the scientific staff; Capt. Oates, Inneskilling Dragoons, in charge of the ponies and mules; Lieut. Bowers, Royal Indian Marine, commissariat officer; Petty Officer Evans, R. N., in charge of sledges and equipment.

The advance party goes forward with a month's provisions, and the prospects of success seem good, providing the weather holds and no unforeseen obstacles arise. It has been very difficult to choose the advance party, as every one was fit and able to go forward. Those who return are naturally much disappointed. Every one has worked his hardest. The weather on the plateau has been good on the whole. The sun has never deserted us, but the temperatures are low, now about minus 20 degrees, and the wind pretty constant. However, we are excellently equipped for such conditions, and the wind undoubtedly improves the surface. So far all arrangements have worked out most satisfactorily. It is more than probable that no further news will be received from us this year, as our return must necessarily be late.

ROBERT F. SCOTT.

Lieut. Pennell Expects Success.

Lieut. Pennell expressed the utmost confidence in the ultimate success of Capt. Scott and his party, and declared that the scientific work being performed by the expedition was of an extremely valuable character. In addition to the southern party, the Terra Nova was compelled, owing to the bad ice conditions, to leave behind Lieut. Campbell's party, who were landed at Drygalsky Barrier, and thence sledged into the interior. Both parties, however, were fully prepared for this emergency, says the commander of the Terra Nova, and no alarm need be felt for their safety.

The two geological expeditions on the west coast have produced good results, coal and fossils, which latter had not been discovered before, being found. The health of the members of the expedition is excellent, the only exception being Lieut. Evans, who is now convalescing from scurvy.

The Terra Nova returns south in November next.

Note—The Second Section of Capt. Scott's story, descriptive of the work of the geological expeditions, will appear in The New York Times of Wednesday, April 3, 1912.

Blues and Grays for Men in Spring fabrics at Saks'
¶The profusion of color in men's fabrics nowadays is in marked contrast to the dull drabs of years ago. The impulse may be traced to England, where colored fabrics are at a premium to counteract the depressing effects of the climate. Yet for all the prevalence of many colors in fabrics, you will notice that the domination of blue and gray is still unimpaired. They are the conservative element in color.
¶Gray this season is perhaps the strongest color of all. It is seen in greater variety than any other. It counterfeits all the grays of the waking and waning hours, from grays almost as light as the white mists of evening to the gray that merges into a messalliance with black and is re-named Oxford. Never was such a galaxy of grays before. Blues play less with light and shade, but run more to self stripes and to hairline effects.
¶ Blues and grays are tailored by us into all the favored Spring models. But the quality of Saks tailoring is subject to none of the variations of either. It is consistently individual.

IT WASN'T A RACE, SAY THE ENGLISH

REGRET SCOTT WASN'T FIRST

But a Speed Contest Never Entered His Head—Disappointed, Just the Same.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Tuesday, April 2.—Now that it is certain that Capt. Scott, if he reached the south pole—and all hands here agree that he did so—was preceded by Capt. Amundsen, it is interesting to remark the predominant note sounded by the "man in the street," the scientists, and the newspapers, that Scott never entertained for one moment any idea of a race to the pole, his expedition being organized simply and purely for scientific objects.

On the other hand, THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent recalls how, about two years ago, when talking with Capt. Scott on the prospects that an American expedition might set out with the object of reaching the pole, Capt. Scott remarked, "The more the merrier," but said he expected, barring accidents, that visitors to the south pole would find the union jack there to greet them.

There is no getting away from it—disappointment is general at the definite news confirming British fears that Amundsen reached the goal first, although no disposition is shown to begrudge Amundsen the full fruits of his victory.

In an editorial article The Daily Mail says:

"If all went well Capt. Scott should have reached the pole about one month later than Capt. Amundsen, and already have returned with the little tent which the Norwegians left as a token of their triumph.

"We may regret that Capt. Scott has not all the honor of being the first to gain the pole, though his early expeditions opened the way to it, but, as Sir Clements Markham reminds us, the idea of a race for the pole never entered his head. It was not to win in such a contest that he made his expedition, but to carry out an elaborate plan of scientific research.

"Yet, but for the trouble which he experienced with his ponies, it is possible that he might have preceded Amundsen at the pole or met him there in a thrilling rencontre.

"No admiration can be too great for the courage and determination which have led Capt. Scott to spend another year in the antarctic realms of ice."

In an editorial article The Times says in part:

"The interest and attraction of Capt. Scott's story for most of us lie in his relation of the sufferings, dangers, and adventures of the expedition and in the proof it affords of the spirit in which he and his gallant comrades carried out their work. It is told in the plainest, most unassuming way, with no more effort after effect than is contained in a ship's log. It is a businesslike record of good work well done in the face of extraordinary difficulties, written with the reticence which we admire in the best type of our countrymen.

"Almost exactly a year ago, the first part of his story, coming down to the end of January, 1911, reached us. The further portion which is now published continues the narrative from that date to Jan. 3 of the present year. Capt. Scott was then in latitude 87.32 and within 150 miles of the pole. He was on the point of starting with four companions and a month's provisions on the last stage of his forward journey, with good prospects of success.

"It will doubtless be a disappointment to him to learn that many days before he wrote this latest part of his dispatch the pole had been reached by Capt. Amundsen, but, as Sir Clements Markham again reminded us yesterday, the mere reaching of the pole had never been in any sense the sole object of the expedition.

"That nas other, larger ends in view, as Capt. Scott himself explained. 'If these have been adequately attained, as there is reason to believe is the case, Capt. Scott and his countrymen will be fully satisfied with the achievement and will not grudge to another the victory in a 'race' for which the English sailor never entered."

The Daily Telegraph says editorially:

"The most striking point in a comparison between the accounts of Scott and Amundsen is the difference in sheer luck. The Norwegian explorer dwelt much, as he had reason to do, on the manner in which fortune smiled upon his rash and daring exploit. In nothing was he more favored than in the weather which he encountered in the later stages of his journey. It is remarkable that Scott at approximately the same time met with storms of unparalleled severity.

"Amundsen reached the pole on the 14th of December. On the 5th, 6th, 7th, and 8th of the same month Scott was held up by tempests such as 'have not hitherto been recorded in these regions in December,' and during the days that Amundsen spent in making observations at the locality of the pole the Englishmen were escaping from a mass of soft snow left by a storm in the lower reaches of the Beardmore Glacier, which had clogged their movements for four days.

"The explanation is probably to be found in the much more favorable route which the Norwegian chanced to take and which led him to a high plateau, while the Englishmen were in comparatively low, broken country.

"There can be no reasonable doubt that Scott, whose last written message was written when he was within easy reach of the pole and well provided, has accomplished the subsidiary object of his expedition and reached in his turn the spot consecrated by the ambitions of many less fortunate venturers among the terrors of the antarctic."

Speaking last night at a meeting of the Royal Geographical Society, Douglas W. Freshfield, the Chairman, said all would rejoice that Capt. Scott's expedition had so far not met with a reverse of any kind and was still moving forward. Though they sympathized with those who would have liked Capt. Scott to return to England, they felt great satisfaction in the fact that he had made the noble resolve to stay in the antarctic another year, when the full scientific object of the splendid, scientifically equipped expedition would be achieved.

There had, Mr. Freshfield said, been a little confusion in the public mind in the meantime as to the time at which Capt. Scott received the news that Capt. Amundsen's expedition was projected. The first news of the actual presence of Amundsen in the antarctic was when the Terra Nova, which had returned from Scott's Winter quarters, found that he had gone south. The fact was not known to Scott until he returned from fixing his depots.

TRIBUTE FROM SHACKLETON.

He Says Scott Will Be the First to Give Praise to Amundsen.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Tuesday, April 2.—Sir Ernest Shackleton, in a two-column analysis printed in The Daily Chronicle, devoted chiefly to a comparison of Capt. Scott's experiences with his own, pays a tribute of admiration to Scott.

"Of this I am convinced," writes Sir Ernest. "The first man to acknowledge and appreciate the success of Capt. Amundsen in arriving at the coveted spot will be Capt. Scott, who has by now reached the pole and is preparing at this moment for another long antarctic Winter night amid the ribbed ice in order finally to finish and carry out the programme ne laid down when he first initiated the expedition.

"That, it must be remembered, was not only to achieve the geographical south pole, but to make a scientific geographical survey of the quarter of the antarctic regions within his sphere of action."

Referring to the eastern party, who were landed in Victoria Land and who have not been picked up, Sir Ernest says:

"There are seals and penguins in plenty at Grygalsk's Glacier, so there is no fear that this party will not have ample food."

Regarding Capt. Scott's statement that fossils have been found for the first time in the antarctic, Sir Ernest writes:

"This is hardly correct. Fossils may have been discovered for the first time 'in situ,' but during our own expedition we detected fossils among erratic boulders."

In concluding, Sir Ernest says:

"Now comes the advance on the pole. On Nov. 2, a day earlier than our expedition left Hut Point for the south, Scott started. Sixty miles south he found the motors abandoned by the advance party. This shows that though great hopes were entertained for the motors, the day has not yet come when one can count with certainty on their continuous performance in polar regions.

"Then, on Dec. 4, another blizzard overtakes the little, struggling party, and, worse than low temperatures, high temperature occurs. The whole equipment is soaked with water, and one must have had that experience personally to realize what this discomfort means.

"How different seem to have been the conditions to those experienced by Amundsen, only some hundred miles away at the same time."

"On Jan. 3 of this year," Sir Ernest adds, "Scott was 9,800 feet above the sea in latitude 87.32 south. On Jan. 3. 1909, we were 87.20 south, 9,770 feet above the sea, and it is interesting, remarkable too, to note how the two sets of observations coincide.

"Now Scott sends back his last party of three under Evans and goes forward with five men—himself, Wilson, Oats, Bowers, and Evans. They are now within 150 miles of the pole, and this is the last news we have of them. They have a month's provisions, and success seems certain, for if all went well they ought to have reached the pole about Jan. 18, fifteen days after Scott sent the last party back.

"The temperature would still be low. Although it was the height of Summer they found 20 degrees below zero and constant wind—similar conditions to those we faced.

"Thus ends Capt. Scott's message, and a year must elapse before we can hear the final result of the march and all the fortunes and adventures of the whole party, but two points must inevitably present themselves to readers of Capt. Scott's dispatch. The first is that throughout the journey nature has exerted her force against the expedition. Bad weather continually dogged their steps and faced them. Second, in spite of all troubles, disadvantages, and discomforts, they ever set their faces toward the goal of their desire.

"It is early yet to prophesy the results of the expedition, but it is evident from the news to hand that its scientific work will be of the greatest importance and interest to the whole scientific world, and, as science knows no country and recognizes no boundaries, the good wishes of all other nations will be extended to Capt. Scott and his gallant band in their fight against adverse conditions, and they will receive the thanks of all for the information they have struggled so hard to lay before a waiting world."

POWDER EXPLOSION MAKES JERSEY QUAKE

Two Men Killed and Three Others Injured When Finishing Mill at Wayne Goes Up.

TRAIN WINDOWS BLOWN OUT

Shock Felt in Manhattan and in Staten Island and Towns Near to the Hudson River.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., April 1.—An explosion this morning in the Laffin & Rand Powder Works, one of the plants of the du Pont de Nemours Company, killed two men, injured several others, and demolished three of the long corrugated buildings. The explosion shook up the whole Passaic Valley and caused these casualties:

DEAD.

STOLTZ, CHARLES, Superintendent.
RYSDECK, CHARLES, powder boss.

INJURED.

BRANFORD, ISAAC, badly bruised and cut and temporarily deranged from shock.
SPERNOW, WILLIAM, arms and legs broken.
QUINN, ALFRED, cuts and bruises.

What caused the accident is not known, but the officials incline to the theory that it resulted in some way from the opening of powder containers in the finishing mill. In this mill the powder is glazed and prepared for shipment. There were four barrels or containers, each 20 feet long and 15 feet in diameter, in the mill. They are filled every night, opened about eight o'clock in the morning and their contents sent to the packers. This mill was in a clump of trees about a mile from Wayne. Two "corning" mills were near by.

Rysdeck, who was in charge of the finishing mill, was seen to go into the building shortly before the accident. Suddenly there came the sound of a tremendous explosion and with a burst of flame the finishing mill disappeared, the ground rocked as though from an earthquake and trees, stones and earth went skyward to be followed a few seconds later by a rain of débris. Far up in the air a great cloud of smoke formed and as it went drifting off spread until it darkened the sky.

Supt. Stoltz, who was making his rounds, was standing 200 feet from the mill talking to William Spernow, a foreman. Both men were thrown ten feet by the concussion, and Stolz was struck by a rock and killed. Spernow, with legs and arms broken, was found a few feet away. Isaac Branford, a workman, was found by the rescuers badly cut and bruised. The man was wandering around and appeared to be out of his mind. Alfred Quinn, another worker, had his face and arms cut and his body bruised. He was numbed from shock.

The two "corning" mills were completely destroyed, and so close were the explosions that there appeared to be just one great shock, a booming sound followed by the rain of death.

It needed no messenger to tell the people of Wayne that the mills had "gone up." There are 180 hands employed in the mills, and nearly every one of the 800 inhabitants of Wayne is in some way dependent upon the mills for existence. With the sound of the explosion still lingering in the air men, women, and children came running from the little brick houses maintained by the company.

Each man in the plant has a special duty to perform in times of emergency and each went to his work. They at once closed up the other buildings, ran fire hose, and policed the grounds. Gangs were at once put at rescue work. The torn-up ground, twisted machinery, and wreckage spread over a large territory. The workmen could find no trace of Rysdeck's body. They found Stoltz still breathing, but he soon died. A quarter of a mile from where the finishing mill stood a part of Rysdeck's jumper were found on a bush.

Women and children crowded about the entrance to the plant to learn the extent of the fatalities. This could not be told until the company officials had called the roll of their employes.

The 8:11 train on the Greenwood Lake Division of the Erie was just pulling out of the Wayne station when the explosion occurred. It was a quarter of a mile from the works, but every window in the cars was shattered. None of the few passengers was injured. The station was badly damaged.

A peculiar feature of the explosion was that the shock was felt less in Wayne than in places beyond. Very few windows were broken, but in the village store goods were sent tumbling from the shelves.

The shock of the explosion was felt in Manhattan and in Staten Island. It was at first supposed to be due to an earthquake. It caused more excitement in Bayonne, where people ran from their homes in the belief that some of the big Standard Oil tanks at Constable Hook had blown up. Houses were shaken by the shock, and one house was so rocked that the doors were thrown from their hinges. In other homes china was broken and articles tumbled about.

Hackensack and Englewood, Newark, the Oranges, Irvington, and Bloomfield, and many West Hudson towns felt the force of the explosion. Houses were shaken, articles fell from walls and shelves, and there was momentary excitement among the people.

VALUE TO SCIENCE OF SCOTT'S JOURNEY

Cyrus C. Adams Analyzes the Explorer's Narrative—His Equipment Unsurpassed.

BIRTH OF A GREAT ICEBERG

Experience of Some of the Party Unique in Polar Annals—The Movement of the Ferrar Glacier.

By CYRUS C. ADAMS.
Of the American Geographical Society.

The story that Capt. Scott has to tell makes one of the finest chapters in all the annals of polar endeavor. His men proved to be everything that heroic men can be. His equipment, as tested in field service, was unsurpassed by that of any previous expedition. Both dogs and ponies proved their fitness and adequacy and even his motor sledges made a surprising record over sixty miles of the Barrier ice. The Scott party has never been surpassed, as the event proves, in morale, in staying power, and in physical and scientific fitness.

It is a little surprising, however, to read that a member of the advance party was attacked by scurvy. In his first expedition Scott had a sorry experience in this respect, and it was not supposed that he would have any recurrence of this trouble. The essential human régime in the polar regions is now so well understood that the appearance of this once terrible evil is generally regarded as astonishing and unncessary.

Early in their work Scott's contingent, sent forward to establish supply depots, had an exciting experience, the like of which is now first recorded. They were on the western branch of the widespread Ross Barrier ice when the phenomenon of the birth of some of the enormous antarctic icebergs occurred. Some of the men and ponies were on the ice when it broke away, and they were suddenly adrift on a new formed ice island in the stormy waters of McMurdo Sound. The ponies perished, but the men were saved. It was a thrilling experience, but fortunately was not tragical, as far as Scott's party was concerned.

The most of Scott's sledge work till he reached the easterly trending coast of South Victoria Land was done on the Ross Barrier ice, supposed to be the greatest field of glacial ice in the world. The mighty front of this glacier stretches for nearly 300 miles between Mounts Erebus and Terror to King Edward Land; and the ice cliff, 100 to 150 feet in height, that fronts this mass frequently breaks away, setting afloat the enormous, flat-topped icebergs that are the characteristic feature of antarctic seas. Thousands of these bergs come from the Ross Ice Barrier, which is supposed to be the greatest iceberg manufactory in the world. No other explorer will ever crave the novelty of standing, as Scott's men did, on this ice when it is suddenly transformed into a berg.

One of Scott's exploring parties found that the great Ferrar Glacier, flowing out upon the Barrier, had moved down its slope thirty feet in seven months. There are many hundreds of these glaciers pouring their contributions of ice upon the Barrier the year around, and vast quantities of snow falling upon the Barrier expanse are turned by pressure and melting into ice, and thus the frozen continent of the Barrier, constantly breaking away at its outer edge, is constantly replenished by the ice manufactories behind. It is likely that the Barrier itself is slightly afloat; at any rate, it moves, very slowly indeed, toward the open sea to the north.

But its movement seems also to be slightly to the west, so that the great ice area is crowded toward the shores of South Victoria Land, where the surface is greatly broken and crevassed. This broken surface, unfortunately, has been the sledging route to the South, which the two Scott and the Shackleton expeditions followed. Their sad experiences on the first of these journeys taught them to give the coast a wide berth, but still, they have not yet found a route in that region that is not beset with crevasses and snow of unusual depth.

It was Amundsen's good fortune that his route to the pole lay under the lee of King Edward Land, where he found remarkably good traveling both when planting his food caches and when advancing to the pole. His route across the Ross Barrier ice was from 200 to nearly 300 miles to the west of the routes of the British explorers.

The conditions of travel which Scott found on his southern journey were terribly deterrent. He has accomplished what he has done largely because his force, his equipment, and organization, and his handling of the means provided were of a nature, and a body of power, to triumph over almost any obstacle.

Many skeptics will read with wonder of the amount of service which Scott obtained from his two motor sledges. He is confident that improvements in their machinery will make them very practical and efficient in polar sledging. This may be the case on the Ross Barrier ice, where the surface, some way to the east of South Victoria Land, is comparatively smooth. Perhaps they would be found useful on the Greenland ice cap. It is not likely, however, that there could be any work for them in such ice conditions as those which Peary inevitably found to the north of our continent.

No party ever experienced a worse Winter in the antarctic than that which preceded Scott's journey south. The mean, low temperature was not excessive, but the snowfall was enormous and the winds were terrific, adding special difficulties to his sledge work.

The sledging conditions that Scott found while ascending the many scores of miles of Beardmore Glacier were even worse than those which Amundsen met among the mountains further east. It is astonishing, on the whole, however, considering the depth of the snow and the great windstorms which Scott encountered, that he made so fine an average in daily rate. Under all the circumstances, this journey will be regarded as one of the most remarkable ever made; and it could have been accomplished only by means of the momentum which Scott's power of resources and his personal generalship were able to give it.

He tells us of one of the penguin rookeries which the party at his headquarters had under study. It is known that the land life of the antarctic is exceedingly small, but this cannot be said of the three or four varieties of birds that haunt the coasts. Bruce has told of one rookery that was computed to contain 2,000,000 penguins. One great disadvantage of antarctic exploration is that there are no land mammals, such as the musk-ox and reindeer, which are a very valuable food resource in the arctic. Many of the antarctic coasts, however, swarm with seals, and they were utilized, to a small extent, by Scott as food, while they formed the mainstay of Amundsen's bill of fare.

Scott was entirely successful in establishing supply depots for the outward and the home journeys, and this effective distribution of the commissary resources naturally sustained the strength and the spirits of his men. We shall not believe, unless we hear it from Scott, that he failed to reach the pole. But it is doubtful if he had the time to extend his exploration over any considerable area of the polar region, for this would probably have involved hazardous marches in the Winter night on the return to his Winter camp.

Scott led to the southern continent the largest body of scientific experts that have ever pursued their studies in that region. There is no doubt that this expedition bids fair to accomplish an amount of scientific work that will greatly enrich our knowledge of Antarctica.

MISSISSIPPI FLOOD THE HIGHEST EVER

No Union Pacific Trains In or Out of Omaha for the First Time in History.

ASK CONGRESS FOR $350,000

Emergency Fund to Protect the Levees—Power House Wrecked by Floods in This State.

HICKMAN, Ky., April 1.—The levee broke here to-night, and the town is being flooded rapidly. Hundreds of families have been driven from their homes, but there has been no loss of life.

Constant rise of the Mississippi in the last few days had given the inhabitants warning.

Water is standing in every store.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—To relieve flood conditions in the Mississippi Valley Representative Ransdell of Louisiana to-day introduced a bill ot make an emergency appropriation of $350,000. The money would be made availble immediately and utilized in reconstruction and maintenance of Government levees on the river.

President Taft to-day directed the War Department to furnish the authorities of Hickman, Ky., with 200 army tents to shelter citizens of the town made homeless by the breaking of the Mississippi River levee.

CAIRO, Ill., April 1.—Refugees from points in Mississippi, Kentucky, and Illinois arrived here this morning with tales of devastation by the high water of the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers. The river gauge here stood at 52.8 feet, the highest ever recordd.

A big force of men is patrolling the levees and thousands of sand bags are ready for use if the dikes begin to weaken. All of the business and factory section of Hickman, Ky., was flooded to-day when the water began to go over the top of the levee.

OMAHA, Neb., April 1.—For the first time since the Union Pacific was built, not a train is moving in or out of Omaha. Additional washouts are reported at Fremont.

OSWEGO, N. Y., April 1.—Part of the upper Oswego River dam, about one mile south of this city, gave way to-day, wrecking an electrical power house and causing other damage estimated at $60,000.

Duck Hunter Still Marooned.

Special to The New York Times.

FREEMONT, Neb., April 1.—Frank Stribbling, the duck hunter who was marooned in a tree by Platte River floods last Thursday descended from his perch to-day, the water having receded. He is yet held prisoner on the island, however. Friends succeeded in getting within a half mile of the island to-day, but could not rescue him. Stribbling has probably had but one meal since Thursday, that being the luncheon that he took with him.

GEN. GRANT NOT STRICKEN.

Report That He Is Seriously Ill Is Officially Denied.

A story published in an afternoon newspaper yesterday to the effect that Maj.-Gen. Frederick D. Grant, commanding the Eastern Division of the Army on Governors Island, was seriously ill, and that his friends had fears that the disease was that which caused the death of his father, Gen. U. S. Grant, was officially denied at the division headquarters on Governors Island yesterday. Gen. Grant is now in Florida with Mrs. Grant, on a four months' leave of absence. It was asserted that Gen. Grant had been suddenly stricken and that the fact that he had left had been kept a secret on Governors Island.

The fact is, that Brig.-Gen. Bliss has been Acting Commander of the Division since Gen. Grant went away, and there has been no secrecy about it. All orders have been signed by Gen. Bliss as Acting Commander, and inquiries for Gen. Grant have always been met with the response that the General was away on leave of absence.

"Gen. Grant," said Lieut. Marion W. Howze, his aide, yesterday, "was run down in health and not feeling strong, and acting upon the advice of his physician, took a leave of absence to go South to rest. He purposely left no public address, so that he would not be bothered with mail. As to the article published in an afternoon newspaper, the whole story is a sensational fabrication."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—The report that Major Gen. Grant was suffering from a disease similar to that which caused his father's death was repeated about the city to-day. It is not known on what basis such a rumor could have gained headway. It is said here that he is simply in need of quiet and rest.

There are no indications in the War Department records that Gen. Grant is suffering from any particularly grave malady, and the belief is general among medical officers that he is really in the best of health. He has led the riding tours every year with great enthusiasm, showing as much endurance as any of the officers who have accompanied him. Gen. Grant will be 60 years old next month, and has always enjoyed the best of health. War Department officials say that a man who can ride ninety miles under the hard conditions required in the army is hardly to be regarded as under a physical cloud.

Gen. Wood, on hearing the rumor, consulted with the Surgeon General's office and was assured that there was no truth in the report.

ON TIME TO THE DAY!

April 12, 1911, less than a year ago, we signed a contract with the Fire Companies Building Corporation (Henry Evans, Esq., President), wherein we agreed to erect a 27-story office building, from the plans of D. H. Burnham & Company, Architects, and have it ready for tenants by April 1st, 1912.

The feat was generally regarded as unprecedented in the history of building construction, and provoked alike the ridicule of our competitors and the sympathy of our friends. Our competitors accused us of bad judgment, or bad faith—our friends suspected us of biting off more than we could conveniently chew.

But worse than ridicule and sympathy were the hard realities which developed during the progress of the work. The inevitable delays due to strikes, and to the 249 actual changes in plans to arrange space to suit tenants, materially added to the burden of this extraordinary undertaking.

Those who have had experience in improving real estate know the disastrous effect of strikes and changes on Cost and Time, and no fault could have been found had we exceeded the original contract price, and profited by our contract rights to claim an extension of time. But we overcame the need of either. Instead of exceeding the contract price, we saved money for the Owners! Instead of exceeding the contract date for completion, we have anticipated it!

Yesterday, less than a year after the contract was signed, despite strikes, despite changes, the building known as the Eighty Maiden Lane Building is substantially completed and ready for tenants, some of whom have already moved in, while others will now be going in as fast as the elevators can carry their personal belongings.

Further comment on our part would be superfluous, but it is interesting to note, that when this advertisement was submitted to the President of the Fire Companies Building Corporation, he made no comment other than to write at the foot of our copy:

I concur in statements made.

Weber and Heilbroner

Spring and Summer Clothes That Breathe the Spirit of Manhattan

THE fashion primaries for men have been held. There is no longer any question about what is right. No man will be counted out in this city because he is awkwardly attired, but his path will be smoother if he is not.

While the wearer of the Easter bonnet is filling Fifth Avenue with her sunny presence, the silk hat is dancing attendance as her shimmering satellite.

Let us investigate the tilt of the hat brim and the lilt of the lapel.

The Man in the Tower has had ample opportunity to search the clothes closets of the elect—and he is ready to report.

When you have reviewed the men's styles which New York holds for her own, the one important fact will appear that the Spring and Summer clothes of Weber and Heilbroner are ready.

Not only for the inspection of men unfamiliar with the new styles, but for the New Yorker who knows what he wants and is accustomed to get it.

At any rate it is high time for the open door policy —for you to peek in at your own wardrobe and take tab of the Spring vacancies.

For in a few short weeks the great Summer spirit of the metropolis will be overflowing the meadows and the tennis lawns from Barnegat to Montauk. The yachts and the golf bags will be in commission. The actuating differences between the flannel trousers to be worn this year in New York and those made up months ago for Mackinac, Michigan, will be an open secret.

First, and most distinctly of all, these Weber and Heilbroner clothes belong to this city and this season.

In this, as for three seasons past, they differ from any other ready-to-wear clothes that have ever been offered in New York.

There is a suave philosophy in this —a consolation —which has proved pleasing to New Yorkers. These clothes have demonstrated that it is possible to enjoy the convenience of ready-to-wear clothes and the economy of ready-to-wear clothes without having any of the old embarrassment of ready-to-wear clothes inflicted upon you.

Weber and Heilbroner clothes stick faithfully to the original thought of providing suits, top-coats, slip-ons, overcoats —whatever the season demands—as nearly like the most expensive made-to-order clothes turned out by exclusive New York tailors as it is possible to produce.

We have told you this means purchasing the same materials these exclusive New York tailors are using for the current season, instead of the woolens other manufacturers purchase.

Weber and Heilbroner have only one public—and therefore only one purpose. There is no division of taste in our cutting room between New York and Chicago, or between New York and Waco.

Fifth Avenue may seem like a fable in other portions of the country. In New York it is very real—with a cash penalty in tailors' bills which is oppressive to many men who desire the same good taste in clothes as that secured by men who can afford to pay from $70 to $100 for a suit.

This best style of New York is not whimsical. It is neither an imitation nor an exaggeration of London. It may borrow a great deal from a few London tailors, but it is modified by Fifth Avenue refinements which give these clothes their true character.

These styles never smell of camphor. The presence of the tailoring is never oppressive. The pattern of the woolen is never blatantly fashionable.

But they present the true richness of simplicity—the native refinement of the well turned epigram—the thoroughbred effect which depends on simple methods —the certainty of touch which leaves no trace of workmanship.

There is an absolute absence of the fuss and fustian of ordinary ready-made tailoring in these Weber and Heilbroner clothes; and there is the absolute presence of all the elements of the highest grade custom tailoring in them.

The prices, as in former seasons, are $20, $25, $30, $35 and $40—with an unusual combination of sturdiness of woolens and softness of style in the lower priced grades; and an unlimited selection of the finer imported and domestic woolens at the higher prices. Many of the suits presented this Spring are lightly and tastefully silk lined.

Worsteds, cheviots, homespuns, flannels and tropical woolens—everything that the fashionable tailor shop offers is here. Sack suits, morning coat suits, suits for the office, for the country club, for golf, for the evening—for every phase of the metropolitan man's life.

The coats fit snugly, yet comfortably—are pliable as a glove, yet gracefully correct—shoulders and collars without stiffening—lapels rolling freely but with the quality of hand-tailoring which prevents even a momentary lapse of purpose. And the trousers fit a trifle more snugly than a season ago.

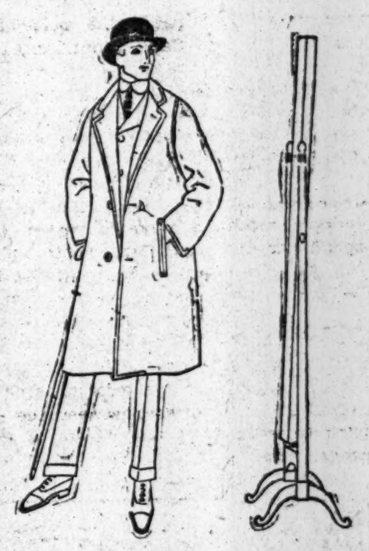
* * *

Not a few patrons of the best tailors—the highest priced—began buying these clothes a year ago as an experiment, or to "sweeten up" their made-to-order suits. This has resulted in many instances in these men buying Weber and Heilbroner clothes exclusively.

This Spring they may well "sweeten up" their $30, $35 and $40 Weber and Heilbroner suits with our $20 and $25 suits. The assortment of the latter is very much larger than it was a year ago.

The man who confines his purchases to $20 and $25 suits and $25 overcoats, who is looking for intrinsic value and wear, will get an honesty and excellence of woolens in these which we believe altogether unusual.

The Man in the Tower



SPRING overcoats are appearing under several aliases, as seen from the top of the Tower.

There is the mild mannered lightweight overcoat, skeleton lined with silk.

And there is the top-coat—and the "slip-on."

Some are adapted to a metropolitan all-purpose career.

Others are good for evening, for motoring or when a man's mind is only half made up whether he wants to wear a coat.

Weber and Heilbroner Spring overcoats are not melodramatic reflections of the twinkling lights of London.

They were not invented in an out-of-town cutting room.

They are authentic reproductions of what men who best know New York City styles are ordering.

They begin at $25.

They make important stops at $30 and $35.

In material they have the lightness and softness of balmy Spring itself.

That he also gets perfect and unobtrusive good taste we do not believe will be urged as an objection.

The well-known Weber and Heilbroner practice of immediately making right anything that is wrong and of buying back at full price anything that wears unsatisfactorily is always in full force in every one of these stores.

The clothes are ready for you, gentlemen.

To be the largest distributers of Manhattan Shirts is an achievement. To be the largest distributers of Onyx Hose for men is more than a coincidence.
An examination of Weber and Heilbroner's Easter neckwear will show you how the largest haberdashery business in America was built.

[illegible]0,000 MINERS OUT, FOLLOWING ORDERS

Union Officials Confident That Period of Idleness Will Be Short.

DAY IS MADE A HOLIDAY

Peace Prevails at All the Collieries both in the Anthracite and Bituminous Fields.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 1.—With only one or two exceptions the suspension in the coal mining industry of the country, which went into effect Sunday at midnight, when the wage contracts between the United Mine Workers of America and the bituminous and anthracite coal operators expired, was general to-day, and approximately 400,00 miners are out of wodk, the country will miss more than a million tons of coal and the miners are out about $1,000,000 in wages. to-day, and approximately 400,000 miners before starting for his home in Oskaloosa, Iowa, this afternoon, said he expected the bituminous men to ratify the Cleveland agreement and return to work probably by April 20. He also predicted a speedy adjustment of a wage contract in the anthracite field, when the miners and operators meet in Philadelphia on April 10. The ballots for the referendum vote on the bituminous agreement are being prepared in the National headquarters here, and it is believed they will be returned here by April 15.

The only exception to the general suspension, which came to the notice of the miners' officials here to-day was in two railroad mines at Evansville, Ind., in which the men continued at work with the understanding that they are to receive the new scale of wages. No trouble has been reported from any district, and pump men and others required to keep the property in shape for a resumption remained at their posts to-day the same as over a holiday.

In many places to-day was celebrated as "eight hour day" among the miners, marking the anniversary of the installing of the eight-hour day in the soft coal mines of the West.

Edwin Perry, National Secretary-Treasurer of the miners, says the Cleveland contract, when ratified, will provide the highest wage ever paid to coal miners of any country.

"The men of the picks needed the increase," he said, "and I do not think the public will feel that we are trying to hold them up. The increase should have little if any effect on the price of coal.

"Naturally we are feeling pretty good over the increase in wages for a term of two years obtained by arbitration for the bituminous miners," he continued, "and we will go into the conference with the anthracite operators at Philadelphia with absolute confidence that they will not hold out against higher wages for their men also. It will be a strikeless triumph throughout the coal industry.

"Not the least important aspect of this victory in the bituminous field in the rehabilitation of the central competitive field conference between the men and their employers. This means simplification of adjustment of our mutual problems in the future."

Mr. White pointed out that the soft coal diggers have now reached "a dollar a ton," after years of effort. The proposed new wage agreement provides for an increase of 5 cents a ton for screened coal, of 3 cents for unscreened coal, and of 5.26 per cent. for day labor and "dead work" about the mines.

Conditions and wages differ slightly in the various districts, but the "basing point" for the contracts in all will be $1 a ton.

GENERAL STRIKE NEWS.

Erie Railroad Shuts Down Three of Its Repair Shops.

HORNELL, N. Y., April 1.—The Erie Railroad shops here closed down indefinitely to-day throwing out of employment 700 of the 1,000 men employed. According to railroad officials the step was necessitated by the anthracite strike, as it was estimated that the tonnage would fall off 40 per cent. Similar action has been taken at the shops in Salamanca, N. Y., and Meadville, Pa.

DES MOINES, Iowa, April 1.—Union carpenters of Des Moines went on strike to-day because the master builders refused to grant the increase in wages Every large building in course of construction is deserted. The carpenters demand an increase from 50 to 55 cents an hour.

BARRE, Vt., April 1.—A strike of 175 retail clerks began to-day in Barre. The clerks had been working under a three-year agreement with the employers which expired Saturday night. Both sides failed to agree on a new wage and working agreement and the strike resulted. The merchants managed to operate their stores with reduced forces.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., April 1.—A strike of journeymen paper hangers and painters went into effect here to-day. The men demand an increase of fifty cents a day. Master Painters offered an increase of twenty-five cents, which was refused.

WORCESTER, Mass., April 1.—Two hundred painters struck to-day for a ten per cent. raise in wages and shorter hours. Several firms granted the demand.

BIDDEFORD, Me., April 1.—More than 100 operatives at the cotton mills of the York Corporation of Saco are idle because of a strike of 70 weavers. The weavers went out this afternoon as a protest against a short time schedule.

NEWTON, Mass., April 1.—The plant of the Saco-Pettee Company where 550 employes struck two weeks ago for higher wages, re-opened to-day. All hands returned to work, the management promising concessions.

MILFORD, Mass., April 1.—A strike of 400 workers in the Granite Manufacturing plants of the town began to-day, the disagreement being on the question of the hours of labor and a slight raise in wages. The business men expect that the strike leaders and the manufacturers will have a meeting within a few days and that a readjustment will result.

NORTON, Mass., April 1.—To prevent a disturbance in the vicinity of the mills of the Norton Wool Combing Company, where 130 foreign operatives are on strike, High Sheriff Edwin H. Evans of Bristol County and six of his deputies came here to-day. The mill was kept in operation, English-speaking employes being at work in the various departments.

MONTREAL BUYS $15 COAL.

Anthracite Situation Causes Much Anxiety in Ontario and Quebec.

MONTREAL, April 1.—The suspension of work by the Pennsylvania coal miners is viewed with the greatest alarm in Eastern Canada, owing to the unusual lateness of the Winter, which shows no signs of breaking up in Ontario and Quebec.

Many rural districts are without coal, while cities like Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton and Ottawa can struggle along for a few weeks more only before stocks are exhausted. Already coal has greatly advanced in price, and hardships have been endured by the city poor. In Montreal $12 a ton is charged for anthracite, and the news from the coal fields this morning raised the price to $15 a ton.

WAGES RAISED IN UTICA.

Cotton and Yarn Mills Announce Increase of 10 Per Cent.

UTICA, N. Y., April 1.—The managers of the cotton spinning and yarn mills in this city to-day annouced a flat raise of wages of 10 per cent. to take effect to-day. This affects some 6,000 to 7,000 people and will make an increase in wages of some $25,000 a month. In the Utica steam cotton mills, which is the largest of the mills, 2,500 employes will be affected, and it will add to the payroll of that mill about $10,000 a month.

The numerous knitting mills in this section have not been affected, and there has been no demand for increase with the knitters. Most of them work by the piece. One of the large knitting mill managers said to-day that any increase in the knitting mills was impossible and that a demand for it would mean a closing down of the mills for an indefinite period, as the condition of the business would not warrant higher wages. There is no belief that there will be any strike in the mills in this city, as the 10 per cent. increase is a satisfactory one.

WORK IN THE SOUTHWEST.

Continuation Clause in Miners' Agreement Will Be Respected.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 1.—Whatever may be the final outcome of the efforts of the coal miners and operators of the Southwest to agree on a new contract for the ensuing year, there will be no suspension of operations before May 1. This is in accordance with a continuation clause of the agreement of two years ago, and representatives of both miners and operators said to-day it would be respected.

The districts in this territory comprise Oklahoma, Texas, Arkansas, Missouri, and Kansas. Representatives of the miners and operators are expected to meet here soon to confer upon the local demands of the miners, but as to matters of general importance the men will be bound by the demands of the National organization.

STRIKERS OBEY PEACE ORDER.

Anthracite Workers Quietly Await Result of Philadelphia Conference.

PHILADELPHIA, April 1.—Peace and order prevailed to-day in the anthracite coal regions, where the command to suspend work until the execution of a new agreement between the workers and the operators was obeyed by about 175,000 miners.

No attempt was made to operate any of the collieries, and every one appeared prepared to await patiently the result of the conference to be held between the leaders of the United Mine Workers and the operators in this city on April 10.

Some of the smaller companies in the Wilkesbarre district took imported men behind their stockades, but no effort was made to interfere with them. Troopers of the State Constabulary patrolled the principal mining towns during the day, but there was no call for their services.

CAPITOL TROUBLE SETTLED.

Sub-Contracts Held by an Open Shop Firm Are Transferred.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 1.—At a conference between State Architect Ware, Michael J. Callanan, Peter Keeler, and John A. Mason, who is secretary to the Governor and also secretary to the Trustees of Public Buildings, it was agreed that Callanan & Prescott, the contractors who are restoring the burned portion of the Capitol on a percentage basis, shall take over the sub-contracts for finishing several rooms on the second floor of the Capitol which were held by the Peter Keeler Building Company.

The Keeler Company runs an open shop, and the union men employed by Callanan & Prescott refused to work with the Keeler men. They number 850.

The 300 stone cutters who demanded an advance of 50 cents a day to $4.50 returned to work this afternon on the assurance that their demands would be met by the Trustees of Public Buildings on Thursday, when a meeting of the Trustees is to be held. The only objection to the proposed increase on the part of the Trustees was that they did not want to be the first to fix the prevailing rate of wages.

ADVERSE COAL VOTE SURPRISES ENGLAND

Doubt Is Expressed in Some Quarters Over the Final Figures Favoring Resumption.

MANY WORKERS NOT VOTING

Eighty-Cent Drop in Coal Prices, However, Reflects the General Confidence That Peace Is Assured.

LONDON, Tuesday, April 2.—Up to 3 o'clock this morning the votes counted in the ballot of the miners on the question of continuing the strike numbered 198,828. Of these 98,639 favored resuming work and 100,189 were against resumption. The totals do not include some districts, where it is believed large majorities will be polled in favor of resumption.

The result of the ballot causes surprise, and there is doubt in some quarters whether a majority will cast their ballots for a return to work, although all the responsible leaders continue to advise the men of the folly of continuing the strike. South Wales, which was supposed to be a hotbed of resistance, polled nearly two to one in favor of resuming, while the English northern counties voted in favor of continuing the strike.

One explanation of the somewhat unexpected ballot is that large numbers of willing workers are not taking the trouble to record their votes.

In the meantime it is estimated that 20,000 to 30,000 miners descended into the pits yesterday. Coal traffic is being resumed, and many shipyards and industries have started up again. The price of coal declined 3s. 6d. (80 cents) on the London Coal Exchange yesterday.

A few factories in some districts, which have been hoarding coal in case of emergency, were able to reopen their works to the men yesterday morning, as they are now assured of future supplies, but others, which had no coal in stock, as well as big cotton mills and iron works in Lancashire, which have been kept going by the strictest economy, will now be forced to shut down for a short time at least.

Outside of the miners there are more men out of work than there were a week ago, and it is calculated that the unemployed in Great Britain now number more than two million.

It is estimated that up to date the loss in wages alone since the beginning of the strike amounts to $60,000,000.

STRIKEBREAKERS TO PASSAIC

Mill Owners' Announcement Taken as a Signal of Trouble.

Special to The New York Times.

PASSAIC, N. J., April 1.—Definite promises of the increases they will pay to their striking employes, who return to their machines, were made to-day by the Forstmann & Huffmann and the Gera mills, and with it was added that if the operatives do not accept their places will be filled with other workers.

The announcement that new employes would be introduced is the first reference made to the use of strikebreakers here, and by many it is regarded as a signal of trouble. The strikers, 4,000 in number, peaceful until now, have indicated their intention of holding out until the employers recognize their shop committees. As the employers refuse to recognize these committees, and as they threaten to introduce new workers if their old hands refuse to come back, the logical outcome appears to be a fight between strikers and strikebreakers.

Miners Vote Against Walk-Out.

BUTTE, Mont., April 1.—The work of counting the vote at the miners' referendum election last week on a proposal to strike is complete. It emphasizes the defeat of the radical element, the proposed walkout being beaten by a vote of nearly four to one. The vote stood: Against, 4,460; for, 1,121.

SOW NOW VAUGHAN'S "Central Park" LAWN SEED

Canada Wrongly Annexed

THERE are two kinds of Blue Grass Seed, the real one is from OLD KENTUCKY, the false one is the "Canadian" variety. The KENTUCKY seed costs 30c per pound this year; the Canadian only 18c. Most low-priced Lawn Mixtures, whether sold by seed dealers, department stores or grocers, are made up of Canadian seed or English Fescues, and chaff (no vitality) to give bulk. One department store did not use a pound of true Kentucky seed last year and could sell their low cost mixtures at 25c per pound at a big profit. Many such Lawn Mixtures are sold by the quart, weighing 7 to 14 ounces. VAUGHAN'S CENTRAL PARK MIXTURE, sold by weight only, contains Kentucky Blue Grass with extra clean seed of those other hardy kinds which make an ideal lawn. We take a smaller profit above our costs than do the "cut raters" who sell for two bits per pound. Full directions in every package.

PRICE: 1 lb, 30c; 3 lbs, 85c; 5 lbs, $1.35; 10 lbs, $2.65

STRIKERS AID THE BABIES.

Chicago Milkmen, Agree to Make Wage Contest in Sections.

CHICAGO, April 1.—Babies and invalids of Chicago, whose lives depend on milk, will not be denied their regular supply by milk wagon drivers who have been ordered to go on strike.

An agreement was reached on this point at a meeting of the union last night, when it was decided to call strikes on one dealer at a time instead of all at once. The working agreement between the drivers and their employers expired at midnight last night. The drivers demand an increase in wages of $3 a week.

Increase Wages for 80,000 Coke Men.

UNIONTOWN, Penn., April 1.—When it became known to-day that the H. C. Frick Coke Company, the coke subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation, had increased the wages of its employes 7½ per cent, announcement was immediately made by many independent coke companies that they would take the same course. The new scale is effective to-day, and notices were posted throughout the coke region to that effect. Approximately 80,000 men are affected.

Western Miners Stick to Picks.

TRINIDAD, Col., April 1.—Fears of a strike in the southern Colorado coal fields were allayed to-day by the declarations of operators and representatives of the United Mine Workers that there would be no suspension of work in this section, regardless of any action that may be taken by Eastern miners.

BOY ARRAIGNED AS SLAYER.

Declares Death of Companion in Woods Was an Accident.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 1.—"I did not mean to kill him," was the reply of Antonio Mariano, the fourteen-year-old boy arrested for the death of William Mather, Jr., 12 years old, when Judge Rueckert in the District Court here to-day asked him if he was guilty.

"I was climbing up a rock," Mariano said, "and Willie was behind me, and a piece of rock got loose and fell on his head."

Judge Rueckert accepted this as a plea of not guilty to the charge of manslaughter which had been brought, and held the boy in $2,000 bonds for a hearing on April 11. The prisoner was then taken to the Sockanosset Reform School for detention.

A few minutes after the conclusion of the hearing the boy's brother, Raphael, 17 years old, was brought in to answer to a charge of resisting an officer in the alleged effort made by the Mariano family to prevent the arrest of Antonio. He pleaded not guilty and was held for a hearing April 12.

Young Mather's body was found in the woods near his home in North Providence last Wednesday. He had been missing since Feb. 29.

TOTAL OF $190,060 REALIZED

A Gerard David Knocked Down for $10,000 and a Victor Crivelli for $14,000—A Bronzino Goes Cheap.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, April 1.—The sale of paintings of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries that belonged to the late Jean Dollfus took place to-day, yielding a total of $190,060.

A triptych of the Cologne school, "The Presentation in the Temple," was the subject of excited bidding, and was finally sold for $31,200 to M. Kleinberger.

Another work which caused a spirited contest was a Gerard David, "The Virgin Surrounded by Four Saints." It was purchased by M. Seligmann for $10,000. He also bought for $6,100 the "History of Saint Godelième," panels of the Flemish school of the late fifteenth century, and for $14,000 Victor Crivelli's "The Virgin and the Infant Jesus Between Two Angels."

For the "History of Joseph," of the Florentine school of the fifteenth century, $8,100 was paid by Wildenstein, and for "The Death of the Virgin," of the same school, of the early fifteenth century, $4,000 was paid by M. Samba.

A Lucas Cranach, "Portrait of a Man," was bought by Brouler for $5,200. "Christ before Pilate," a panel of the German school of the end of the fifteenth century, was sold for $2,260, while another panel of the School of Cologne of the fifteenth century fetched $1,020.

"Calvary," a sixteenth century French piece, brought $3,300, and Baldung Grun's "The Virgin and the Child Jesus" brought $2,300.

Bronzino's portrait of the Duchess Anna Strozzi was knocked down for $2,500.

"The Marriage of Esther and Ahasuerus," a fifteenth century Florentine painting, sold for $6,400. Another work of the same school and period, "The Virgin and Child," brought $3,420. Still another picture of the Florentine School of the fifteenth century, "The Virgin Surrounded by Saints," was sold for $4,400.

Five thousand two hundred dollars was paid for an early Florentine work, "The Virgin, the Child Jesus, and Two Apostles," while $3,300 was given for a Tuscan religious painting of the early fifteenth century.

Three thousand one hundred and twenty dollars was realized for Ansano's "The Virgin Surrounded by Angels," and a panel by Marco di Uggione, the "Entrance of the Tabernacle," brought $2,420.

A panel of Christophsen the Elder was sold for $4,640, and Michael Coxcie's tryptic, "The Crucifixion," brought $2,200. A work of the Bruges School of the fifteenth century was sold for $2,520, and a tryptic of the same school sold for $4,000.

An early sixteenth century panel of the school of Leyden sold for $2,700, and another panel of the fifteenth century Netherland school, brought $2,620. Jean van Scorel's "The Virgin and the Child Jesus, in a Landscape," sold for $3,220.

Three thousand six hundred dollars was paid for a piece credited to the school of Dürer, "Two of the Magi."

The miscellaneous art objects of the Dollfus collection will be sold to-morrow. They include some fine enamels, tapestries, and carved woodwork.

BARONESS SUTTNER COMING.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

The Baroness gave a reception tonight in honor of the reigning Prince of Monaco. Among those present were the Archduchess Elizabeth, daughter of the late Crown Prince Rudolph, and her husband, Prince Otto von Windisch-Grätz; the French and Japanese Ambassadors, and Princess Pauline Metternich.

Mrs. A. S. Proudfoot of Chicago, who is now living in Vienna, assisted the Baroness in receiving the guests.

WON'T LIST ITALIAN STOCKS.

French Reprisal for Italy's Treatment of Insurance Companies.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, April 1.—THE NEW YORK TIMES's correspondent learns on good authority that the French Government and the Stockbrokers' Association of the Bourse have decided to refuse the listing on the Paris Bourse of all Italian securities so long as the Italian Government continues the severe measures it has just taken against foreign insurance companies doing business in Italy.

CHINESE STIRRED BY LOAN.

Suspicion of Russian Support of Belgian Loan Is Growing.

PEKING, April 1.—The Russo-Asiatic Bank handed over to-day to representatives of the Government at Wu-chang 1,500,000 taels (approximately $1,050,000) on behalf of the Belgian syndicate, whose representative at Peking declares that the Chinese Government has been credited already with 5,500,000 taels (approximately $3,850,000.)

Opposition to Premier Tang-Shao-Yi appears to be increasing in Northern China, where there is a belief that the so-called Belgian loan is principally a Russian enterprise, while Russia's reluctance to enter the international group which is arranging loans to the Chinese Government is attributed to its desire not to be hampered in its discussions connected with loans by being bound to the other powers.

NANKING, April 1.—The public ceremony connected with Dr. Sun Yat Sen's resignation from the office of provisional President of the republic took place in the hall of the National Assembly this afternoon. Dr. Sun Yat Sen bade the National Assembly a dignified farewell.

DR. WU MAY RETURN HERE.

Report That China Republic Will Send Him as Ambassador.

LONDON, April 1.—According to the Peking correspondent of The Daily Telegraph, Dr. Wu Ting-Fang is almost certain to become the Chinese Ambassador at Washington.

Dr. Wu was for a time Minister of Justice in the new republic Cabinet, and formerly held the post of Minister to the United States.

CATCH PARIS BANDITS AFTER $200,000 LOOT

Police, Warned Anonymously, Seize Two Robbers as They Pounce on Bank Messenger.

CRIME IN BROAD DAYLIGHT

Captured Criminals, Who Intended to Poison Messenger and Escape, Are Connected with Auto Gang.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, April 1.—Only a brilliant police coup frustrated this afternoon another outrage which in audacity would have equaled the exploits of the motor-car bandits at Chantilly.

Two criminals lay in wait for a bank messenger carrying $200,000 worth of securities and $2,000 cash. It was intended to fell him with a hammer, pour prussic acid into his mouth from a syringe, and make off with the bonds and gold. The police got wind of the plot and were able to arrest the thieves. One of them made a full confession.

M. Guichard, Chief of the detective force, received information from an anonymous source that a coup was contemplated at the offices of La Foncière du Hendaye, a company doing a land mortgage business in the Rue du Faubourg St. Honoré. Detectives were sent to watch the offices, and seized two men after a desperate struggle as they were snatching at the messenger's wallet.

They were taken to the police station. Their names are Coulomb and Prevost, and they have some connection with the Rue Ordener gang.

AMERICAN STUDENTS' LIBRARY

Music Pupils in Vienna Establish One in the Buchfeldgasse.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

VIENNA, April 1.—After many attempts the American musical students living in Vienna, numbering some 200, have succeeded in organizing a musical library, the headquarters of which are in the Buchfeldgasse.

At the initial meeting Mrs. Mason was elected President and Mrs. Funk of Chicago Treasurer.

GERMAN POLICE MISLED.

Prisoner Held at Halle for Murder Not Wanted in Chicago.

HALLE, Germany, April 1.—A man named Mason George Rabenalt, who was arrested here recently on a charge of murdering a widow and her child in a village in this vicinity, is reported to be wanted also by the Chicago police in connection with the alleged murder and robbery of a woman in Chicago.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 1.—Chicago police know nothing of Mason George Rabenalt, arrested in Germany for murder and said to be wanted for murder here. The police believe the German authorities got hold of handbills asking for the arrest of George Rabineau for the murder of Mrs. Kaufman. He has been arrested, tried, and sentenced to life imprisonment.

ACCUSE GOULD AT HAVANA.

Said to Have Broken Quarantine Laws with the Niagara.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, April 1.—Howard Gould, who is here with Kathryn Hutchinson, Dr. and Mrs. Frank Northrup, and Charles B. Dillingham, was served with a summons this evening by a Cuban Judge, charged with breaking Cuba's maritime health laws because his yacht Niagara arrived this morning from Jacksonville without the Cuban Consul's certificate of health.

Mr. Gould is liable to a fine not exceeding $5,000.

PRINCE OF WALES IN PARIS.

Alarmed by Flashlights—His Hostess, Mme. de Breteuil, an American.

PARIS, April 1.—The Prince of Wales arrived at the Gare du Nord to-night, and was received by the Prefect of Paris, M. Lépine; the Marquis and Marchioness de Breteuil, and several members of the English colony.

The Prince was greatly startled by a volley of flashlights with which the newspaper photographers greeted him. M. Lépine reassured the Prince, saying this was the first mark of esteem of the Parisian public. A large crowd outside the station cheered him as he entered an automobile and drove off to the Breteuil home.

The Prince is here incognito, under the name of the Earl of Chester. He will be received by President Fallières to-morrow.

France is showing the greatest interest in the visit of the young Prince, who is to spend several months in the French capital with the Marquis de Breteuil and his wife, who was Miss Lita Garner, daughter of the late William T. Garner, Commodore of the New York Yacht Club.

The Viscountess de Breteuil, sister-in-law of the Marquis, is also an American, formerly Miss Edythe Grant. The American colony in Paris, therefore, takes a lively interest in the sojourn here of the Prince of Wales, who comes with his tutor to complete his education in French.

The Marquis and Marchioness de Breteuil possess a fine mansion on the Avenue du Bois de Boulogne,, in which a suite of rooms has been placed at the disposal of the Prince.

The newspapers express the hope, in welcoming the Prince of Wales, that he, like his grandfather, King Edward, will become fond of Paris. The Marquis de Breteuil was for years a close friend of King Edward.

HOUSE PASSES WOOL BILL.

Underwood Tariff Measure Goes Through by Vote of 182 to 92.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 1. — The Democrats of the House placed the capstone on their tariff revision pyramid this afternoon by passing the Underwood Wool bill by a vote of 189 to 92.

Unless the Senate acts upon some of the Underwood bills, now pending in the Finance Committee, it is not the purpose of the House Democrats to tackle the revision of the cotton or any other untouched schedule of the Payne-Aldrich law.

Twenty Republicans voted for the Underwood bill to-day. They were. Akin, New York; Anderson, Lindbergh, Nye, Steenerson, Volstead, and Miller, of Minnesota; Hanna of North Dakota, Haugen and Hubbard of Iowa, Jackson, Murdock and Young of Kansas, Kent and Stevens of California, Lafferty of Oregon, La Follette and Warburton of Washington, Nelson of Wisconsin, Norris of Nebraska. One Democrat — Francis of Ohio — who comes from a big wool district and pledged his constituents to do his best to prevent a revision of the raw wool rates, voted against the passage of the bill. The Republican leaders were defeated on a motion to recommit the bill with instructions to report back the minority wool bill as a substitute.

Having passed the Sugar, Chemical, Steel, Wool, and Excise Tax bills, the Democratic leaders of the House will now devote their attention mainly to the appropriation bills and general legislation, postponing the remainder of their tariff programme until the Senate indicates what its attitude is going to be.

"The House will go ahead with the tariff," Mr. Underwood said, "if the Senate is willing to make it worth while for us to go ahead. It is now up to the Republicans of the Senate to pass some of the tariff bills which we have sent across to them."

WOMEN CABLE ASQUITH.

Sylvia Pankhurst, daughter of the leader of the English suffragette movement, spoke last night at Carnegie Lyceum on the reasons for the latest outbreak of the suffragettes in England, and at the close the audience voted to send a cable of sympathy to the suffragettes and another to Premier Asquith demanding votes for women.

There was a discussion before the vote was taken. An Englishman in the audience took exception to it as being a breach of national ethics. Several people wished to have the two messages voted upon separately, but they finally went through as a whole, only a baker's dozen of people remaining seated in a rising vote.

H. H. Knox moved the resolution, the message to the Woman's Social and Political Union, reading:

"Complete sympathy in your efforts for complete human liberty."

The one to Premier Asquith said:

"Give your brave Englishwomen the vote: the blood of the martyrs is the seed of the Church."

Our representative calls at home upon request.

GIMBELS---A Safe Source of Supply For Men's Easter Clothing

Most men, needing Spring Suits and Overcoats, will buy them before Easter, rather than after. Because Easter is one day in the year, at least, on which old and shabby rainment is taboo.

WILL SOON CONTROL, DECLARES MADERO

Mexican President Cables Optimistically to London—Asserts Rebel Forces Are Dispersing.

TO MAKE MILITIA AVAILABLE

Guardsmen's Bill Is Introduced at Washington—Airships Are Now Contraband.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, April 1.—Alfred Scott Witherbee of New York, who with his brother has large railway and financial interests in Mexico, sent yesterday a cable dispatch to President Madero asking correct information as to the situation in Mexico. He received to-day the following reply at the Savoy Hotel, where he is staying:

"Mexico City, April 1.

"The situation here at present is that there are small bands of rebels in the southern part of the State of Puebla. These bands are made up of Zapatista guerrillas, who are badly armed and are constantly being pursued by Federal forces.

"The State of Morelos is now pacified and all the rest of the republic excepting Chihuahua is calm.

"I have positive news from Chihuahua that the rebels are short of arms and ammunition, and are rapidly dispersing. The troops of Gen. Orozco have not been able to destroy the small column of Federals under Gen. Trucy Aubert, who will soon be reinforced from Torreon.

"The Government is now taking energetic measures to prevent the dissemination through the sensational press of false and alarming news, the publication of which has done much to disturb transquillity and cause anxiety to the people of Mexico.

"I expect very soon to control the situation completely.

"FRANCISCO I. MADERO."

LAW TO SEND MILITIA ABROAD.

Stimson and Guardsmen Move to Give the President Power.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Major Gen. Edward Young of Illinois arrived to-night to confer with Secretary Stimson regarding the preparedness of the National Guard in that State for going to Mexico in case of intervention. Adjt. Gen. Stewart of Pennsylvania has made a full report on the condition of his National Guard.

The most important development of the day, however, was the introduction of the bill to enable the National Guard to be taken out of the country as needed, thus supplanting a weakness in the present law. Representative Pepper of Iowa introduced the bill in the House, which will enable the President to send the militia into a foreign country in emergencies. The measure provides that the militia "may be used either within or without the territory of the United States for the unexpired time for which they are enlisted by their respective States, unless sooner relieved by the President."

To make his bill constitutional Representative Pepper found it necessary to provide for a change of the guardsmen from a "militia" into a "volunteer army" force. Mr. Wickersham held that the "militia" can only be used to execute the laws of the Union, suppress insurrection, or repel invasion.

Secretary Stimson has submitted to the House Military Committee the text of a proposed "draft act," whereby every National Guardsman receiving Federal pay would be obliged to become part of the armed forces of the United States.

While the War Department and the National Guard officers are thus anxious for legislation to give the President authority to send the militia out of the country, differences have arisen as to the control of these State organizations. The War Department insists upon having control, while guardsmen insist that the identity of the organizations must be preserved.

"If you want to go into a good business," said Major Gen. Leonard Wood to friends who called on him to-day, "learn to fly and then engage in aerial express business, which just now has a fine field of opportunity on the Mexican border in carrying in arms and ammunition for the rebels. There are aeroplanes now that carry eleven passengers and would represent a good many guns or cartridges in weight."

The occasion for Gen. Wood's jocose suggestion was the fact that to-day the Secretary of War put an embargo on the exportation of aeroplanes to the Mexican rebel forces. The insurrecto junta, which is the most ingenious of any connected with Mexico's numerous revolutions, found in New York a French aeroplane and shipped it under an innocent address to Orozco, leader of the rebel forces. It is suspected that the idea was to use it to fly over the regular forces and drop bombs.

The custom authorities at El Paso caught the shipment, whereupon orders were issued to refuse shipment to aeroplanes manifestly intended for military uses.

A shipment of 500 rifles and 20,000 rounds of ammunition destined to the Madero garrison at Ojinaga was held up to-day at Eagle Pass, and this was pointed out as a sign that this Government is not inclined to grant all applications which the Mexican Government makes to transport munitions of war across the line.

AUBERT SAVED FEDERAL ARMY.

Nagging Warfare Said to Have Hampered Orozco's Pursuit.

From a Special Correspondent of the Central News, London.

MEXICO CITY, April 1.—Dispatches from Jiminez via El Paso confirm the Government's contention that Gen. Aubert was successful in saving his command and diverting Orozco from his intended pursuit of Gen. Salas's routed army.

The correspondent of El Diario at Torreon says the report that the Federals were evacuating Torreon and the rebels taking the town was unfounded. He says that at that time there were no revolutionists within fifty miles of Torreon and that the Federal Army had been reorganized under Gen. Tellez, who was burning to avenge the defeat at Rellano.

Delayed dispatches from Jiminez assert that Aubert was conducting a brilliant guerrilla warfare, nagging Orozco, who was constantly threatened with attack from the rear.

"INTERVENTION SPELLS WAR."

Says Madero, Speaking to Congress—Has Faith in United States.

MEXICO CITY, April 1.—In opening the session of Congress to-night President Madero said concerning the relations between Mexico and the United States:

"The armed agitation which exists in various parts of the republic has given rise to rumors regarding the possibility of intervention in Mexico by the United States. These rumors have not succeeded in causing differences between the two Governments, nor has the Washington Government been influenced by those efforts.

"The respectable newspapers of the United States, their most notable statesmen and deepest thinkers, as well as those who have legitimate interests in Mexico, understand that the term 'intervention' is solely a euphemism that spells war in view of the fact that this people, in spite of all its deficiencies of adolescence, loves its independence and its dignity more than its own life.

"The Government of the United States has been the first to put an end by its own acts to the insensate idea of intervention, and has given reiterated proofs to the Government of Mexico of its profound spirit of justice and sincere respect for the rights of this country as a sovereign nation."

In reply to an announcement by Government authorities that El Heraldo, the newspaper suppressed several days ago, would be permitted to issue again, the publishers to-day made this statement:

"We find it impossible to resume publication, as members of our force are under arrest and others are still threatened with arrest, until our staff is alarmed and disorganized. Our advertisers are being menaced with boycott, our credit has been injured, and as our paper was suppressed without regard to constitutional guarantees or legal procedure, we cannot consider even government permission to resume publication as protection against a repetition of the arbitrary act that has not only destroyed El Heraldo but placed the entire business of the Heraldo Company in jeopardy."

REBELS ATTACK CUSTOM MEN.

One Killed While Guarding Madero Cattle Bound for United States.

Special to The New York Times.

LAS VACAS, Mexico, April 1.—Ten mounted Customs Inspectors, sent to the El Moro crossing of the Rio Grande River to supervise the exportation to Texas of a large herd of cattle, belonging to the family of President Madero, were attacked by rebel guerrillas while in camp Saturday night. One Inspector was killed, and another wounded, while fifteen of the band of sixty-five rebels were slain.

Believing the rebels had fled for reinforcements, the Inspectors took ammunition belts from the dead men and with their wounded comrade proceeded on foot to San Gregoria ranch, but found it had been sacked. In a donkey cart they hurried to Las Vacas, arriving here to-night. A squad of soldiers has been sent out to search for the rebel band, who have robbed several ranches near San Gregoria and westward along the border.

In connection with the attempt of the Madero family to get their cattle into the United States it is noted that last week thousands of dollars in Mexican currency and bonds have been sent to El Paso banks for safe keeping, and it is known that the Maderos are placing their wealth where it will be safe in case Orozco succeeds in overthrowing the Government. The Madero family is one of the wealthiest in Mexico. As late as last Saturday one bank at El Paso was sent $220,000 (gold) from this place and this is believed to represent the recent sale of Madero cattle in American markets.

No Plan to Land Troops, Says Germany.

BERLIN, April 1.—A dispatch from New York stating that Germany is preparing to land troops in Mexico is denied at the Foreign Office. It is stated by officials that there is no occasion for such action on the part of Germany.

FLEECE NEW YORKERS IN GUISE OF PRIESTS

Catholics of the City Warned Against a Band of Begging Orientals.

DR. OUSSANI DETECTS THEM

When One Breaks Out in a Prayer to Allah for Revenge on the Christian.

Catholics throughout the city have been warned by their priests and the religious press to turn from their doors those who pose as priests of the Orient and who are said to be coming here in great numbers, lured by the report that Catholics in the United States are generous and not given to investigation. The Rev. Dr. Gabriel Oussani, an Orientalist and Professor of the Sacred Scripture at the Archdiocesan Seminary at Dunwoodie, succeeded recently in driving out of the Syriac colony on the lower west side a band of these impostors.

The men became so active that Cardinal Farley assigned Prof. Oussani to make an investigation. He gathered a mass of information, and it was in pursuit of his work that he unearthed the lower west side band.

Prof. Oussani is a proficient linguist and was well equipped for the work. After a careful study he became convinced that the several men whose trail he crossed were working as one body. After much work in the foreign colonies of the east and west sides he came upon the rendezvous of sixteen in a tenement.

One of the men was arrayed as a Bishop, another as a priest, one as an Archdeacon, and the remainder with robes which suggested the monk, or more nondescript costumes which would led the observer to believe that they were clergymen or attached to some religious order. The "Bishop" was at first inclined to stand upon his dignity, but when questioned he finally admitted he was only a priest. He had been so poor, he said, that the clothes he wore had been given him by his Bishop before he left Syria. He added that he intended to throw them away soon.

"Where is your breviary?" Prof. Oussani asked the man. The latter fumbled under his greasy robe and brought out an equally dirty book. It proved to be a Book of Common Prayers in the Chaldean tongue. The "Archdeacon" did not know the specific duty of his order.

The men, never suspecting that their visitor could understand them, chattered away. The climax came when one of them broke out in a prayer to Allah to revenge his ill-fortune and smite the Christian dog. As a result of his visit the police were notified and the band had to move on. They were not arrested and are still operating, perhaps in some other part of the country.

There is reason to believe that this country is now the scene of activity of one or more syndicates of these beggars from Syria, Egypt, and Persia, and they are described as being made up of a mixture of Catholics of different rites, Mohammedans, and the renegades of other faiths. All are familiar with the rite they claim to represent, and they have enough ecclesiastic knowledge and lausible stories to impress those who are charitable and do not attempt, even by questioning, to investigate. They are supplied with forged, or even bona fide, letters from Church dignitaries on the other side of the world, and, while as a general thing they depend upon the poor for their harvest, some have won the confidence of unsuspecting clergymen here and are making money.

Special warning has been sent out against one man, a genuine priest of the Syriac rite. This man came over here, it is alleged, with the avowed intention of getting a fortune from "easy" Catholics, and then going back to his native land to live at his ease. He arrived here with nothing, but his expressed intention is to return with $50,000.

"I wish you would say that Cardinal Farley has issued a warning to Catholics against giving to these men or in other ways assisting them," said Prof. Oussani last evening. "They are unworthy of help, and this fact should be known to all Catholics."

Several of the Eastern Patriarchs are working in harmony with Prof. Oussani in the hope of breaking up the beggar bands.

INTERBOROUGH HAS NO FEAR OF STRIKE

Any Attempt by Stone to Force a Walkout Will Fail, Says Hedley.

BELIEVES MEN SATISFIED

Employes Joining Unions Being Discharged, Labor Men Declare—Company's Insurance Work.

Asserting that the employes of the system are satisfied and on good terms with the company the Interborough management is confident that there will be no strike on its lines. Frank Hedley, Vice President and General Manager of the company, declared yesterday that any attempt on the part of Grand Chief Stone of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers to bring about a walkout would fail absolutely.

Employes who have joined either the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers or the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes are being discharged, labor organization men say, with insufficient explanation as to the reasons for their dismissal. The discharges, the company states, have all been in the case of agitators, if not for working reasons. From the office of Theodore P. Shonts, President of the Interborough, the following statement was issued yesterday afternoon:

The Interborough's relations with Mr. Stone's organization have been unfortunate. Some years ago we had a contract with the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, which was violated by that organization, and which violation resulted in a perfectly causeless strike, inflicting hardship on the public and immense suffering to innocent employes.

The Interborough's policy is to have working conditions for its men equal or superior to those provided for similar classes of employes of other companies or in other parts of the country. We aim to lead in rate of pay for the same class of service under similar conditions. We are an individual unit. We have no relation with any other system or outside connections, so that, even from Mr. Stone's point of view, there is no reason why he should interfere. We are not like the electrical department of the New York Central or the New Haven or the Hudson & Manhattan, where the electrical motormen operate side by side with railroad engineers under railroad conditions. We have relief, accident, and insurance features for our men which is a purely voluntary organization, but which is largely patronized by the men, and through which they secure a bigger return in these respects for less money than the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and in addition to which the company subscribes a substantial sum of money annually to the general fund.

In a word, this attempted movement on the part of the brotherhood is not necessary even in the interests of its own organization, because we are an entirely separate and distinct unit, not having any relations with any other companies; it is not for the benefit of the employes, as we take as good care of them as is possible, and will do better as our ability increases, and, so far as the public is concerned, we think it is much better served by an organization which is a local and family affair by itself, rather than to be subject to outside influences of any kind or character.

When Mr. Hedley was told of Grand Chief Stone's statement that the raise in the pay of the motormen in the Hudson tubes granted by the Manhattan & Hudson Co. would affect 140 men, and that he would soon get for the motormen of the Interborough a raise of 35 cents a day, he said:

"The raise of the Manhattan & Hudson affects only ten high-speed men who run out to Manhattan Junction. Their conditions and hours were similar in many respects to those of the locomotive engineers, and there was some reason for the increase, but our conditions are different.

"Stone turned tail and ran, in 1905, and in less than three days when the strike failed he put the whole blame on Jenks and Pepper, the representatives of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and the Amalgamated Association, though he sat across the table from them when he told me what he was going to do.

"To save his face he took away the charter of Division 165 to make it appear that he expelled all the Brotherhood men who went on strike. He really gave orders that the men who lost their jobs through the strike should be taken back into the union in adjoining locals. It was a poor bluff.

"Everybody who goes to work for the Interborough knows that it is an open shop, and an open shop it is going to remain as long as I am here."

Any attempt on Grand Chief Stone's part to bring about a strike, he said, would fail completely.

"There are too many men on the system," he concluded, "who are satisfied, to make a strike posible."

One of the main reasons why the Interborough is not disposed to permit its employes to become members of the railway brotherhoods, though Mr. Shonts has admitted that on the railroads of which he is President practically all the men are unionized, is, it was learned yesterday, because the officials regard New York in a class by itself as far as transportation is concerned. A strike here, which tied up the Subway or elevated systems would be so disastrous to thousands of New Yorkers that no arrangement can be permitted which might give rise to a labor disturbance for some cause in which New York itself is not immediately concerned.

One of the officials said that if the motormen were members of the Brotherhood of Engineners there would be a risk that some day or other a dispute in the West with which the Interborough had absolutely no concern would cause a walkout here. Then because the Western engineers were dissatisfied the city's millions would have to walk.

But to give the employes of the Interborough some of the advantages of being unionized and at the same time to keep them in a separate organization, the Interborough has had in operation since Jan. 1, 1907, its own voluntary relief department, which any of its men or women employes, provided they are under 45 years of age and can pass a medical examination, may join.

This pays sick, death, and accident benefits, and will in cases of permanent disablement pension a member for life. No one is obliged to join the association, but if he does so he finds he has the benefits guaranteed to him by the company, which will make up any deficiency in the funds. The department is under the charge of a Superintendent, who is aided by an Advisory Committee. The President of the company is ex-officio Chairman of this, and three of its six members are chosen by the contributing members of the association by ballot. The other three are nominated by the Directors of the company.

The contributing members are divided into three classes. The first class is open to any employe of the company at 75 cents a month. In case of disablement by accident or sickness a beneficiary receives 50 cents a day for the first year and 25 cents a day for longer periods of incapacity, and his death benefit is $250. The second class is open to employes receiving $35 a month or more, and the rates are $1.50 a month. The sick and accident benefits are $1 a day for the first year and 50 cents a day for longer periods, while the death benefit is $500. The third class is for those receiving $75 a month or more, and brings in, in return for a monthly contribution of $3, during incapacity from sickness or accident, $2 a day for the first year and $1 a day for longer periods of disablement, and $1,000 in case of death.

It is also provided that under certain conditions employes may enter a higher class than that which their pay calls for, and may by making extra payments double their death benefits. When a member leaves the service he receives back as much of his contribution of the current month as has not been covered by his service, and he then loses any claim to a death benefit or incapacinty benefit. The cost of operating the department is borne by the Interborough.

The extent to which this department has been used by the employes of the company is shown by the figures for last November. In that month the total benefits paid were $7,069.75. Of this $415.25 went for fifty-seven accident claims, $3,654.50 for 236 sickness claims, and $3,000 for 5 death benefits.

The total payments from Feb. 1, 1907, to Nov. 30, 1911, were $298,988.02. Of this $21,074.25 was paid for accident disablement benefits, $144,051 for sickness disablement benefits, $14,877.50 for accident death claims, and $118,985.27 for sickness death claims.

WOMEN'S PASSOVER SUPPER.

Festival Is Observed by the Young Women's Hebrew Association.

Seder night service, with a Passover supper, for women who otherwise would not have been able to participate in this annual Jewish festival, was held last night at the Young Women's Hebrew Association. A similar service will be held to-night. Fifty women were invited to partake of the Passover supper on each occasion. The limited accommodations of the association building, at Lexington Avenue and 100th Street, prevented the entertainment of a large number. It is hoped that next year the Young Women's Hebrew Association will be housed in a new building.

Among those at the Passover supper last night were the eighteen young women who room in the association's dormitory. Several of these young women are orphans. Others are here from out of town or have parents in foreign countries. Many of the guests were working women, while others live in households where the customs dear to their faith are not observed.

The plans for the new building include accommodations in the dormitory for 150 girls who otherwise would have to live in furnished rooms. Each year Miss Sophia Berger, the superintendent, has been compelled to refuse the applications of at least 250 girls who applied for rooms.

The tables last night presented a pleasing spectacle, with Passover candles and flowers. The bitter herbs and other Passover dishes, symbolical of the servitude in and flight from the land of bondage, were at each of the tables with the Passover wine. A rabbi led the recital of the Passover service, partly in English and partly in Hebrew, while the choruses of the Passover songs were sung in the latter tongue.

A campaign of two weeks to raise the $200,000 still necessary for the $250,000 building planned by the association will be inaugurated a week from to-morrow, Abram I. Elkus and Rabbi Schulman will speak on this occasion. A meeting will be held to-morrow at the home of Mrs. Israel Unterberg, President of the association, 11 West Eighty-sixth Street, to perfect plans for this campaign. On Friday morning the junior committees for the campaign will meet to organize.

SMART SET CASE DELAYED.

Decision Reserved on Application for Injunction Against Col. Mann.

Justice Bischoff reserved decision yesterday on the application of John Adams Thayer for the appointment of a receiver for certain real estate owned by Mrs. Wray, daughter of Col. William D. Mann, publisher of Town Topics. He also reserved decision on Mr. Thayer's application for an order making permanent, pending litigation, an injunction restraining Col. Mann and certain of his associates, including Judge oJseph Duell, from disposing of the books of the Ess Ess Publishing Company.

Mr. Thayer bought the common stock of the Ess Ess Publishing Company and the publishing rights of the Smart Set Magazine a year ago from Col. Mann and his associates for $260,000. He also acquired the preferred stock of the company a month ago from Thomas W. Lawson. It is his contention that the profits on the preferred stock due to Lawson were not paid between 1900 and 1912, and that the real estate in the name of Col. Mann's daughter was bought with this money which he believes amounted to $150,000.

Col. Mann denies that Lawson was entitled to profits or that Thayer can claim any as his successor. Thayer, however, claims that the profits he says were withheld were quoted to him as the basis of his purchase of the common stock. Lawson has made no statement in the matter.

PATIENTS SAVED AT FIRE.

Doctors and Nurses Carry Sick to Safety from Sayre Hospital.

Fire started last night in the Sayre Hospital at 45 South First Avenue, Mount Vernon, and through the quick action of Dr. John J. Sinnott and his corps of nurses thirty patients were saved by being carried through suffocating smoke to the street. They were cared for at homes in the neighborhood.

Dr. Sinnott carried out four women and two babies, while other patients were taken out on stretchers. All the inmates were clad only in their night clothes, and they suffered much from exposure. Policeman Shire and Frank Christensen heard the moans of a man on the third floor, and they managed to reach the patient's room and save him from suffocation.

The fire was confined to the basement and first floor and was finally put out by the firemen after the building had been flooded with water.

1,150 PER CENT. FROM THE EASTER TIMES

CHARGING 50 CENTS A COPY

A Woman and a Sixth Avenue Newsdealer His Agents—Only a Few Papers Left.

HOLY Grail Easter Times for sale, 50 cents each. Newsdealer, 49th St., 6th Av.

This advertisement, published Sunday, brought to light the fact that there is a new speculator in the New York market. He lives in Woonsocket, R. I., but his business is conducted at Sixth Avenue and Forty-ninth Street. He deals exclusively in the sale of one article, and the profit on each sale is more than 1,100 per cent. He makes this enormous profit because he has cornered the market on the Easter edition of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Much mystery surrounds the working of this new plunger. His name is S. Davison, and he operated for a while from the Hotel Hermitage, in Seventh Avenue, near Times Square. His secret ambassador is a woman and his active agent is Samuel L. Levine, a newsdealer at Sixth Avenue and Forty-ninth Street. Levine, of course, shares in the profits, and for a very good reason. Levine has one of the most important news routes in the city, and he provides fifteen hotels with papers.

Levine personally carries three copies of THE TIMES to the home of Henry W. Taft, 36 West Forty-eighth Street, every day in the year. He likewise delivers a copy of THE TIMES to J. Borden Harriman, 35 East Forty-ninth Street. And three more every day to J. Morgan Wing, 58 West Forty-ninth Street. That is the first thing that one learns when one talks to S. L. Levine.

"Yes, Sir," said Levine yesterday to a TIMES reporter, "the Tafts take three TIMES every morning. I suppose Mr. Taft reads one and Mrs. Taft reads another, and maybe they send the third to Mr. Taft's brother. I don't know, and it's none of my concern, I guess."

"But how about the Easter edition of THE TIMES?" asked the reporter.

"Well, I'll tell you," began Levine. "A lady who is one of my customers came to my stand last Friday, and she asked if I would do a favor for her. She said there'd be something in it for me, and I agreed. She told me of a man named Davison, and she said that he'd bought up a lot of THE TIMES edition with the Holy Grail pictures, printed two Sundays ago. She asked me if I would sell them for her—that is, for this man, I suppose—and I asked how much I should charge.

"'Fifty cents each,' she said.

"'That's a bargain,' said I.

"And now I'm selling them for 50 cents each. It's easy."

At noon Levine had twenty-five copies of the Easter edition left. He said that his orders were to sell them for 50 cents each, and he said he could not let them go for a cent less. These papers were bought for 4 cents each, and each sale, therefore, represents a profit of 1,150 per cent.

APRIL FOOL AIDS SUFFRAGE.

He Told People to Call up "Mr. Man" at Women's Headquarters.

Some one played a big April Fool's Day joke on the Woman Suffrage party yesterday, but the women turned it to their own account and feel that they got some good advertising out of it.

It was a telephone joke. The women had not taken off their hats at the party headquarters, high up in the Metropolitan Tower, in the morning, before the telephone rang and a man's voice said:

"I was told to call up 5860 Gramercy, (the party telephone number) and that a Mr. Man wished to speak to me."

Now, "Mr. Man" is a minus quantity at the headquarters. Mrs. Woman and Miss Woman are to be found there in numbers, but only an occasional inferior ever appears. The calls to the telephone after that came thick and fast. At first the women explained that there was a mistake and that it was the Woman Suffrage party headquarters. Then Mrs. Helen Griffith, who has helped to stage the Bernard Shaw play, which is to be given with an all-professional cast at the Broadway Theatre, for the benefit of "Votes for Women," this afternoon, had an idea. When the next man called up she put it into execution.

"No," she said, in answer to the stereotyped demand, "Mr. Man is not in now, but he would like you to be up at the Broadway Theatre to-morrow afternoon and get tickets for the matinee some friends of his are going to give."

If more questions were asked regarding the play the answers were given in detail, telling that Shaw's "Press Cuttings" had never before been given in this country, etc., and that the man at the telephone must be sure and see it.

The women calculate that they advertised their play in this way to more than a hundred people, and they are saying that anyone else who likes can try to April Fool them in the same way.

STOCK SENT TO DEAD MEN.

Two Cases of Fraudulent Use of the Mail Found in Boston.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 1.—Using the American Express Company as a medium, a New York man sent an envelope containing stock certificates to two Somerville homes, addressed to men who were dead and awaiting burial. The envelopes were marked "Valuable papers, C. O. D., Delay unavoidable, $5." In each case relatives of the dead men, believing the envelopes contained papers of vital importance, paid the express company's agents, $5.

One envelope was sent to the home of Thomas Milmore, 45 Beacon Street, and another to the home of Charles T. Fryett, 82 Willow Avenue. In each case the envelope contained a certificate of five shares of a stock in the Porcupine Realty and Mining Company, of Welland, Ont., made out to H. J. Jordan. Enclosed was also a prospectus showing the location of the mining porperty. The letters were sent from 24 Stone Street, New York City. Both the relatives of Mr. Milmore and Mr. Fryett are positive that neither man purchased the certificate of stock.

The express company informed Chief of Police Kendall that there had been several similar letters delivered at Chelsea homes where the person to whom the letter had been sent was awaiting burial.

The Oak Street police are holding for the United States authorities a man who described himself as Lucius P. Wilson, a broker, of 445 West Delavan Street, Buffalo, N. Y. He is charged with violating Section 215 of the Federal criminal laws, which deals with using the mails for unlawful purposes.

The man was taken by Detective Gorovan of Oak Street from 24 Stone Street to the Post Office. There Post Office Inspector Nathan Noye made the complaint against him and he was locked up.

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 1.—Lucius P. Wilson is President of the L. P. Wilson Company of Boston, dealers in Cobalt mining stocks. He has been in business here for several years. The Post Office Inspectors in this district said to-night that they had no part in securing evidence against Wilson and know nothing of the charge against him. At Wilson's home in Delavan Avenue it was said he had dealt in Cobalt securities since the opening of that territory as a silver producing country and had handled nothing but legitimate enterprises.

WARNS TRACTION CREDITORS.

Special Master Notifies Them to File Their Claims by April 30.

When the property of the Interurban Street Railway Company, the New York City Railway Company, and the Metropolitan Street Railway Company went into the hands of receivers, it was announced that creditors who might have claims against the road, whether in suit or not, could not under equity practice participate in the proceeds of any property which might come into the hands of receivers unless they filed their claims with the Special Master and made proof of the same, or submitted the transcript of a judgment obtained in a State or Federal court, where a creditor might prefer to prove his claim.

The Special Master advertised for claims to be filed before Jan. 15, 1908, and then, in conformance with subsequent orders of the Circuit Court, they were received as late as March 1, 1910.

"Although more than two years was thus allowed to creditors in which to file their claims," says Special Master William Turner, in a notice that will be advertised all this month, "it appears that in numerous instances attorneys for creditors failed to file such claims, owing to their own ignorance or carelessness. In order that no person holding a valid claim which has been reduced to judgment should, because of his lawyer's negligence be deprived of the opportunity to share in whatever property there may be in the receivers' hands, the Special Master by authority of the court hereby gives notice that all such claims (which have not already been filed) may be filed with his office, Room 84, Cotton Exchange Building, Hanover Square, at any time prior to 4 P. M. on Tuesday, April 30, 1912."

SAYS TRUST RUINED HIM.

Retail Dealer's Plea for Tobacco Decision's Review Opposed.

The United Cigar Stores Company filed yesterday in the District Court a demurrer to the bill of review of the tobacco decision which was put in by Otto S. Jonas. A retail tobacco dealer, he declares that his business has been ruined by the tobacco monopoly and that the decree of dissolution and reorganization was not framed in accordance with the decision of the United States Supreme Court.

The demurrer alleges that it does not appear that Jonas had any interest in the equity suit against the American Tobacco Company, and that consequently he is not entitled to the relief he seeks. Moreover, it is asserted that Jonas has not shown any errors committed at the suit or in the drafting of the dissolution decree by the Circuit Court last November as would entitle him to a reversal or review of the decision.

Phonograph Hall for Times Square.

The ground floor of the Longacre Building, now being erected at the northeast corner of Times Square, has been leased, it was announced yesterday, to Landay Brothers, distributors for the Victor Talking Machine Company, at a rental aggregating $110,000. It will be fitted up in the style of the Grand Salon at Versailles, with many novel acoustical devices for phonographic exhibitions, and weekly concerts will be given there, including some for grand opera, and special entertainments for children.

POSTAL CHARGES TO BE INVESTIGATED

If Messages Were Diverted, Telephone Co. Says, It Was Contrary to Orders.

MACKAY BACKS COMPLAINT

Postal Officers Assume Full Responsibility for the Story Told in the Company's Magazine.

The New York Telephone Company started an investigation yesterday of the Postal Telegraph Company's charges that the Bell telephone companies in various parts of the Union are diverting the legitimate business of the Postal to the Western Union Telegraph Company by methods which the Postal calls illegal and underhand. When patrons of the Postal call up on the telephone and ask for that company for the purpose of telephoning telegrams they often are connected with Western Union offices instead, it is charged, and many instances are cited from all sections of the United States as proof that the practice is general.

As told in THE TIMES yesterday, a TIMES reporter called up the Bryant Exchange of the New York Telephone Company on Sunday night and asked to be connected with the main office of the Postal Telegraph Company. The operator in the exchange switched the reporter to "information," and the request for the main office of the Postal was repeated. A few seconds passed, and then followed the connection with the Western Union.

At the offices of the New York Telephone Company it was stated yesterday that all of the complaints referred to in the Postal's magazine are being investigated, and that a full report of that investigation will be made public in the near future. Pending the outcome of this investigation, the company had nothing to say except that if any of the telephone exchanges had diverted Postal customers to the Western Union as charged, this was in violation of specific instructions.

At the offices of the Postal Telegraph Company it was stated that the story of the Postal's charges, as printed in THE NEW YORK TIMES, was correct, and that the officers of the company, among them its President, Clarence H. Mackay, were responsible for the article entitled "Thou Shalt Not Steal," printed in the April issue of the Postal magazine, in which article the direct and unqualified charge of discrimination by the telephone company against the Postal is made.

Rare Values in Rare Oriental Rugs

Genuine Tabriz Rugs from the Heart of Persia

The annals of our Oriental Rug Department record no greater event than this offering of several hundred genuine Tabriz rugs.

Demand has become so great for Oriental Rugs that more are manufactured in bulk, on stereotyped lines, than are woven in the ancient, individual way which gives a rug its character and value.

These Tabriz Rugs are gems of the weaving art. They glow with the warmth of an Oriental sunset in one light, in another they shimmer with the silvery tints of dawn. Each Rug is a scroll representing Oriental myths, folklore and history, transposed by the imaginative weavers into poetry of color and form. The mysticism of the Orient colors each with a romantic sentiment that makes these Rugs a possession to be treasured from one generation to another.

WANTED MONTICELLO TO BE THE NATION'S

Uriah P. Levy, Who Owned Jefferson's Home, So Stated in His Will, Which Was Broken.

POPULAR PURCHASE IS URGED

Mrs. Martin Littleton Continues the Campaign to Present the Estate to the People.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 1—That Representative Jefferson M. Levy, the present owner of Monticello, the home and last resting place of Thomas Jefferson, now holds it in violation of the last will of his uncle, Uriah P. Levy, who left it to the United States, so it is asserted by Mrs. Martin W. Littleton, who recently started a movement for the purchase of Monticello by popular subscription.

It is now only a few weeks since Mrs. Littleton issued her first pamphlet urging the purchase of Monticello, but already the responses have been many. To-morrow she will issue another pamphlet in which the provisions of the will, which was later broken by the contest of the present owner of the estate, are set forth.

"I was running over some volumes the other day," said Mrs. Littleton to THE TIMES correspondent to-day, "when my eyes fell upon an old record showing that I am not the only one who believed the people of the United States should own Monticello.

"How curious it is that fifty years ago the then owner of Monticello, Uriah P. Levy, who was an officer in the United States Navy, should have died in the City of New York, and before dying should have made a wonderful will, a will to secure Monticello to the people of the United States. Part of this will, I found, is in the reports of the New York Court of Appeals, Vol. 733, Page 97. There is what the report says:

Uriah P. Levy, the testator, died in the City of New York, where he was domiciled, in March, 1852, leaving surviving a widow, brothers, and sisters, nephews, and nieces, his heirs-at-law and next of kin. He was the owner of a farm at Monticello, in Virginia, containing between 2,000 and 3,000 acres, (formerly the residence of President Jefferson,) and another estate called the Washington Farm, of about 1,100 acres, with the farming implements, cattle, &c., on other properties.

By his will, after other provisions, the testator devised his farm and estate at Monticello, together with the residue of his estate, real and personal, "to the people of the United States, or such persons as Congress shall appoint to receive it, in trust, for the sole and only purpose of establishing and maintaining, at said farm of Monticello, in Virginia, an agricultural school for the purpose of educating, as practical farmers, children of the warrant officers of the United States Navy, whose fathers are dead," &c.

But should the Congress of the United States refuse to accept of the bequest or take the necessary steps to carry out the testator's intention, then he devised the same "to the people of the State of Virginia instead of the people of the United States, provided they, by acts of their Legislature, accept it and carry it out as herein directed." And should the people of Virginia, by the neglect of their Legislature, decline to accept the said bequest, then he gave the same to certain Hebrew congregations in the cities of New York, Philadelphia, and Richmond, "provided they procure the necessary legislation to entitle them to hold said estate, and to establish an agricultural school at said Monticello for the children of said societies, who are between the ages of 12 and 16 years, and whose fathers are dead, and also similar children of any other denominations, Hebrew or Christian."

"The executors, it seems," explained Mrs. Littleton, "brought an action to 'obtain a judicial construction of parts of the testator's will,' and to construe its meaning. Of course, to you and me, the meaning does not seem in doubt at all. But, any way, the case went to the court, and there it was decided by a divided court, that Uriah P. Levy's wish, which was solmenly written in his will, must go for nothing; and the outcome of it was that Monticelle came into the possession of Jefferson M. Levy, instead of the people of the United States, to whom it had been left in trust.

"Uriah P. Levy wished the people to have both Monticello and also his sword."

Clarkson N. Potter was counsel for Jefferson M. Levy in the will contest.

The announcement that the patriotic Uriah Levy had anticipated by more than half a century the movement to make the people of the United States the owners of Jefferson's home has given additional impetus to the Monticello movement.

"The responses to my 'wish' have been immediate and overwhelming," said Mrs. Littleton to-day. "The letters I have received indorsing my views of this question have come from all over the country. One of the most cordial was sent by President Taft. I mailed copies of the brochure to the Democratic Governors of the States, to Senators and Representatives, to members of the Sons of the Revolution, the Daughters of the Revolution, Daughters of the Confedereacy, Virginia State Legislature, and many other organizations and individuals.

"One of the saddest facts in connection with the Nation's neglect of the memory of Jefferson," said Mrs. Littleton, "is the fact that even the ownership of his almost-forgotten grave is in dispute. It is claimed by the Randolph family, direct descendants of Jefferson, but it is in the heart of Mr. Jefferson Levy's property. Who owns Thomas Jefferson's grave? The question is shrouded in mystery. I shall undertake a pilgrimage to Charlottesville in an endeavor to clear up the question as far as may be done."

It is expected that the Daughters of the American Revolution in their coming congress here this month will pass a resolution demanding that the United States Government purchase Monticello. Other patriotic organizations are expected to follow suit.

TO AMEND DISCIPLINE.

Methodists Prepare Change in Their Attitude Toward Amusements.

KINGSTON, N. Y., April 1.—A decided innovation in Methodism was decided on by the New York Methodist Episcopal Conference to-day, when it adopted a memorial to be presented to the general conference, asking that Methodist discipline be amended as to amusements, by striking out references to dancing, card playing and theatre attendance, and substituting therefor the expression that Methodists shall not take any diversions "which we cannot take in the name of the Lord Jesus."

The conference also decided by a vote of 125 to 62 to ask the general conference to restore the five-year time limit for pastors, in spite of strong opposition led by Chancellor Day of Syracuse University and pastors of the metropolitan churches.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 1.—Ministers of the Southern New England Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church were appointed for the year today. The following are among the changes in the list of churches and pastors:

WANTS TREES IN STREETS.

Planting Association Invites Aid of Citizens' Societies.

The Tree Planting Association of this city has issued an appeal to all nature-loving citizens to celebrate the arrival of Spring this year by planting trees in the streets, parks, yards, and open places of the various boroughs. Land owners, churches, clubs, and hotels should all join the movement, the association thinks.

"In Manhattan trees may be freely and successfully planted in many parks north of Washington Square," the association says, "while, in the outlying boroughs, conditions invite the almost unlimited use of street trees for shade and for beautifying many sections, which are now barren and unattractive in appearance."

The actual work of planting the trees may be performed by the Park Board, the expense being charged to the property owner. If the planting is done by other parties, the work must be undertaken in accordance with the Park Department's printed regulations. Maples, elms, pine, or Spanish oaks, native or European lindens, Western and Oriental planes and sycamores are advised, and can be furnished by any reputable nurseryman. The association itself, of which Dr. Stephen Smith is President, will supply its tree bulletin free on application to its offices, 35 Nassau Street.

IMPROVED ROADWAY FOR RIVERSIDE DRIVE

As Far as Grant's Tomb This Summer, Mr. Stover Tells West End Folk.

DRIVING OUT THE SQUATTERS

Park Extension Will Also Oust the Columbia Yacht Club—To Roof Over the Railroad.

Park Commissioner Charles B. Stover attended the monthly meeting of the West End Association at the Hotel St. Andrew, Broadway and Seventy-second Street, last night, and was asked to tell the members, practically all of whom live in or near Riverside Drive and Riverside Park, what his intentions are as to the improvement of the Drive and Park. In making his reply Commissioner Stover mentioned a few other things, one of them being a direct contradiction of a member of the association, who wanted to know why no apparent effort is ever made to clean a certain part of the park. When asked this last question the Commissioner said: "I don't believe it." At this point John C. Coleman, who presided, diplomatically managed to switch the discussion to another topic and the incident passed without further notice.

Mr. Stover began by pointing out that he is Park Commissioner for all Manhattan and Staten Island, and that therefore it should be remembered that no matter how dear to his heart the Drive and Riverside Park may be, he has to give considerable attention to other parts of his territory. Referring to the condition of Riverside Drive, he said that this is in a large part due to the heavy automobile omnibus traffic over it, a traffic that he favors and believes should be maintained.

Funds for Riverside Drive.

"Instead of doing away with the auto-omnibus," he said, "let us make the Drive up-to-date and make it a road that will stand the traffic. I want to say to you that I believe we will be able to do this, and that insofar as this improvement concerns the Drive from Seventy-second Street to Grant's Tomb we will make it a fact before the middle of the coming Summer. I am inclined to believe that the Board of Estimate is going to give us sufficient funds to lay down a road that will stand this traffic."

Mr. Stover then briefly referred to the different sorts of roads that might be built, adding that, no matter what kind of material is used in the making of the surface, the foundation for the road must rest on a sure concrete foundation at least five inches thick. He told of the Park Department's tests of various road materials, many of which, he said, had not been found equal to the claims made for them.

Mr. Stover next spoke of the 2,500 Japanese cherry trees presented to the Park Department by the Japanese Government. These trees, he said, arrived in New York earlier in the day and will be delivered to the department this morning.

"They will be taken to the storage plant at Ninety-seventh Street to-day," said the Commissioner, "and will be carefully inspected. If we find that they are not in good condition from disease or other defects, you will see a big bonfire up there some time to-morrow.

Will Plant the Trees.

"If the trees are all right we will find a place to plant them. I had been of the opinion that a good place to plant these cherry trees would have been around Grant's Tomb, and so I wrote to Gen. Horace Porter, the President of the Grant Memorial Association. I have received a reply in which Gen. Porter states that the association is emphatically opposed to the planting of the trees about the tomb.

"Now, these trees are not of the stunted sort, but grow to heights of twenty-five feet, and are in every way regular cherry trees, except in the matter of fruit, which is not of the eatable sort, thereby eliminating any danger so far as the small boy is concerned."

Mr. Stover then went back to Riverside Drive and Park proper and paid his respects to the squatters, some of whom have been living for years along the Riverside Park water front. The work of extending Riverside Park to the 1868 bulkhead, he said, is well under way and as the work proceeds the squatters must go.

"Only to-day an old squatter," he said, "who had lived in a tin roofed hut for more than fifty years had to clear out because of the fill-in. Every other squatter will meet similar fate. The Columbia Yacht Club is also doomed to meet the fate of the squatters when the fill-in gets to where the club house is located. When the reclamation is complete the plan is to roof over the railroad tracks and extend the park clear to the bulkhead line."

In answer to a question about West End Avenue the Commissioner said that a prominent woman's organization wants the grass plots filled in, and then added that another organization entertains a directly opposite view of the matter. He said the courts do not deal strictly enough with offenders who persist in violating the Park Department rules, and added that the citizens do not uphold the department as they should in its effort to enforce the law.

JUDGES AWAIT DIX'S ACTION.

Bill to Alter State House for Court of Appeals Now Before Him.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 1.—There is much interest in the action of Gov. Dix on the bill which has passed both houses of the Legislature for the conversion of the old State House into a building suitable for the use of the Court of Appeals. A member of the court said to-day:

"The Court of Appeals is at present occupying quarters in the Capitol that were originally intended for legislative use. They are poorly adapted for court purposes and are altogether too small. Several of the Judges have no private offices at all, and others have little alcoves which are hardly better than box stalls. Stenographers and Clerks have their desks scattered about promiscuously in such a way that it is practically impossible for the Judges to have any privacy for their chamber work.

"The State House is a building which, in exterior design and internal arrangement, admirably lends itself for the purpose for which it is desired."

Hearing on Transfer Bill April 16.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 1.—Gov. Dix will give a hearing on the Stilwell bill providing for transfers on street railways in Manhattan and the Bronx on April 16 at noon.

Japanese Cherry Trees Here at Last.

Twenty-six hundred dwarf cherry trees sent by the Mayor of Tokio, Japan, as a gift to this city, are now at the Custom House, and will soon be planted in the vicinity of Grant's Tomb. They will be carefully examined by experts from the Government Agricultural Bureau, the State Agricultural Bureau, and the Park Department before they are set out.

NO EXTRA ALBANY SESSION.

Gov. Dix So Announces After Discussing New Prison Contract.

ALBANY, April 1.—Gov. Dix announced to-night that he would not call an extra session of the Legislature. The announcement was made after a meeting of the State Commission on New Prisons, at which the Harlem prison project was discussed.

The Legislature failed to approve the recommendation of the Governor that the Wingdale site for the prison be abandoned, and the Executive had intimated that he might call an extraordinary session to take up this and other subjects.

Before the commission met to-day Attorney General Carmody gave out an opinion to the effect that the commission has the authority to direct a cessation of work on the new prison, and Gov. Dix sent a letter to Col. Joseph F. Scott, Superintendent of State Prisons and Chairman of the commission, announcing that he would veto the appropriation of about $400,000 for continuing the work at Wingdale if the commission failed to cancel the contract.

The commission decided, in view of all the circumstances, that it has the power to order further construction work stopped, but not to cancel the contract. Gov. Dix thereupon announced that work on the prison would be suspended indefinitely.

$10,000,000 Bond Issue by Erie.

ALBANY, April 1.—The Public Service Commission to-day authorized the Erie Railroad Company to issue $10,000,000 in three-year 5 per cent. gold notes. The proceeds are to be used for double track construction and grade reduction between Marion, Ohio, and North Judson, Ind., and on the Meadville Division.

When you buy a motor car —look for a long wheelbase

The Cole has 122-inch wheelbase—every inch for comfort. You don't want a car with a short wheelbase. Long wheelbase makes a car ride easily over the roughest roads and provides for a big, roomy, luxurious body. But these are not its chief merits.

The Cole is big, handsome and rich in appearance. Its long-stroke motor has a world of power. Nor are these its most noteworthy qualities.

The Cole "stands up."

That is the important thing. It is the car for long life. You cannot wear it out.

Drive a Cole around the world half a dozen times and you will not be asking too much of it.

The Cole is built and designed to defy the mileage. Every Cole ever built is still "in the running" and giving a perfect account of itself.

The long wheelbase and big wheels take up and absorb road jars and save the car from the rack of rough going.

The Cole unit power plant has three-point suspension which saves the motor from twists, jars, shocks and other distortions. It is the only car of its power and price possessing three-point motor suspension.

The bearings of the Cole motor are so large as to be almost wear-proof.

And the construction of the frame, springs, wheels and body is as strong and staunch as it can be. Every detail of Cole construction is aimed at long life, absolute safety and low upkeep costs.

The Cole is for the man who buys for future years as well as present comfort.

The Cole is made in 7 models—2 to 7 passengers. Price $1885. Let us give you a demonstration.

OLD GUARD TO RUN STATE CONVENTION

No Roosevelt Planks Are in the Republican Platform Barnes Is Preparing.

DELEGATES NOT INSTRUCTED

And No Effort Will Be Made at Rochester to Indorse the President for Renomination.

Republican State Chairman William Barnes, Jr., who will be re-elected to his present position in the Republican State organization when the Republican State Committee meets to-day, is planning to make the Spring Convention next week at Rochester, at which the Republicans will elect their four delegates at large to the National Convention, an epoch-making affair.

Contrary to every precedent, the Rochester Spring Convention will last two days. The delegates from up-State are nearly all uninstructed. No effort will be made to adopt resolutions indorsing President Taft for a renomination. Mr. Barnes will have the convention work out his own thought—that the candidate is merely an incident and that the platform is the whole thing. By insisting on this policy Mr. Barnes expects to focus the attention of Republicans throughout the country on the Rochester affair, and by doing so start the Republican ball rolling in what he considers the right direction, which would be as far from "my policies" as it could possibly roll.

Mr. Barnes will be elected Chairman of the Committee on Resolutions if the plans are carried out which he has devised. As such he will propose to the committee the draft of a set of resolutions which he has been assisted in preparing by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University. These resolutions provide for a strictly safe and sane platform, calculated to inspire confidence with the business interests of the country, to be adopted at the Republican National Convention at Chicago. It will be a platform on which Col. Roosevelt could not possibly stand without going back on everything he has said on the stump, but it is understood that President Taft is aware of the tenor of the Barnes resolutions, and that he has approved of the report the Committee on Resolutions will hand down.

The whole matter, according to Mr. Barnes, will be threshed out on the floor of the convention, and some of the speeches have already been prepared. Mr. Barnes expects to make the Rochester Convention a red letter day in Republican party history.

The Old Guard in Control.

When the State Committee meets at noon to-day, Mr. Barnes will be re-elected Chairman of the Committee. All the other officers will be re-elected as well. Mr. Barnes had talks yesterday with former Governor and Republican State Chairman Benjamin B. Odell, with ex-Lieut. Gov. Timothy L. Woodruff, who has just come up on top again in the Republican organization of Kings County, and with some of the leaders in this county who have not been regarded as over friendly to the régime of Samuel S. Koenig, the present President of the New York County Republican Committee. Everything at Republican State Headquarters indicated that Mr. Barnes was as firmly in control as ever, and that the Old Guard was in a position to ride rough shod over any adherents of Progressive policies who might show their heads at Rochester.

Representative Daniel J. Riordan of the Eighth Congressional District denied strenuously yesterday a statement attributed to Col. Roosevelt on his return from the Western trip late on Sunday night. At that time Col. Roosevelt was quoted as saying that Congressman Riordan had declared the primary elections in this city worse than anything Tammany would ever have attempted in the worst days of corruption this city had ever seen.

"Not only have I never said anything of the kind to Col. Roosevelt or to any of his friends, but I never said it to anybody," said the Congressman. "I remained in my own assembly district all day long. I never saw any trouble at all, and there was absolutely nothing that could have prompted me to make such a remark on my experiences or observations on Primary Day. If Col. Roosevelt reiterates his assertion that I ever said anything of the kind I am willing to make an affidavit to the contrary."

COLONEL'S SOUTHERN PLANS.

Louisville Speech to be the First of Series of Attacks on Taft.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., April 1.—Col. Roosevelt's tour in the South, in which he will bitterly attack the use of Federal patronage by the Taft managers, was discussed at a conference between the Colonel and his campaign manager, Senator Dixon, this afternoon. When the Senator left Sagamore Hill headed for New York he talked freely, asserting that the tactics of the opponents of Col. Roosevelt had thoroughly aroused the candidate, and that he was preparing to make a most aggressive fight in the Southern tier of States.

"Col. Roosevelt will make the principal address of his tour in Louisville on Wednesday night," he said, "and it is perfectly safe to say that it will be one of his most aggressive utterances since the campaign opened. The Taft managers are giving publicity to one falsehood after another. In the Northern States we are getting more delegates than they are, although the newspapers won't let the people know the truth."

Col. Roosevelt in his Louisville speech, it is understood, will not only assail President Taft for his connection with William Barnes of New York, Senator Lorimer, and others, but will go thoroughly into the Southern situation. For weeks his campaign managers have been collecting information concerning what they declare is the "criminal use of Federal patronage."

That a bitter fight will be waged between the Roosevelt and Taft forces over the Southern delegates and other contested delegations was made more evident to-day when Senator Dixon said that there is a hot fight for control of the National Committee, which will pass upon contests. He declared solemnly that the Roosevelt faction confidently expected to control the National Committee.

"We are not in a losing fight," he said. "When it comes to a show-down you will find that there are many delegates claimed by the Taft managers whom the National Committee will refuse to recognize. Why, in one Virginia district four negroes and two Postmasters got together and instructed delegates for President Taft. In that same district there was a convention attended by fully 160 Roosevelt supporters, and delegates were chosen favorable to the Colonel. The newspapers are asserting that the Taft forces won out."

BOTH SIDES CLAIM VERMONT.

Taft and Roosevelt Managers Sure of the Delegates.

MONTPELIER, Vt., April 1—The Vermont delegation to the Republican National Convention was claimed to-day by both the Taft and Roosevelt leaders, after a Sunday canvass of the result of the caucuses on Saturday.

The Taft managers declared to-day that the two district conventions on Apr. 9 would elect Taft delegates and that the State convention the next day would take similar action. Judge Ernest W. Gibson of Brattleboro, Chairman of the Roosevelt committee, was equally sure that the second district convention at Montpelier on April 9, would choose Roosevelt delegates, that the State convention would also favor his candidacy and that there was a fighting chance in the first district convention at Burlington.

CLARK A MINUTE AHEAD.

His Illinois Petition Filed at 8:05; Wilson's at 8:06.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 1.—The petition of Champ Clark for nomination for President at the Illinois State Primary on April 9 was presented to-day and was given first place on the Democratic Presidential ballot by Secretary of State Rose. Gov. Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey will have second place.

The Clark petition was filed at 8:05 and the Wilson petition at 8:06 A. M.

Col. Roosevelt will have second place on the Republican ballot, his petition being filed this morning. President Taft's petion was filed on Saturday.

SOCIALIST MAYOR DEFEATED.

Citizens' Full Ticket at Flint, Mich., Is Victorious.

FLINT, Mich., April 1.—John A. C. Menton, Socialist Mayor of Flint, was defeated for re-election to-day by Charles S. Mott, running on an Independent Citizens' ticket, supported by both Democrats and Republicans.

All other candidates on the Citizens' ticket were elected.

Roosevelt to Speak in Pennsylvania.

PHILADELPHIA, April 1.—The campaign in Pennsylvania for delegates to the Republican National Convention will be enlivened by Col. Theodore Roosevelt, who, it is announced, will make three speeches in this State before the primary election on April 13. He will speak at Pittsburgh on April 9. On April 10 he will address a mass meeting in this city, and on the following night he will speak at Scranton.

Iowa Socialists Name Ticket.

DES MOINES, April 1.—I. S. McCrillis, Socialist candidate for Mayor in the Des Moines primary, has been nominated as candidate for Governor by a referendum vote of the Socialist Party of Iowa, according to announcement to-day. A full State ticket has been placed in the field.

COURT CALLS IN VAIN FOR THE HYDE CASE

Ex-City Chamberlain and Counsel Refuse to Appear to Answer Bribery Charge.

PROHIBITION WRIT UP TO-DAY

If Defense Carries Case to Court of Appeals Trial Will Probably Be Blocked Until November.

Following out his previously announced intention, Charles H. Hyde, ex-City Chamberlain, did not present himself yesterday before Justice Davis, in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court, for trial on the charge of bribery, nor did his counsel, Max D. Steuer, appear to make answer in his behalf when the case was called. Both Mr. Hyde and his attorney take the position that the criminal proceedings have been temporarily nullified by the writ of habeas corpus obtained from Justice Woodward in Brooklyn on Thursday. Arguments were to have been heard on the writ on Saturday, but District Attorney Whitman procured a writ of prohibition from the Appellate Division of the First Department restraining Justice Woodward from proceeding further in the matter, on the ground that he had no jurisdiction to issue the writ of habeas corpus in the case of a prisoner confined in another county.

Arguments on the writ of prohibition will be heard to-day before the Appellate Division of the First Department, which will decide whether or not Justice Woodward had authority to issue the habeas corpus writ. Should the court decide that he had no jurisdiction in the matter, Mr. Steuer asserts, it will be acting in direct contradiction to a decision rendered in the case of the People versus Patrick by the Appellate Division of the Second Department, which sustained the action of a Justice of the Supreme Court in Brooklyn in issuing a writ of habeas corpus in the case of a prisoner confined in New York County.

When the case was called yesterday the courtroom was crowded to suffocation by a throng of interested lawyers and laymen. In addition to these, 200 of the special panel of 500 talesmen called in the case were on hand to be examined, as well as a gathering of the Grand Jury panel which had been summoned.

Whitman Addresses the Court.

At the prosecutor's table was seated District Attorney Whitman, accompanied by his assistant, Mr. Clark. No one was at the table usually reserved for defendant and counsel. When the case had been called three times in succession and it became evident to every one that the defendant was not going to put in an appearance, Mr. Whitman arose and addressed the court.

"Your Honor," said Mr. Whitman, "the people are ready to proceed with this case. However, I deem it my duty to inform the court that a writ of habeas corpus was obtained from Justice Woodward, in the Appellate Division of the Second Department, by the defendant's counsel, and then a writ of prohibition was obtained by the District Attorney in the Appellate Division of the First Department. The last writ, your Honor, has been served upon the defendant's lawyer. The writ of habeas corpus was returnable before Justice Woodward last Saturday, but his Honor in Brooklyn decided to put the matter over until the merits of the writ of prohibition could be looked into by the Appellate Division of the First Department. I wish to repeat, however, your Honor, that the people are ready to proceed with this case."

There was a long pause, and all the entrances were scanned for a glimpse of the defendant. Both Justice Davis and the District Attorney evidently expected that Hyde or his attorney would make some reply to Mr. Whitman's challenge, but there was none forthcoming. At length Justice Davis spoke:

"In view of the pending proceedings in the Appellate Division of the First Department and the action of Justice Woodward in Brooklyn, I adjourn this case until one week from to-day."

As soon as the court had announced the postponement of the trial the District Attorney jumped to his feet and urged that bail should be set in the case.

"Your Honor," remarked Mr. Whitman, "the defendant, Hyde, is at present on parole. Your judgment as to whether he should surrender himself and give bail or not may be exercised."

To this Justice Davis replied, "We shall not interfere with the action of the other Justice." The court then excused the special panel of talesmen for one week.

Argument on Writ To-day.

When the arguments on the writ of prohibition are heard to-day an interesting legal fight is expected. It was learned last night that Mr. Steuer will not only declare that Justice Woodward was justified in issuing the writ of habeas corpus, but he will dispute the authority of the Appellate Division of the First Department to question the action of the Brooklyn Justice.

Should the court decide that the habeas corpus writ was irregularly issued, Mr. Steuer, it was said yesterday, would appeal from the decision, not only on constitutional grounds, but also on the ground that the court had no right to issue the writ of prohibition in the first instance. A writ of prohibition, he will contend, unlike a writ of habeas corpus, is not a great common law remedy. It is subject to legislative restrictions which cannot be made to apply to the habeas corpus writ. Under Section 2,093, Page 572 of the Code of Civil Procedure, he will point out, the provision is made that a writ of prohibition to restrain a Supreme Court Justice from exercising a judicial function must be obtained from the Appellate Division of the department in which the Justice is sitting, except in such instances where the Appellate Division of that department is not in session. When District Attorney Whitman got the writ of prohibition on Friday from the Appellate Division in Manhattan, Mr. Steuer will argue, that body had no right to issue the writ as long as the Appellate Division in Brooklyn was in session.

Mr. Steuer, it was declared, will attempt to show that the District Attorney did exactly what Mr. Whitman accuses Hyde's counsel of having done in the matter of the habeas corpus proceeding—making application for a writ of prohibition to a court which did not have jurisdiction. Mr. Steuer will also contend that the habeas corpus writ is perfectly regular and that the statute which attempts to limit the power of a Supreme Court Justice to issue a writ of habeas corpus is unconstitutional.

Upon both of these grounds, friends of Mr. Hyde said, Mr. Steuer will take an appeal in behalf of his client should the court hand down a decision against Hyde. This will carry the case to the Court of Appeals and will leave the writ of habeas corpus issued by Justice Woodward still in force. It is hardly possible that the case will be heard and decided at Albany before November, which will prevent Hyde from being brought to trial before Justice Davis during the present April term.

MRS. NOBLE MARRIED.

Woman Tried for Murder Now Wife of Mining Engineer.

When the case of Gertrude Leighton, a 14-year-old girl, daughter of Capt. Thaddeus Leighton, 83 Vernon Avenue, Long Island City, was called before Justice Robert J. Wilkin in the Children's Court in Jamacia, it was learned that she had been taken in charge by her sister, formerly Mrs. Josephine Leighton-Noble, whose family has figured in a series of tragedies. She is now the wife of Archibald E. Spriggs, a mining engineer of Guatemala and ex-Lieutenant-Governor of Montana. The marriage took place last March at St. Mary's Church in Long Island City.

On March 12, 1904, her husband, Paton Noble, was killed in his home at Long Island City by two revolver wounds. His wife was arrested on a charge of murder in the first degree. Her defense was that, while she was unpacking a trunk with her husband on their return from a vacation, she accidentally fired off the revolver. The revolver was self-acting, and as she involuntarily clenched it after the first shot, it fired again. This explanation was accepted by the jury and a verdict of aquittal followed.

Attorney Shibley, a lawyer for the defense, shortly after the trial married Leonore Leighton, a sister of the defendant. A few years after their marriage Shibley killed his wife and committed suicide. They left one child, a son, who was a year or two later fatally shot in Central Park by an insane man.

PASSOVER FOR SOLDIERS.

Permitted to Attend Supper in Tuxedo Hall by Special Order.

For the first time the Jewish soldiers and sailors celebrated the beginning of the Passover in a body away from camp, at Tuxedo Hall, last night, under the auspices of the Patriotic League of America. By an order issued by Secretary Stimson, the Jewish soldiers stationed in the army posts around New York received furloughs. There were soldiers from Forts Jay, Slocum, Totten, Hamilton, Wadsworth, and Wood and a few sailors from the Brooklyn Navy Yard.

Just as the celebration was about to begin it was learned that seventeen soldiers at Governors Island had been put on guard duty and could not come. After much telephoning and telegraphing, special permission was obtained for them to leave.

The celebration began with the Seder service, Rabbi Hausmann officiating. Then the supper began. Joseph Barondess was the toastmaster and the speakers were John E. O'Brien, Lieut. Lewis Landes of the Hebrew American Brigade, and Rabbis Hausmann, Nissim, and Behar. Mrs. A. Baran recited a poem entitled "Advance."

Letters commending the league were received from President Taft, Secretary Stimson, Gov. Dix, and Mayor Gaynor.

SHOOTING MUSICIAN HELD.

New York Showman First Released and Then Detained in Montreal.

MONTREAL, April 1.—The police discharged from custody this afternoon Carl R. Hemmans, member of the orchestra of a New York theatrical company, who was arrested yesterday for shooting three brothers, Edgar, Herbert, and Harold Chapman.

Hemmans's freedom was brief. The Crown Prosecutor declined to acquiesce in the discharge, and the musician was accordingly again taken into custody.

"There is no reason why this man, simply because he is an American, should not be compelled to await the investigation like any Canadian prisoner," the Prosecutor declared to Judge Lanctot.

The Chapmans, it developed, attacked Hemmans in mistake for another man who, they said, had made an offensive remark to a woman. They broke into the musician's room at the Savoy Hotel and were beating him, when he got his pistol and shot all three. Edgar and Herbert Chapman may die.

PLAN FOR NEW YORK A GREAT ART GALLERY

MUST BE IN CENTRE OF CITY

Between the Pennsylvania Station and Central Park the Quarter Favored—No Place Now for Large Exhibitions.

Plans for the proposed building of the National Academy Association were discussed by representatives of the ten art societies belonging to it at a dinner at the Salmagundi Club galleries, 14 West Twelfth Street, last night. The building, it is hoped, will be built in a very short time, and, according to the artists interested, will be placed on one of the great thoroughfares of the city, within easy access to the public, somewhere between the new Pennsylvania Station and the southern extremity of Central Park.

It must not be a skyscraper and must be so built that light can reach the building from every possible angle. It must be absolutely fireproof, and the surroundings must be under such control, either by purchase or permanent lease, that no other building can at any time infringe on its artistic beauty.

Alexander T. Laer, President of the American Water Color Society, was toastmaster of the dinner and the guests and speakers were:

There were great cheers for John W. Alexander when he rose to speak on the aim of the National Academy Association.

"Our aim," he said, "is to do in every possible way what we can to promote the art of this Nation. The difficulty is to find a place in this city where a good art exhibition can be given. Ninety per cent. of all kinds of art in this country is the creation of New Yorkers, but our exhibits go to other cities.

"To-morrow," he continued, "I expect to go to Pittsburgh to act as judge there of a great exhibition of European pictures. These very pictures rested here in this city in their cases for three days, but were not accessible to New Yorkers because there was no place to show them off. The new building, however, will remedy the situation."

Herman McNeil spoke of the needs of floor space for works of the sculptors in the new building. He was assured that his branch of art would not be forgotten.

William A. Boring proposed getting a temporary building in the centre of the civic centre of the city, so as to give the public a chance to educate itself to the point where later it could appreciate a permanent building. This, he thought, should be built somewhere in the upper section of the city.

"The new building must in no way be offensive, artistically," declared Ernest Flagg. "The control of the surroundings must be secured, so that any one standing on the steps of the new building will not be compelled to look at anything abominable, constructed for commercial purposes. It must be a low building and safe in every way. Its light should never be in danger of being shut off, and it must be on a main artery of travel."

AIRSHIP PATENTS AFFECTED.

New York Inventor's Application Before Wrights Is Sustained.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—A decision, which may affect the patents of the Wright brothers, Curtis, and other aeroplane inventors, was made to-day by the District of Columbia Court of Appeals, when it reversed the action of the Commissioner of Patents and authorizes the reinstatement of an application of Hugo Mattulath of New York for a patent on a flying machine filed Jan. 8, 1900. When the application was examined in 1900 the official report on it read:

> No successful effort has yet been made to rise from the earth's surface by means of an aerial vessel unprovided with a balloon. The practicability of the apparatus is so problematical that actual demonstration of operativeness will be required before the grant of a patent.

Mattulath died shortly afterward, and it was not until 1909 that his widow discovered the application. She then through an attorney filed an application to revive, but this was denied by the patent authorities. Several years after Mattulath applied for his patent the Wright brothers perfected their biplane. Curtiss also invented one. Litigation between the two brought to light the fact that Mattulah's applicaion contained specifications for a wing-tip flexing device.

Ex-Justice Cohen's Claim Allowed.

Controller Prendergast approved yesterday the claim of ex-Justice William N. Cohen for $85,000 for services as special counsel in the proceedings to review special franchise assessements against a dozen or more important companies. As special counsel, Judge Cohen was instrumental in bringing in to the City Treasury $1,630,415. His services on these assessments have extended over a period of about one year. Since his appointment Judge Cohen had previously received in special counsel fees for work on special franchise assessments a total sum of $50,000.

BLOW TO ROOSEVELT.

Maryland's Primary Law May Give Taft a Solid Delegation.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 1.—The politicians to-day woke up to the fact that the Presidential Primary bill, just passed by the Legislature and so ardently fought for by the Roosevelt men, is the big stick which Taft leaders say will effectually kill any vestige of chance which the Colonel had of getting even a part of the Maryland delegates. Col. Carrington, chieftain of the Roosevelt forces in Maryland, said of the new law:

"It's better than no law; I think it's better than the present law, but it is not the law that we wanted."

It is declared that the law destroys the individuality of the various districts. Instead of allowing a district to name its apportionment of delegates to the National Convention, the entire sixteen delegates will now be named by the State Convention. Therefore, a control of sixty-five delegates to the State Convention will name a solid delegation to the National Convention.

Taft men say that beyond the shadow of doubt they can control the State Convention and instruct the party's delegates from Maryland to the Chicago Convention.

CRANE HEADS TAFT LIST.

First on the Massachusetts Presidential Primary Ballot.

BOSTON, April 1.—A list of candidates for all the places on the Massachusetts delegation to the Chicago Convention pledged to President Taft and to be voted on at the State primaries on April 30 was filed with the Secretary of State to-day. The list is headed by United States Senator W. Murray Crane.

The time for filing such nomination papers expires to-morrow night, while candidates for delegates have until Thursday to withdraw their names or make substitutions.

Papers with the necessary indorsement of names in favor of George Fred Williams as a delegate at large for the Baltimore Convention were also filed. Under the provisions of the Primary act candidates for delegates have the right to place an eight-word comment after their names, and following that of Mr. Williams were the words: "For the people, primaries, and without machine dictation."

MACHINERY PLANTS MERGE.

Five New England Concerns Form a $2,500,000 Corporation.

Special to The New York Times.

WORCESTER, Mass., April 1.—One of the biggest industrial deals in the history of New England, involving $2,500,000, was announced to-night. It includes the combining of five of the largest machinery plants in the country into the Reed-Prentice Company, a new corporation. The five concerns to go into the merger are the F. E. Reed Company, manufacturers of lathes; the Prentice Brothers Company, manufacturers of geared head lathes and drills; the Reed Foundry Company, manufacturers of heavy machinery; the Reed-Curtis Company, manufacturers of machine screws and machine tools, and the Crompton Associates, manufacturers of heavy machinery and machine tools.

The plants and property of the five companies are valued at about $1,500,000. George F. Fuller, Secretary and General Manager of the Wyman & Gordon Company, is the President of the new concern. It is understood that Harry W. Smith, who brought about the deal whereby the United Shoe Machinery Company obtained control of the patents of the Thomas Plant Company, brought about the new combination.

REFUSES NEW PRIMARIES.

Justice Maddox Will Not Grant Another Election, as No Fraud Is Shown.

Supreme Court Justice Maddox, in Brooklyn, yesterday, dismissed petitions asking for new primaries in the Thirteenth, Fourteenth, Fifteenth, and Twentieth Assembly Districts in Kings County. It was argued that the Democratic voters in the Thirteenth District and the Republicans in the others had been deprived of their right to vote by the failure to deliver the printed ballots at the polling places on time.

It was held by Justice Maddox that the Board of Elections had complied with the law in providing the ballots, and there was nothing to show that any fraud had been committed.

NEW YORK, TUESDAY, APRIL 2, 1912.

REGULATION OF RAILWAY RATES AND WAGES.

It must make the railway engineers a little dizzy to remark how swiftly the regulation of rates by the Inter-State Commerce Commission has been turned into a regulation of wages. The law requires rates to be "just and reasonable," and everybody applauds. But, addressing the Traffic Club at Pittsburgh, the Chairman of the Commission said with reference to the engineers' demand:

> If this increase in wages is unjustifiable, and if on that account an increase in rate is allowed, it results that the general public, including all other forms of labor, is required to pay what is unjust and unreasonable. Must the Government not, therefore, be satisfied not only that the added wages are paid by the railroads, but that they are necessarily and properly paid?

It had already appeared that the Government regulation of rates had abolished the open market for rates. Rates which are regulated cannot be varied, and price competition disappeared. Now it seems that the regulation of rates includes the regulation of wages, and it is in the way of appearing that the open market for wages has been abolished. This does not rest upon the casual expression of the Chairman, but is the deliberately formed policy of the Commission, and was officially declared hypothetically at the time that the railways were forbidden to advance their rates.

This is a little bewildering. If the Commission assumes to decide regarding the reasonableness and justness of the price of labor as well as of rates, why should it not also decide regarding the prices of all supplies? And, since railway rates are part of all prices, where is final extension of this theory to stop? This takes the matter too far afield for general discussion, but it may be considered in its application merely to the engineers and the railways. The theory of collective bargaining of course has substituted duress for law in the fixing of wages. One Government after another in several nations, and on both sides the ocean, has shirked in various degrees the protection of labor in earning its livelihood. But the unions now come face to face with a body not elective, and powerful enough to curb even the railways. The unions and the Commission are worthy foemen, and the situation is such as has not before arisen. It will take some time for the various parties to decide how they relish the unforeseen situation.

As regards the railways, it may be thought that a plea of pity is justified, but that is not the view now to be pressed. It is true that the railways are suffering. In 1911 they operated 2,000 more miles of road with 31,000 fewer employés than in 1910. Evidently they were doing their best to make up by efficiency their limitations in the operation of their own property. But the fewer employés received $42,000,000 more wages, and the net returns showed almost an equal decrease, as compared with the usual increase of fifty millions, or thereabout. The sum of the loss and the increase is about four-score millions of dollars, considerable enough to be appreciable, even in this billion-dollar industry. Where is this to end? As yet the effect has been merely to check new construction and addition to equipment. Trade, although in full volume, is not booming, and yet equipment is almost all busy. Always there are pessimists, but always also there are those who remember that the recurrence of booms is the one sure thing in American economical conditions.

Sooner or later there will come again the times when there will be an overwhelming demand on the railways for transportation not at lower rates, but at any rates. And then the railways once more will be ordering that freight must be moved regardless of cost, and freights will have precedence over ordinary passenger traffic. Now is the time when preparations for such conditions should be made. The industrial boom should precede the railway boom, and the accommodations for the railway boom cannot be extemporized. It takes time to get and lay rails, and longer yet to get cars to carrying after they are ordered. But the railways have been deprived of the fat which they were accustomed to lay on in good times in preparation for bad times.

The railways now are in lean condition, and their credit is what is indicated by the inability to float bonds on accustomed rates of interest. The Commission has said that the railways should not charge rates enabling them both to earn a living and to enlarge their facilities. Anything earned above a living should be devoted to reducing rates, and facilities should be enlarged by raising fresh capital. The figures above will show the diversion to the wage fund of resources which might have been devoted to serving the public at large. It would seem that the time is arriving when the general public will be more appreciative of the fact that the troubles of the railways are also its troubles.

Consider a little more at large what the troubles of the railways are. The ownership is private, but the management is public, and without financial responsibility for results. The number of employés and the length of the working day are fixed by law. The number of men to a crew is not left to the discretion of the nominal management. The standard of equipment, the erection of signals, the removal of grade crossings, the provision of safety appliances and countless other things which cost money are directed by legal process. The only thing not controlled is the maintenance of credit, and with that problem the roads are wrestling. No private business could be sustained under such conditions, but railways are public utilities, and that theoretically alters everything. Does it alter anything practically? Is there any form of statute known to man which will alter a balance sheet permanently? In Canada this year an excess of a hundred millions will be spent for railway construction. In this country a half billion would not be enough on a similar scale. Where is it to be got? The question is not asked in tenderness for the railways, but in regard to the commerce carried by the railways. That is the people's interest in the railway question.

CAPT. SCOTT'S NARRATIVE.

Capt. ROBERT F. SCOTT's minute and wonderfully graphic narrative of the adventures of his exploring party in the antarctic, published exclusively today in THE NEW YORK TIMES, is, in some particulars, very unlike Capt. AMUNDSEN's story of his rapid journey to the south pole and equally rapid return, because SCOTT had selected the longer and more dangerous route, was more heavily equipped, and had with him both ponies and motor sledges, which, thus far, have not proved as useful for journeying over the ice as the Eskimo dogs. SCOTT's experience with motor sledges, however, will be encouraging to future polar explorers. His gave out because of the failure of the air cooling apparatus, and the lack of time to make repairs. But the machines, though they went badly on sea ice, thinly covered with snow, made good time over the heavier Barrier surface, and crossed dangerous crevasses, carrying heavy loads. The system of propulsion was found perfectly satisfactory. Capt SCOTT believes that with the experience thus gained a trustworthy tractor can be constructed which can travel anywhere in the ice-bound regions of the Far South, and save the sacrifice of animals.

He praises the work of his ponies, but he lost many of them, while some of his dogs were lost and some died of a mysterious disease. Bad weather is the burden of nearly every entry in SCOTT's report, but he successfully established his various camps, and bravely rebuilt them when they were destroyed by storms. From Jan. 25, 1911, until late in March that year this work, and the transportation of provisions to bases farther South, occupied his time and that of most of his large party. But a Western exploring party was out making extensive surveys, finding coal and fossils. In the Winter, under shelter, there was plenty of work to do. The hut seems to have been as comfortable as AMUNDSEN's, and the ponies and dogs were well stabled. The men played football, though the temperature ranged as low as —70, and was rarely higher than —50 degrees. Exactly at mid-Winter a party left for Cape Crozier to study the habits of the emperor penguin. The account of the mishaps and perils encountered by this party forms one of the most thrilling chapters in the history of polar work, but its purpose was accomplished. Indeed, at the date of his last dispatch, SCOTT had left nothing undone that he attempted to do. His photographer has been sent home with a set of cinematograph pictures which will amaze the world. He established a telephone line 15 miles long, with bare wires, which he found most useful. Except Lieut. EVANS, who, with two others, returned with SCOTT's latest message to civilization from latitude 87:32, all the men kept their health. Lieut. EVANS, at last accounts, was recovering from scurvy.

As early as Nov. 1 Capt. SCOTT knew that he would have to pass a second Winter in the antarctic. His progress had been greatly delayed by storms and, obviously, by the size of his party, and their heavy equipment. His plans were all well laid. He was at an altitude of 9,800 feet when the returning party left him, Jan. 3, and was pressing onward to the pole, accompanied by Dr. WILSON, Capt. OAKES, Lieut. BOWERS, and Petty Officer EVANS. Besides these the Terra Nova left in the ice regions an exploring party under Lieut. CAMPBELL. The names of these men and their brave associates, MEARES, DAY, LASHLEY, HOOPER, CHERRY, GARRARD, GRAIN, DEBENTON, and FORDE, will long be remembered. They have all helped in the performance of what SCOTT modestly calls "a feat of endurance." They have held their own in face of weather conditions none but the strongest and stoutest-hearted could survive. They have acquired knowledge to add to the world's store, and they all played their parts well in securing what will surely turn out to be a great triumph.

SENATOR ROBERT L. TAYLOR.

Senator ROBERT LOVE TAYLOR, whose death at a comparatively early age will be sincerely mourned in his native State, Tennessee, and, indeed, wherever he was known, was a unique figure in American political life. He had been conspicuous in public affairs and had held office for nearly thirty-four years, yet it may be fairly said of him that he was no politician. At least, he was utterly unlike other politicians in his point of view and his methods. He was twice Governor of Tennessee, had served long in Congress, and had been in the Senate five years. He was a lovable man, with a keen sense of humor, and a gentle, sympathetic nature, not learned, and perhaps not of great wisdom, though his wit never failed him, and he had a keen sense of right and wrong.

There was never any money in politics for Fiddling BOB TAYLOR, as the Tennesseeans affectionately called him. He was handsomely paid for his lectures, which were largely composed of anecdotes, and he spent the money freely on others. When he first ran for Governor of Tennessee his opponent, the Republican candidate, was his own brother, ALFRED. Both fiddled and told good stories at the campaign meetings, stumping the State together, and although the Republican was the better fiddler, ROBERT told the best stories and won the election.

Senator TAYLOR was never involved in a quarrel of his own making. As a statesman he was not a very distinguished figure, of course, but it suited his fellow-citizens to keep him at the front, and if he never exhibited large constructive ability, they can feel now that he never did anything to shame them or belittle his State.

MUNICIPAL PREVENTORIA.

The suggestion is made that every large American city should consider the advisability of establishing a preventorium for its tenement children who have inherited a tendency to tuberculosis or are in danger of contracting it in their poor homes. The development of these children into healthy, efficient citizens obviously depends on the existence of some such institution; and there are no adequate shelters, in the present scheme of publicly administered charity, by which the children of tuberculous parents can be cared for while the parents themselves are undergoing treatment, and while the tenement homes are being reorganized by other already established charitable agencies.

The preventorium, in short, as Dr. HERMAN M. BIGGS of the Health Department recently pointed out, is an essential link in the chain of institutions by which this country is trying to curb the spread of tuberculosis. The privately supported preventorium at Farmingdale, N. J., has proved by two years of successful effort that institutions of this kind can be conducted at a reasonably low cost per patient. The time has now come for the larger American cities, especially those which possess infected tenement districts, to consider the wisdom of establishing preventoria of their own.

MR. GANS'S CHARGES.

Mr. GANS's statement puts the stamp of flagrant impropriety upon the course pursued by District Attorney WHITMAN in the Grand Jury's inquiry into the Brandt case. It was bad enough so long as it appeared that Mr. WHITMAN had through credulousness and gullibility accepted BRANDT's lies for truth, but Mr. GANS makes the direct charge that the District Attorney knew from the beginning that the story on which BRANDT based his application for pardon was false, and that he admitted it to be false. Yet Mr. WHITMAN plainly referred to BRANDT's scandalous accusations in his report to the Governor without stigmatizing them as false. It does not clearly appear whether or not the slanderous tales of BRANDT were allowed to go before the Grand Jury as part of the District Attorney's evidence.

Mr. WHITMAN does not deny, and it is evident that he is not in a position to deny, that on Jan. 23 he supplied BRANDT's story, including the slanders and falsehoods, to the representatives of two morning newspapers which published the matter next morning. It was in those newspaper articles that the name of a woman was first publicly introduced into the discussion of the Brandt case. Mr. GANS says he called upon District Attorney WHITMAN on Jan. 24 and learned from him that BRANDT's application for pardon "was "based on the same palpably false and "scandalous tale which he had incor"porated two years prior thereto in "letters to Senator NELSON." He says that Mr. WHITMAN assured him that he did not believe a word of BRANDT's story. On the afternoon of that day Mr. GANS states that he submitted to Mr. WHITMAN certain documents and evidence and, thereupon, speaking of BRANDT's slanderous story, the District Attorney said: "I have never be"lieved it. I did not believe it, and "this does make it impossible to be"lieve it." Nevertheless, to Mr. GANS's astonishment, he declared that he felt it to be his duty to report to the Governor "the evidence which he had collected," and that he did not see it to be his official duty to report his opinion of the evidence. In his report to the Governor Mr. WHITMAN made the following statement:

> I cannot escape the conclusion that if this case with all the evidence obtainable had been submitted to a trial and jury a reasonable doubt might have been created in the minds of the jury as to whether the defendant was in the complainant's house as set forth in his indictment with burglarious intent.

As Mr. GANS points out, this can have but one meaning. The District Attorney by plain implication thereby gave his official sanction to the Brandt story, which he had previously assured Mr. GANS he did not believe and could not believe. Moreover, in his brief comment upon—certainly it is not a reply to—Mr. GANS's statement, the District Attorney nowhere disclaims his belief in the calumnies uttered by BRANDT. From all that he says the public might readily conclude that he still believes them, although the Grand Jury flatly rejected that theory of the manner of BRANDT's entrance into the Schiff home.

This is a very serious matter for the District Attorney and for the community. When the charge is made against him by a member of the bar that he receives in his office documentary or other evidence which he admits that he does not believe, that he thinks it impossible to believe, and yet makes official use of such evidence without any indication of his disbelief in it, it becomes more than ever necessary, and seriously necessary, to inquire whether Mr. WHITMAN is the proper person to serve this county as District Attorney.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

What Safety Costs in Panama.

Col. GORGAS, in an article contributed to The Journal of the American Medical Association, protests earnestly against the publication of statements misrepresenting—and exaggerating—what it has cost to change the Isthmus of Panama from one of the most unhealthy places in the world to one that compares not only well with any tropical region, but with most parts of the temperate zones. These statements, if believed, would have the unfortunate effect of discouraging other tropical countries, most of which have comparatively small resources, from attempting like achievements. Thus would one of the most important benefits which our building of the canal can bestow on humanity be seriously decreased.

As a matter of fact, the work of sanitation on the Isthmus, instead of costing $2,000,000 a year, as these reckless statisticians have computed, will have cost, on the completion of the canal, not more than $365,000 annually, and, instead of being 5 per cent. of the whole expenditure, this will be less than 1 per cent.

Never, surely, was money devoted to better purpose, with more skill or higher efficiency. From 1881 to 1889 the French lost 22,189 laborers, or about 240 per thousand each year, and we would have done no better had it not been for the new knowledge as to the cause and prevention of tropical diseases, and especially of yellow fever, the latter gained by our army surgeons during the occupation of Cuba. Our rate for the first years on the Isthmus was about 40 per thousand, and it has now been reduced to 7.5—a figure in part explained, of course, by the fact that the canal force is composed almost wholly of strong men in the prime of life. In the old days, however, just such men engaged on the canal died literally "like flies." Col. GORGAS writes of meeting, when he went to Colon, a French engineer who was the sole survivor of seventeen young professional associates who arrived together. The others all died within a month of yellow fever, and such wholesale slaughters were constant.

What has been done in Panama can be done anywhere in the tropics, at an expense by no means prohibitive. Nowhere are conditions worse than they were there and in few places are the difficulties to be overcome as great.

The Easter Art Supplement.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There has just come into my hands Part I. of your Easter number, containing the fine reproductions in color of "The Holy Grail" by Edwin A. Abbey, and I could not resist the temptation to drop you a line, commending your high aim in bringing before the people at large in this most excellent manner the work of so eminent a mural painter, and congratulating you upon the reproductions, so true in their color values, and the able art by which you have brought them about. Verily, newspaper art is getting up on the mountain heights when it aims so high and so closely approaches its mark.

The copy which has come to me will find a valued place in our library, and I thought you might like to know that we here at the museum appreciate your high ideals and splendid craftsmanship.

SEARCH FOR ARBUCKLE WILL.

Heirs Wait for an Examination of Private Papers.

Although no will of John Arbuckle, the sugar and coffee merchant, who died recently at his home in Clinton Avenue, Brooklyn, has been found, it is believed that the charities and philanthropies in which he was deeply interested will not suffer because of that fact. It is understood that the heirs will continue along the same lines followed by Mr. Arbuckle regarding these charities. Those who will inherit the estate, estimated at $20,000,000, are Miss Christina Arbuckle and Mrs. Robert Jamison, his sisters, and the latter's children.

William M. Dykman, attorney for the Arbuckle estate, and several members of his family, after a conference yesterday afternoon with William W. Jamison, nephew and partner of Mr. Arbuckle, at the offices of the law firm of Dykman, Oeland & Kuhn, 177 Montague Street, Brooklyn, said he had not found anybody who knew that Mr. Arbuckle left a will. He declared that a search would be made of Mr. Arbuckle's private offices in the sugar and coffee plant at the foot of Jay Street, Brooklyn, to-day. It is possible that the document may be found in Mr. Arbuckle's private safe or desk, but it is Mr. Dykman's belief that no will will be found.

It was said that no legal move will be made until a diligent search for a will has been made.

WILL HEARING POSTPONED.

Contesting Wife Says She Is Too Poor to Come Here.

On a plea that Mrs. Addie S. Potts Flatauer is without funds to make a trip from Georgia to New York to appear in the contest she has instituted against a will of her husband, Max Flatauer, which failed to mention her, Surrogate Fowler postponed hearings on the will yesterday until April 15. He will hear a motion to-day for permission to take her testimony in Georgia by commission.

Flatauer left the bulk of his estate, which was all in personal property, to his sister, whom he named as executrix. Attorneys for the sister told the Surrogate that Mrs. Flatauer married the testator for his money and left him twenty-four hours later when he refused to make over his property to her. This was denied by her counsel.

MR. WHITMAN'S POSITION.

One Lawyer's Opinion of His Methods in the Brandt Case.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Brandt Grand Jury saw fit to commend the fairness of the District Attorney in his investigation of that case. What impelled the Grand Jury to comment upon the conduct of the District Attorney is a mystery, unless it be that Judge Whitman thought that his conduct needed vindication.

But was he, as a matter of fact, fair and impartial in the handling of that infamous case?

The custom has prevailed in the District Attorney's office for a number of years, when a serious criminal charge is made by an irresponsible person against a member of the community of good standing, or against a reputable lawyer, to send for the person accused, notify him of the nature of the charge against him, and ask him whether he desires to be heard. A convict and an ex-convict made a criminal charge against Mortimer L. Schiff, a reputable citizen, and Howard S. Gans, an attorney of high standing. If the District Attorney were fair he would have sent for these gentlemen and informed them of the nature of the charge against them and would have asked whether they desired to be heard. The District Attorney not only departed from the customary procedure of his office, but he put every obstacle in the way of Mr. Schiff and Mr. Gans to prevent their side from being heard. At the hearing before Judge Hand he blocked all testimony of the Schiff side of the case upon the alleged ground that he was afraid that immunity would thus be granted. The legal grounds urged by him were so utterly ridiculous that the learned District Attorney made himself the laughing stock of every lawyer in this county. He has been shouting immunity for a long time; immunity from what? If Mr. Whitman wanted to ascertain the truth he could have learned the facts weeks and months ago—namely, that Brandt is not only a thief, but a resourceful liar, and that the stories told by him are a mass of vile fabrications.

In spite of the fact that all the testimony which the Grand Jury has heard was available to Mr. Whitman for a long time, his office has for a number of weeks kept feeding the press on reports of coming indictments. First, three were to be indicted, then five were to be indicted, then some prominent Tammany Hall politician was connected with the case. All these reports emanated from the District Attorney's office, daily, and without a word of contradiction from him.

And the Grand Jury commends the District Attorney for his fairness! To my mind, and to the minds of many lawyers who have followed closely the Brandt case, the conduct of the District Attorney in that case has shown him to be utterly unfit for the high office he holds.

THE NAVY AND ECONOMY.

Efficiency Advocated as a Substitute for a Big Navy Programme.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

You should remember in your editorial remarks to-day on economy in Washington that the House Democrats have a difficult road to travel. They not only have to institute an economy that is commendable, but they have to correct the extravagancies that have been going on for the past few years.

The statements concerning a "Naval Programme" are disingenuous. There is nothing of the kind. The Rooseveltian programme was to build all the battleships it could get appropriations for. But Senator Hale and Congressman Tawney strongly opposed and never acquiesced in any programme.

The "Big Navy" advocates assume and state too much. The navy is a favorite with the people and it is to be hoped always will be. An efficient navy is desired. Spend the money in making the navy efficient. But the "Big Navy" is entirely another matter.

APRIL.

Of all the months, behold the one imbued
By Father Chronus with the saddest mood.
Yet welcome, April of the weeping skies!
Those glittering teardrops, falling from your eyes,
Serve to invigorate the listless earth,
Imparting strength for Nature's coming birth.

In concert with your melancholy days
A dank and sodden world now meets our gaze;
Loosed from a bondage harsh of ice and snow,
On every side the muddy runlets flow;
Low-lying woods and groves by floods are drowned,
Where Autumn's leaves lie rotting on the ground.

A cold, wet mist half veils the countryside,
Though scarce enough its barrenness to hide;
While, still unrivaled by the song of bird,
In many a marshy pool the frog is heard;
The only creature in the watery waste
That's fitted Springtime's pristine joys to taste.

Yet are we sure that Winter now is past,
And Spring, with all her promise, hastening fast?
What though the signs of life as yet be few,
Soon shall we see a world where all is new!
The darkest hour is just before the day,
And April comes to herald gladsome May.

GEORGE B. MOREWOOD.

ART FOR WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE.

Exhibition of Goya and El Greco Paintings at Knoedler Galleries.

The loan exhibition of paintings by Goya and El Greco held for the cause of woman's suffrage opens to-day at the Knoedler Galleries. Only four examples by El Greco are shown, but one of these is the magnificent portrait of the Cardinal Don Fernando Nino de Guevara, Archbishop of Seville, Grand Inquisitor, and Member of the Royal Council, fierce of face and gray of beard, looking through his horn-rimmed spectacles with such vitality and energy of character that the most militant and courageous suffragist must instinctively quail before that glance. The splendors of the color, the pure black-and-white grays, the delicate intensity of the carmine, the mottled yellows of the background have been noted by many a critic, but the lesson for the portrait painter of to-day lies in the expressive treatment of the face.

The other pictures by this painter for whom Velasquez and John Sargent have shown their high esteem are a fine "Saint Peter," a "View of Toledo," and a small "Christ Bearing the Cross."

Goya is more amply represented. Besides the large group of "Women on the Balcony" there are nine portraits of men, women, and children, ranging from the style of the young daughter of Gen. Mazarredo, deeply tinged with the influence of Velasquez, to the richly Goyaesque Queen Maria Luisa of Parma. The exhibition will be noticed in full in a later issue.

In the sideroom on the ground floor of the Knoedler Galleries is an exhibition of paintings by Charles Hoffbauer, whose large canvas, "The Triumph of a Condottiere," has been entirely repainted since it received the Prix de Salon in Paris. The various aspects of New York, which have solicited the attention of this painter are interpreted with vivacity, and one would get from his canvases the impression of great energy and brilliancy revealed in the color and tone of our great city. Our native artists see it perhaps with greater psychological truth. At all events they convey the insidious languor that permits the genuine American to let so much "go," because it would take so much trouble to do anything about it. The soft mists that drape the burning lights of the skyscrapers and the dazzling signs and lamps of the streets at night; the veil thrown by fog and rain across the traffic of the streets by day, these are emphasized by the American painter more often than the deep blues and strong yellows of picturesque placards, and the motley hues of the constantly moving crowd. Possibly the foreigner always sees our initiative and enterprise, while we ourselves confess in our art the secret of our dreaming tendency.

TO HOLD PUBLIC MARKET DAY

Every April 3, Beginning To-morrow, to be a Festival of Economy.

President Carl Koelsch, of the Washington Market Merchants' Association, and all the other stall-keepers of Washington Market have invited the housewives of the city to visit them in the market to-morrow to be shown how much cheaper produce can be bought there than elsewhere in the city.

A Public Market Day Committee of the Housewives' League has been organized. Mrs. Charles E. Griffen is Chairman. The third day of April is always hereafter to be known as "Public Market Day," according to this committee. The committee, with market baskets in hand and a determination to reduce the cost of living in their hearts, will visit Washington Market this morning between 10 and 12 o'clock.

Thousands of housewives have been notified by the league, through the medium of neatly printed post cards. Mrs. Julian Heath, President of the league, and Mrs. Arthur Randolph Green, the Secretary, will head brigades of women. A welcoming committee of the marketmen has been chosen. The market will be gayly decorated and there will be at least one brass band.

The purpose of holding this Public Market Day, according to both Mrs. Heath and Mr. Koelsch, is to revive the old-time economical habit among housewives of going downtown to the big cheap public markets instead of telephoning to the small, expensive stores "around the corner." Mr. Koelsch has testified before Commissioner Osborn, of Gov. Dix's Food Investigating Commission that he believed the prices in Washington Market were 10 per cent. lower than the prices in small uptown stores. Mr. Koelsch has informed Commissioner Osborn that $10,973,000 worth of produce was sold at the market in 1911. The market thus saved the housewives of the city $397,300 last year, Mr. Koelsch maintains.

THREE GRAND JURIES SWORN.

One in the Supreme Court, Two in General Sessions.

Three Grand Juries for the April Term of the Criminal Court were sworn in yesterday, one of them being the Supreme Court Grand Jury, which was sworn in by Justice Davis in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court, and the others the regular and additional Grand Juries, which were sworn in by Judge Foster in General Sessions. In swearing in the Supreme Court Grand Jury Justice Davis said:

"It is a very bad procedure to make it a custom to summon defendants before the Grand Jury or to give the defendant an opportunity to be heard in an investigation of criminal charges made against him. I do not mean to say that it is improper in some cses to do that very thing in order to make your deliberations according to justice. Do not be disturbed if you read in the newspapers alleged accounts of what is going on in the Grand Jury room. As long as you keep what goes on secret there will be no reflection on you."

Judge Foster, in charging the regular and additional Grand Juries, simply instructed them regarding the law governing Grand Juries and cautioned them against indicting in cases in which they were not reasonably sure that a petit jury would convict.

TRINITY'S SUBWAY PROTEST.

Corporation Will Fight to Save the Vestry Building.

Corporation Counsel Watson has received from Jay & Chandler, counsel for the Trinity Corporation, a letter stating that the protest made last week by the Rector, Churchwardens and Vestrymen on the subway question did not mean that the corporation was opposed to the building of a subway down Church Street, and that in all probability the opposition of Trinity would be confined to an effort to prevent the destruction of the Vestry Building in St. Paul's Churchyard.

This seems to be contemplated in the specifications of the Public Service Commission for Section 2 of the new Broadway line, and the corporation felt, its counsel declare, that it should at once make it plain that it was determined to resist such an encroachment on its rights. The letter says that other means could be found to obtain access to the tunnel in this neighborhood which would be equally convenient and far less expensive to the city.

TO REPAIR FARRAGUT STATUE.

St. Gaudens's Relatives, It Is Hoped, will Provide Casts.

Park Commissioner Stover said yesterday that he wished to communicate with some member of the family of the late Augustus St Gaudens, who might be able to find the separate casts from which the bronze ribbons holding the sword of the statue of Admiral Farragut in Madison Square Park were made. These ribbons were stolen by vandals recently, and their loss robs the statue of much of its beauty.

The ribbons were of such delicate workmanship that they had to be made separately and attached to the statue. If the casts are recovered it will not be difficult, Commissioner Stover believes, to restore the ribbons.

WILL CAMPAIGN FOR TAFT TARIFF BOARD

Department Store Owners Organize to Carry on the President's Plan.

THEIR BUSINESS DISTURBED

After Wool and Cotton They Want Report on Steel and Other Important Schedules.

The Executive Committee of the National Retail Drygoods Association, which represents about one-fifth of the department stores of this country and an aggregate investment of some $400,000,000, met at 235 West Thirty-ninth Street yesterday to plan a campaign for the continuance of President Taft's Tariff Board.

After having studied and suggested revisions of the cotton and wool schedules, the Tariff Board has become practically moribund, the department store men say, through lack of funds to continue its investigations, although a bill has been introduced into Congress to appropriate an additional $60,000 for the Tariff Board's work. The work of the Tariff Board is very helpful to the department store business, members of the Association's Executive Committee said yesterday, because a scientifically determined and fixed tariff would make for settled conditions and steady prices.

One of the first things the Executive Committee did yesterday was to send a telegram to Congressman Sulzer in Washington urging him to give his support to the continuance of the Tariff Board. Then at least 100 letters from department store proprietors in forty-two States were opened and read. Every single one of the letters urged that the Tariff Board be continued, and that the association initiate a campaign for the settling of prices.

"We department store men don't care whether there is a tariff or whether there isn't one," said Chairman A. M. Cooper of the association's Executive Committee at the close of the meeting. "But we do want to be sure from season to season that the prices of the commodities in which we deal are not going to turn a somersault. Few people understand how far ahead the average department store proprietor of this country has to see in order to run his business successfully. All orders for our next Christmas stocks, for example, have already been placed by most of this country's department stores. Yet, until we are assured that the tariff is going to be modified gradually, in a scientific manner, instead of turned upside down to meet each popular whim or fancy, we can't tell whether we have bought our next Christmas supplies for higher prices or for lower prices than our competitors.

Interested in All Schedules.

"Uncertainty about the tariff makes business in this country a wild gamble instead of a methodical taking of business-like calculations. Uncertainty upsets the manufacturer and makes every one unwilling to do anything. The Tariff Board has already considered the wool and cotton schedules, and now we would like it to go on and tell us 'where the country is at' as to the steel and other schedules. Even department stores which don't carry so much as a steel chisel in their whole stock are affected by the steel schedule. For every department store draws a certain percentage of its customers from persons who are affected by the stability of the steel trade.

"The German Government has for a long time supported a Tariff Board which has helped to systematize and steady prices, while we department store proprietors feel as though we were constantly trying to explain to a suspicious public exactly why our prices are high.

"A good example of the harm which is done by the catch-as-catch-can method of changing the tariff was sown in the button manufacturing trade some time ago. For some reason or other a tariff was introduced increasing by 100 per cent. the duty on the shells from which a certain kind of buttons were made. It so happened that there was only about one man who manufactured the kind of buttons in this country. He had a comparatively small factory in a comparatively small town. The shutting out of foreign competition by this prohibitive tariff made this manufacturer's fortune. It didn't cheapen the buttons or raise workingmen's wages. This particular manufacturer is now a millionaire several times over. He got his millions out of the public with we department store proprietors as his reluctant intermediaries. I think that this is a very good example of how the unscientific way of revising the tariff hurts instead of helps. A Tariff Board, instead of practically subsidizing a small factory in this manner, would have determined mathematically just how much duty on the shells was necessary in order to encourage that particular branch of trade."

An Official Statement.

The Executive Committee gave out an official statement regarding the association's aims yesterday, which said:

> Convinced that the business of the retail dry goods trade is harmed more by the wholesale changing of the tariff than by any specific raising or lowering of individual schedules, the National Retail Dry Goods Association is in favor of a scientific and gradual revision of the tariff. The association favors in general the investigation of non-political bodies, as exemplified in the Tariff Board, to make a study for Congress, of all proposed National legislation, in order that such legislation may be based upon facts, scientifically obtained.

A letter is being sent out to drygoods stores all over the United States, calling attention to the facts of the tariff situation and asking for opinions on the methods of revision.

The department stores in forty-two States are going to use their influence with Congressmen to perpetuate the Tariff Board, according to Mr. Cooper.

NINE NEW FIRE MARSHALS.

Resignations of Edward F. Croker, Jr., and Chief Kelly Are Accepted.

Fire Commissioner Johnson announced the appointment of nine assistant Fire Marshals yesterday, at salaries of $1,500 a year. These men, who were taken from the head of the civil service list, are William A. Finn, Montgomery Wade, Rudolph Dillman, William J. Coen, William F. Walsh, Frederick J. Melvin, George A. Lynch, Israel Spielberg, and Joseph Whalen. The resignations of Edward F. Crocker, Jr., son of the former Chief, as temporary Fire Marshal, and of David I. Kelly as Chief Inspector of the Division of Combustibles, also were announced.

Chief Kelly is a chemist. It was said that he had resigned because he had been offered a better opportunity in a commercial enterprise. His successor has not been named.

Bids for the new motor vehicles of the department were opened yesterday. The lowest bidder for the 26 motor-driven scout chemical engines and hose wagons was the Ranier & Lineberg Company, whose price was $96,122. This company also had the lowest bids for the three motor-driven high-pressure wagons, which will cost $14,220. The International Motor Company put in the lowest bid, $8,226, for two ordinary motor-driven hose wagons. Contracts for the new motor apparatus will be awarded in a few days.

TWO THEATRES ON NEW THEATRE SITE

Shubert and Ames Get Large Plot in West 44th Street, Back of Hotel Astor.

PLAN HOUSES LIKE ELLIOTT

Both Will Have White Marble Front, and Will Be Ready for Opening Next October.

Lee Shubert and Winthrop Ames have acquired from the Founders of The New Theatre the large site that was chosen for The New Theatre, situated directly back of the Hotel Astor and running through from West Forty-fourth to Forty-fifth Street. They will build on the site two theatres of the style of Maxine Elliott's Theatre, fronting on Forty-fourth Street, at a cost of between $600,000 and $700,000, adding this much to the numerous new playhouses in the Times Square district.

The old buildings on the property were razed last Spring, when the intention of the Founders of The New Theatre was to erect a new playhouse at once, and for that reason work on the two theatres can begin almost immediately and both houses will be ready for opening in October. The plans have been drawn and accepted and the ironwork has been ordered.

This property was leased from the Astor estate by The New Theatre early last Spring, when the Founders reached the conclusion adverse to the continued use of the building in Central Park West, now the Century Theatre. They then provided a fund for the erection of a moderate-sized theatre to extend through from Forty-fourth to Forty-fifth Street, with a private street cut through the block at the eastern end. Last December, however, they decided to abandon this plan entirely, partly because Winthrop Ames had begun to build a similar though smaller playhouse across the street, and partly because of the difficulty of finding a suitable person to act as director of the theatre. The Founders still retain ownership of the Century Theatre, which had been leased to Liebler & Co. for one season with a privilege of renewal.

The plan for the private street directly in the rear of the Hotel Astor will be carried through. It will be thirty-five feet wide, giving ample room for carriages to turn. Mr. Shubert already has under way the new Palace Theatre and Roof Garden directly across the street, and Mr. Ames's Litttle Theatre, also across the street, is in operation, making, when the new houses are finished, four theatres in one street within a half a block of Broadway.

Definite plans of the houses and their attractions could not be learned last night, but it is known that one will have a seating capacity of about 900, and the other of about 1,200. One will be managed by Mr. Ames and the other by Mr. Shubert. Both will have white marble fronts and their general plan will be that of Maxine Elliott's Theatre on West Thirty-ninth Street. Both will be devoted to dramatic works, according to the present scheme.

What will be done with the part of the property facing on Forty-fifth Street has not yet been decided. The two new theatres will run through only about halfway of the block. Mr. Shubert said last night that they might decide to put up two more theatres, to face the proposed Ice Palace in Forty-fifth Street.

The Times Square district will have at least ten new playhouses next season, when the new Shubert and Ames theatres are included in the list. The others are the Eltinge in Forty-second Street, that is almost ready for opening; the Shubert Palace Theatre and Roof Garden in Forty-fourth Street, the Cort Theatre in Forty-fifth Street, Martin Beck's Palace Theatre at Forty-seventh Street and Seventh Avenue, the Illington in Forty-eighth Street, William A. Brady's Forty-eighth Street Theatre, which is nearer Seventh Avenue; the new Longacre, also in Forty-eighth Street, but on the west side of Broadway, and the new Ice Palace, that is to be erected immediately back of the Astor Theatre, in Forty-fifth Street.

Miss Meirowitz, Press Department Stenographer, Surprises Parents.

The press department at the Hippodrome is without a stenographer, because Miss Sidonia Meirowitz, who has been acting in that capacity for several seasons, decided to get married last Saturday, about two months before the time she had set originally for that ceremony. Miss Meirowitz had been engaged to John Jerome Feigenbaum of this city for some time, and they had planned to be married at the end of the present Hippodrome season.

Saturday, however, the two went to the home of the Rev. Dr. Brachman, 128 West 121st Street, and then Miss Meirowitz telephoned her parents to come to the marriage, and they served as best man and matron of honor.

LLOYD C. GRISCOM UNDER THE KNIFE

Condition Very Grave Last Night in Philadelphia After an Operation

FOR STOMACH TROUBLE

Surgeons Unwilling to Discuss the Outcome and Reticent About His Prospects.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., April 1.—Lloyd C. Griscom, ex-American Ambassador to Italy, is in a critical condition in the Bryn Mawr Hospital, where late this afternoon he underwent an operation for acute stomach trouble. Physicians at the hospital were not able to tell to-night his exact condition, which was very grave when he was brought to the hospital yesterday from New York. He was rushed to the hospital late last night, and was prepared immediately for the operation, which was performed by Dr. John H. Tibbon. To-night Dr. Tibbon refused to discuss the ultimate outcome of the operation.

Lloyd Carpenter Griscom was born in Riverton, N. J., on Nov. 4, 1872. He has had a brilliant diplomatic career, having been appointed First Secretary to the American Embassy by Thomas F. Bayard, Ambassador to England, when he was only 23 years old. Since that time he has held many important posts, serving in each with distinction. He is a close friend of Col. Theodore Roosevelt. A year ago he resigned as Chairman of the Republican County Committee of New York on account of ill health.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 1.—Dr. Francis Bacon, one of the oldest and most distinguished surgical specialists of Connecticut and the Yale Medical School, is seriously ill at his residence in this city, and fears are felt that he will not recover. He is nearly 80 years old and is suffering from a general collapse. Dr. Bacon was graduated from Yale in the class of '53. He is a brother of Theodore Bacon of Rochester, for years a leader of the New York State Bar.

'THE OPENING NIGHT' HAS VIM

Lively Lottery Scene in Hobart's Vaudeville Sketch at the Colonial.

A new vaudeville sketch in three scenes, called "The Opening Night," written by George V. Hobart, and produced by Joseph Hart, was presented at the Colonial Theatre yesterday afternoon for the first time in New York. The story deals with a generous but impecunious young couple, who go out from their little flat to listen to a choir rehearsal, are presented with theatre tickets, and win the grand prize in a lottery at the theatre, with which they are enabled to purchase a drug store.

The first scene, showing the flat, and the second, the exterior of a church, are notable only for the characterizations. The last act, showing the stage of a theatre on its opening night, made the audience part of the players. A game called "Zim-Zam" was in progress, by which certain fortunate ones in the house were supposed to win matinee tickets for the following day, and one more fortunate one a prize of $300. This went with considerable snap, especially as one of the comedy characters was seated in a box and helped the merriment. As before mentioned, the hero and heroine won the capital prize and purchased their drug store without indicating what use it would be to them afterward.

The hero was played by Edward Ewald, the heroine by May McManus, the comedy landlady by May McCabe, and the other characters included a wash woman, a shoemaker, the theatre manager, the druggist, the doctor, the ward politician, a grocer, a policeman, and the scrub woman's daughter, to say nothing of the church choir.

ARREST CASHIER AS FORGER.

C. W. Casher Was Employed by Mrs. Seaman's Ironclad Company.

Charles W. Casher of 75 Hemlock Street, Queens, former cashier of the Ironclad Manufacturing Company, was arrested last night on a bench warrant charging him with forgery in connection with three checks drawn on the Guardian Trust Company of 170 Broadway in January, 1910. Adolph Kiendl, Trustee of the company, declared that they were for large amounts.

Casher will be arraigned in the Court of General Sessions this morning. He was arrested in Brooklyn on a similar charge on March 11 and was released on $20,000 bail. The complainant in both instances was Mrs. Elizabeth C. Seaman, President of the Ironclad Company.

Mrs. Seaman, who was fined $600 by Judge Hough in the Federal District Court, Brooklyn, last Tuesday, for contempt of court in refusing to answer questions in the proceedings growing out of the bankruptcy of the Ironclad Company, did not pay the fine yesterday, although the time in which she was given to pay it had expired. Mr. Kiendl, who was instrumental in having Mrs. Seaman fined, said last night that proceedings to make her pay would probably not be taken.

WILL OF LORILLARD SPENCER.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., April 1.—The will of Lorillard Spencer, who died in New York last month, was filed for probate to-day, and disposes of a large estate, including his handsome cottage here, Halidon Hall, and properties in New York. The will was made in New York April 28, 1911, and William A. Spencer of Paris, a brother; Lorillard Spencer, Jr., a son, and Wolcott G. Lane of New York, are the executors and Trustees.

Mrs. Spencer receives $100,000, in addition to jewelry and personal effects, save boats; Newport Casino stock and Newport Reading room stock and fellowship in the American Academy of Design, which go to the son.

Each servant receives $100 for each year of continuous service. His interest in a farm at Williamsbridge, Bronx, N. Y., eventually goes to Lorillard Spencer, Jr. The grandson, Lorillard Spencer, third, receives $25,000 in trust, and the executors are directed to set aside a sum which would net $200 income annually for Elsie Lurette of Paris.

The residue is left in trust, the income to be paid to Mrs. Spencer during her life, then to his son, Lorillard Spencer, Jr. The document makes no other provision for the son who is amply provided for under the will of his grandfather.

BELIEVE GRACE WILL DIE.

Doctors Say He Has Four Days of Life Left.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 1.—Eugene Grace, who says his wife, formerly Mrs. Daisy Ulrich Opie of Philadelphia, drugged and shot him, will die, according to the assertions of his physicians this afternoon. Grace was thought to be improving yesterday, and preparations were made to operate on him to-morrow to remove the bullet, which has caused paralysis of two-thirds of his body. To-day he took a turn for the worse, and four days of life are all he may hope for, in the opinion of Dr. Bailey, his physician.

Evidences of blood poisoning became manifest in Grace's condition to-day. In it the physicians see the beginning of the end. Grace is conscious and remains undisturbed. Mrs. Grace, who has been hidden by her attorneys in an Atlanta suburb, was greatly depressed by news that her husband's death is imminent.

PRESIDENT BONILLA DYING.

Honduras to Hold Special Election for Vice Presidency, Now Vacant.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., April 1.—President Manuel Bonilla of Honduras is dying of Bright's disease, according to messages received here. Although his condition is pronounced critical, it is said he may live several months. At present he is under treatment by a German physician summoned to Tegucigalpa.

On account of the President's illness, and the fact that the Vice Presidency is vacant, a special election has been called to fill the latter place. Dr. Francisco Bertrand, who recently was provisional President, seems to be the leading candidate, and has the backing of the Bonilla adherents. Maximo Rosales probably will make the fight for the Opposition.

$500,000 Needed to Help Cancer Patients

We have reached a crisis in our work. With money we can purchase an addition to our present well-equipped plant that would give us double our present capacity.

This Hospital is supported by voluntary contributions, and all of its 100 beds are occupied. Will you not help us to receive the scores of sufferers who come to us for treatment, and for whom we have no room?

The recent purchase and installation of the most advanced apparatus for the treatment and relief of cancer have brought a flood of cases to us demanding care.

CATCHER SWEENEY TO JOIN THE YANKEES

"Hold Out" Player Expected to Accept Terms of Manager Wolverton.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 1.—The most interesting development in the New York American League Club's camp to-day was the news that Ed. Sweeney will join the team to-morrow. The big catcher has not agreed upon terms, but is coming for a conference with Manager Wolverton. The upshot of that conference will be received with great interest, for Sweeney undoubtedly would strengthen the Yankees behind the bat and give them the best catching staff in the American League. Sweeney has been holding out since contracts were sent out this Winter, and made a demand for salary which the New York Club considered far beyond reason. He has been more tractable lately, but whether he and Wolverton will see things the same way to-morrow remains to be seen. However, they appear to be getting together. Wolverton had a letter from Sweeney the other day, and the manager wired him to meet him here to-morrow.

Out of the frying pan into the fire was the fate of the Yankees, apparently, in their jump from the South to the North. They arrived here at noon to-day, and as they alighted from the somewhat antiquated "sleeper" which they inhabited from Atlanta the rain began to fall. It was raining when they left Atlanta and raining when they got here, and though they had no game on for to-day, they did expect to practice, and were a disgruntled and disappointed lot of players.

The team has not done any work in two days, and the "more rain more rest" policy is not what they are looking for. There is not a very cheerful outlook for a game to-morrow, as everything around here, including the White River, is very wet. However, the Brooklyns played a game here yesterday and the Yankees will try to do so to-morrow if the sun comes out.

Manager Wolverton expects to pitch Jim Vaughn against the Indians to-morrow during the whole game. Vaughn is in good trim. Street probably will catch him, as Williams, while improved in health, is not feeling very keen yet. Wolter is improving, too, and the whole outfit will be all right in a day or two.

Wolverton to-day passed the word around that nobody was to be out after 11 o'clock P. M., one among other disciplinary screws he intends to put on to keep his warriors in battle trim for the serious business of the season.

GIANTS NEARING HOME.

Leave Asheville for Washington After Rain Prevents Game.

Special to The New York Times.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., April 1.—A drizzle of rain in the morning which turned into a heavy rain by afternoon prevented the Giants from playing here to-day. The teams inspected the baseball park early in the day, but that is as near as they came to playing.

The inhabitants of this city were disappointed, and declared the weather was the most unseasonable they had ever known. Nowhere have the Giants been welcomed so sincerely as here, and McGraw promised to spend a week here next training season. The teams left on the Asheville Special for Washington this evening.

Rain Follows the Superbas.

Special to The New York Times.

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio, April 1.—Hardly had the Brooklyn Baseball Club arrived here an hour and a half late this morning from Indianapolis and made an inspection of the local grounds when it commenced to rain, and continued all day, causing the postponement of the game with the Springfield club of the Iowa Central League. As a result the Brooklyns were forced to remain idle. To-night it is doubtful whether the game scheduled for tomorrow can be played, owing to the fact that the grounds are new and have not been thoroughly rolled. Another game is scheduled for Wednesday, after which the team will leave here for Portsmouth, Ohio, the home of Al Bridwell, the former Giant shortstop. This morning Treasurer Medicus canceled the game with Chillicothe for Friday.

Athletics Lose Again to Phillies.

PHILADELPHIA, April 1.—The Philadelphia Nationals took another game from the world's champion Athletics here to-day, by the score of 6 to 2. Brown, a recruit, pitched the entire game for the Americans and was unsteady at critical times. The Americans were unable to hit the pitchers of the Nationals with any success. Score:

Americans	0 0 0 1 1 0 0 0 0—2	5 0

Secretary Heydler Returns from South.

John A. Heydler, Secretary of the National League, has returned from his vacation in the South. Mr. Heydler went away several weeks ago believing that during his Southern sojourn he would be able to visit several of the baseball training camps and enjoy himself. He went first to Palm Beach and found there a golf course on which he spent several enjoyable days. The reports he received from the training camps of the baseball teams contained nothing but news of rain, so he did not venture near any of them. He stuck to golf at Palm Beach, where there were only two days of rain during his visit.

Warning to Ball Players.

CINCINNATI, April 1.—The National Baseball Commission to-day restored to good standing W. G. Dell of the St. Louis National League Club, who failed to report for the season of 1911 as he was dissatisfied with the salary offered him. The commission issued a warning that hereafter players who are offered a reasonable salary by a major league club for their first season will be fined if they refuse to report for duty.

The score for the last game was: Kirby, 13; Shoemaker, 2.

YALE CLUB CREWS' COACH.

Charles Buckingham Will Be Chief Instructor—'Varsity Squad Cut.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 1.—As one of the bulwarks of Yale's new graduate coaching system the development of club crews has been ordered by the newly formed Rowing Committee. Charles Buckingham, 1911, the 'Varsity oarsman who rowed two seasons ago, but who could not enter the shell last Spring because of illness, has been appointed head club crew coach. He will be the resident graduate coach all Spring. J. H. McHenry and H. L. Rogers, prominent members of the freshman crew last season, who are prevented from rowing by illness, will assist him.

This is the first time that a resident coaching staff has been chosen to develop the club crews. It is expected that fully a hundred oarsmen will be enrolled for these boats.

To-day Yale's 'Varsity crew squad was ordered to remain here during the Easter vacation, and it was reduced from forty to twenty-five oarsmen: Allen, Lippincott, Bomeisler, Ross, Peck, Oldenburg, Freeman, Bryce, Richards, Freyfogle, York, Chandler, Scully, Philbin, Pease, Beck, Gore, Coxe, Bugbee, Stevenson, Appleton, Denman, Snowden, Ives, Capt. Romeyn, and Coxswains Barnum, Badger, Shepard, and Covell.

YALE ATHLETIC REFORM.

Major Sports to be Managed by One Body Instead of by Several.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 1.—The students of Yale University to-night by a vote of 686 to 178 formally ratified the new athletic constitution, which aims at centralization and gives the Sheffield Scientific School the same representation as the academic department in the managership of major athletic teams. The meeting was presided over by Walter Camp, '80, and there was little opposition to the plan.

The name of the association is now the Yale Athletic Association, and it controls all major sports, instead of each department having separate managerships as before. The changes go into effect immediately.

Sports at East Side Y. M. C. A.

The East Side Young Men's Christian Association has carded for to-night the biggest wrestling and athletic series ever attempted for members of this many-sided organization, with competitors from the various branches of the Young Men's Christian Association—Brooklyn Central, Eastern District, Greenpoint, Hudson City, Elizabeth, Orange, Yonkers, Washington Heights, West Side, Twenty-third Street, Harlem, and East Side. The athletic events will consist of running high jump, putting twelve-pound shot, standing broad jump, three standing jumps, rope climb, and potato race. In the westling the classes from 135 pounds to 158 will call out contestants, and it is expected that several of the metropolitan champions will compete for the prizes. There will be a point trophy and medals to first, second, and third in each event.

Princeton Shuts Out Ursinus.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., April 1.—Princeton administered a shut-out this afternoon, by defeating Ursinus, 6 to 0. The Tigers batted hard and the visitors had a hard time connecting with the offerings of the local pitchers. Rogers was effective with men on bases and his allowance of four hits was scattered in as many innings. Ursinus did not threaten to score until the final inning, when the Tiger infield slumped and permitted the visitors to fill the bases. With one down Busch hit into a double play. Capt. Sterrett batted in three of Princeton's runs and scored two. Three baggers off the big fellow's stick in the first and third innings were the features of the game. The pitching staff, supposedly the weakest part of the Tiger nine, has taken a boost following the recent performances in the Princeton box. The score:

OXFORD CREW WINS AN EASY VICTORY

Dark Blue Oarsmen Lead Cambridge Rivals by Six Lengths on Thames Course.

LONDON, April 1.—Oxford won an easy victory here to-day in the annual eight-oared race against Cambridge, which was made necessary because of Saturday's fiasco when the Cambridge boat was swamped, and the win of the Oxford eight nullified at that time because of a violation of the rules. The Oxford crew had a margain of six lengths at the finish, which they accomplished in handy fashion, the time being 22:05.

Last year Oxford made the course record of 18:29 for the distance of four miles, 856 yards. To-day's event marked the sixty-ninth renewal of the race, with the Dark Blues having thirty-eight victories to their credit, while Cambridge has thirty. One dead heat has resulted, this occurring in 1877.

Throughout the race it was quite apparent that the Oxford crew could go to the front whenever it desired, and as a matter of fact from the first half mile the Oxford coxswain never had to call upon his men to increase their stroke, with the result that from the half way mark to the end they used no greater efforts than if they had been out for a mere exercise spin.

For the greater part of the morning the weather conditions were as unfavorable as last Saturday. The wind caused quite a sea and the whitecaps gave every prospect of a postponement. Toward noon, however, the wind died down and the river became calmer, so that announcement was made that the contest would certainly take place.

As in Saturday's event Oxford won the toss, choosing the Middlesex side of the river in an endeavor to evade the wind which was from the north and penetrating to a marked degree. Although the crowds which viewed the race were smaller in numbers than on Saturday, they made up in enthusiasm what they lacked in multitude.

The start was effected at 12:28, with Cambridge going away with thirty to the minute in marked contrast to their faster stroke of Saturday. Oxford immediately settled down to a steady thirty-two stroke which was maintained almost throughout. The Dark Blue craft slipped through the water smoothly and easily, and it became evident by the time the first half mile point had been passed that the coxswain believed that his men had plenty of strength in reserve and could go away from their rivals at any time he gave the word.

At this stage Oxford was a scant yard in the lead. Shortly afterward the Dark Blue oarsmen got the word to increase their pace with the result that the boat was soon clear water in the lead. Cambridge struggled hard to regain the lost distance and they were forced to increase their stroke to thirty-eight a minute, which failed to improve their position as the Dark Blues refused to give away an inch of their advantage.

At Harode, the half way point, the Oxonians had a lead of three lengths, after which they began to take matters easy, the stroke, R. C. Bourne, calling for thirty-four strokes to the minute, a stroke which was followed by the Cambridge crew to such good purpose that they reduced the lead to two lengths.

From here on the Dark Blues began to use some of their reserve power and at Barnes Bridge had a lead of six lengths which they showed no inclination to relinquish, and which caused the Cambridge adherents to give up any hopes they had of a Light Blue victory.

At this stage the sky, which had been overcast, opened and a heavy hailstorm swept over the river. It was accompanied by strong gusts of wind, but there was little water shipped, as both boats had been equipped with wash boards.

During the last mile there was no change in the relative positions of the crews and Oxford won by a half dozen lengths. The official times for the Oxford crew at the various points were: One mile, 4:47; Hammersmith Bridge, 9:20; Chiswick Eyot, 14:06; Barnes Bridge, 18:30; Mortlake, 22:05.

'PRO' GOLFER WINS IN SOUTH.

T. L. MacNamara Best in Field for Open Championship at Pinehurst.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 1.—To-day's thirty-six-hole open event in the twelfth annual United North and South amateur golf championship resulted in a pretty race for first place between T. L. MacNamara, a Boston professional, and Charles Evans, Jr., of Edgewater, the French champion. The Boston man won, 144 to 148. Herbert Lagerblade and Stewart Maiden were next in line with 149 and 150, respectively.

Oswald Kirkby of Englewood was second among the amateurs with 152, while H. J. Topping of Greenwich scored 156 and Walter J. Travis of Garden City 159.

The prizes were $100 and the championship gold medal for first, $50 for second, and $25 for third. Evans gets the equivalent of his win in plate.

Golf Winners at Baltusrol.

Preliminary rounds for the President's, Secretary's, and Artic Cups have been decided at the Baltusrol Golf Club, thereby advancing these competitions to the match play stage. In the draw for the President's Cup, first round, J. H. Eggers and Henry Allsopp have been bracketed, while in the lower half W. Green and L. W. Callan will be brought together. For the Secretary's Cup the point leaders were as follows: Henry Allsopp, (8,) 12 5-6; J. S. Woodward, 2d, (5,) 12½; D. W. Granberry, (6,) 8½; Edward Slosson, (5,) 8⅓; H. C. Cornwall, (10,) 8; L. W. Callan, (5,) 7½; Caxton Brown, (12,) 6½; W. MacBain, (14,) 6 1-3; J. R. Shannon, (10,) 5¾, and Theodore Keer, (10,) 5¾.

Woodward and Cornwall withdrew, thereby leaving Shannon and Keer tied for eighth place. This deadlock will be settled later. The draw for match play follows: Allsopp versus MacBain, Granberry versus Green, Slosson versus Shannon or Keer, and Callan versus Brown. The qualifiers for the Artic Cup were: J. S. Woodward, 2d, (5,) 12; W. Green, 8,) 10; Henry Allsopp, (8,) 8½; Caxton Brown, (12,) 8½; H. P. McFadden, (18,) 8½; A. B. Ayres, (20,) 8½; W. MacBain, (14,) 8; D. W. Granberry, (6,) 6; L. W. Callan, (5,) 6, and H. C. Cornwall, (10,) 6.

Woodward and Cornwall also withdrew from the match play in this competition, the draw for the first round resulting as follows: MacBain versus Callan, Ayres versus Allsopp; Green versus McFadden, and Brown versus Granberry.

In the final round for the March President's Cup, Allsopp, (10,) defeated Oscar Woodward, (5,) by 2 up and 1 to play. While competing for the Artic Cup on Saturday Granberry returned a card of 78, 7—71, F. E. Walker getting second with 89, 14—75. Allsopp and Green both returned cards of 84, 8—76. In the ringer competition Granberry has secured a firm hold on first place with 18 "birds." J. S. Woodward, 2d, is next with 15 and Allsopp third with 14.

The selected score handicap finds Shannon, Cornwell, and E. C. Carter in a triple tie for the lead with net scores of 53. The first two have handicap of 10, while Carter receives a 7-stroke allowance. The latest to score in the Bogey contest for the Secretary's Cup were Granberry, (7,) 1 down, 3 points; Allsopp, (8,) 3 down, 2 points, and McFadden, (18,) 4 down, 1 point.

Rifle Association Seeking Funds.

The National Rifle Association of America is making a final effort to obtain the funds necessary to finance the rifle team for the Pan-American Union match to be held in Buenos Aires in May. About $2,500 of the $6,500 necessary has been contributed, and William Wolfe Smith has been sent from Washington to New York to interview business houses having commercial relations with Argentina and other South American countries for the purpose of raising the remaining $4,000.

NORTHRUP BEST FENCER.

Captain of Columbia Team Again Wins Lawrence Medal.

J. H. Northrup, '12, Captain of the Columbia fencing team, won the Lawrence medal in the university contest held last night in Earl Hall. Second place was awarded to L. Mouquin, '15, a freshman who worked his way through the preliminary bouts to a strong final bout on the strips with Northrup.

Northrup's victory last night marks the second time in succession that he has won the Lawrence medal, offered each year for the best foilsman in college. In none of his bouts in last night's contest was a single touch tallied against him, while he parried over one telling thrust after another in his various bouts with the other aspirants for the honors.

Seven men were entered in the tournament, four of whom were freshmen who had learned to fence in their "prep." schools. Mouquin, who showed up in exceptionally good form, pushed the other competitors, and in his bout with Northrup forced the 'Varsity Captain to guard more carefully and bring forward his best tactics to win. Mouquin was agile in his footwork, and with a little more experience should develop into a good foilsman.

Among the other men entered who showed superiority in form were T. Miller, '13, and L. Manning, '13. The other contestants were A. L. Bleeker, '15; P. L. Cannon, '15, and W. R. Gwathmay, '15. Prof. Murray and C. B. Miller, Columbia, acted as judges. S. Pitt, Columbia, refereed the bouts.

POLO AT LAKEWOOD.

Players Brave Wind and Cold to Get Into Action.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., April 1.—Polo started down here this afternoon in real earnest. A wintry gale reigned, and sweaters were in order, although D. Millburn had his sleeves pulled up and made his backhanders look as if it was real Summer weather. Originally the schedule was to have the regular matches start to-morrow afternoon, but owing to the defection of several players, who could not put in an appearance, it was agreed to have a practice game this afternoon and continue the practice on Wednesday and Friday, when at the end of that period the regular matches could be got under way.

There was a good attendance despite the chilliness of the weather, and more than a thousand spectators lined up to witness the game. It was decided to play an eight-period game of seven and a half minutes' duration. W. A. Hazard, A. S. Burden, H. P. Whitney, in the order named, with L. Waterbury, Jr., at back, in white, opposed W. R. Grace, J. A. Rawlins, D. Millburn, and W. J. Loew in red. The Reds won by 6 goals to 2. The line-up:

Whites—No. 1, W. A. Hazard; No. 2, S. A. Burden; No. 3, H. P. Witney; back, L. Waterbury.

Reds—No. 1, W. R. Grace; No. 2, J. A. Rawlins; No. 3, D. Millburn, back, W. G. Loew. Referee—S. Lee.

JEANNETTE'S EASY VICTORY.

Negro Heavyweight Stops Griff Jones in Four Rounds at Olympic A. C.

Joe Jeannette, the Hoboken heavyweight, enjoyed a workout of a little more than three rounds with Griff Jones at the Olympic A. C. last night, the intervention of Referee Dan Tone in the fourth putting an end to Jeannette's exhibition. The action of the referee saved Jones from a sure knockout, as he was completely outclassed in every way by Jeannette and did not have a chance. Jones weighed 174 pounds and Jeannette tipped the beam at 189 pounds just before entering the ring.

The only entertainment the bout afforded was furnished by Jeannette. During the second and third round he raised his guard four times and allowed Jones to punch as much as he care to, Jeannette remaining perfectly still until Jones had stopped. Then Joe began to box Jones with his left hand only, shooting in punches by the dozen without getting a return. In the third round Jeannette started in as if to finish the bout quickly and the crowd called for one more round. Joe acceded to the popular demand and assumed the defensive, finishing the last half of this round without allowing Jones to hit him. Early in the fourth round Jeannette floored Jones twice with lefts to the stomach, and, though Jones protested that he would continue, Referee Tone ended the bout.

MANDOT WHIPS OWEN MORAN.

New Orleans Boy Gets Decision Over Englishman at Memphis.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 1.—Joe Mandot of New Orleans won the decision over Owen Moran to-night in an eight-round bout before the National Athletic Club.

$17,000 for Wolgast-Mandot Go.

A $17,000 offer for a boxing match between Wolgast and Mandot is the latest bait handed out by the West Side Club of New Orleans, according to H. B. Stout, who has refereed many fights in the Crescent City, and who is now in Chicago. The $17,000 offer goes for a twenty-round bout to take place within two months.

Motor Boosters to Dine.

The annual dinner of the Big Village Motor Boosters will be held May 15. If the restaurant facilities at Travers Island, the Summer home of the New York A. C., are satisfactory, the dinner will probably be held at that place, otherwise City Island will be selected. In keeping with the custom inaugurated at the first dinner Duncan Curry, William J. Morgan, and E. E. Schwarzkopf will be the guests of honor. These three names were drawn from about twenty-five placed in a hat during the meeting. Fred J. Wagner offered the use of his farm at Smithtown, L. I., for the annual outing of the association.

Frank Skinner, Turfman, Dead.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 1.—Frank St. Dustan Skinner, widely known as a turfman and racing official, died at his home here to-day. He was official caller at the race meeting at Juarez, which closed recently. He was a son of Col. James A. Skinner and brother of Lieut. Col. Charles Skinner, Royal Engineers of Bermuda, and Col. Fred St. Dunstan Skinner, stationed in India. He came to this country from Ottawa, Canada, 25 years ago.

Vanderbilt's Satyrane a Winner.

PARIS, April 1.—At th Saint Cloud race meeting to-day W. K. Vanderbilt's Satyrane won the Prix de Tessancourt. Charles Pfizer's Hiawatha ran second in the Prix des Tourneroches and W. K. Vanderbilt's Iowa ran second in the Prix des Allees.

COMPETITION FOR AUTO ROAD RACES

Milwaukee Wants Vanderbilt and Dallas Grand Prize Events—Southwest in Racing.

With the rapid decline of automobile racing on road and track in the East a movement is developing in the West and Southwest to keep alive the sport. Three years ago road races were held at Motor Parkway, Riverhead, L. I.; Lowell, and other places on the Eastern seaboard, while many race meetings were held over mile dirt tracks in the Eastern section of the Southern States, while Daytona and Ormonde Beach offered almost unrivaled facilities for the advancement of motor car racing. The only event of real interest now held in the East is the Fairmount Park road race at Philadelphia, and even here there was considerable opposition before the sanction was granted by the Fairmount Park Commission.

Three cities are now in line for the Vanderbilt Cup, or Grand Prize contests, or both. Los Angeles and Milwaukee represent the West and Dallas the Southwest. The California promoters want both events; Milwaukee would promote both classics, but prefers the Vanderbilt Cup race. Dallas is bidding for the Automobile Club of America Grand Prize. Milwaukee's application is indorsed by the Board of Trade, Chamber of Commerce, Milwaukee Automobile Club, and also the Chicago Motor Club, while the various trade organizations of Los Angeles and Dallas are behind the applications from those cities.

There is a general feeling among motor car manufacturers and dealers that the salvation of the racing situation lies in the West and Southwest. Galveston has applied for a sanction for a week's racing on the sand beach and offers $6,000 in prize money in addition to trophies. Capt. Munn, who is representing the Galveston promoters, says the Galveston Beach course is as fast as Daytona or Ormonde, and in addition is more convenient and accessible. This meet is intended to be the first of a series which will place Galveston in the forefront and on a par with Los Angeles, Santa Monica, and Indianapolis.

Bard J. Ruddle, who is representing Milwaukee in the effort to obtain one of the great auto road classics, called upon William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., to donor of the Vanderbilt Cup, yesterday, but was referred to the Motor Cups Holding Company, which has charge of the Vanderbilt Cup race. As the Milwaukee promoters are very much in earnest in their desire to stage the big race, every effort will be made by Mr. Ruddle to obtain the sanction before he returns home.

It is well known that both Mr. Vanderbilt and the Motor Cups Holding Company would prefer to hold the race in the vicinity of New York. Long Island is preferred, as the home of the race, but the failure to obtain military protection prevents a return to the Motor Parkway course. It is also felt by the Motor Cups Holding Company that it was a mistake to give the Vanderbilt Cup race to Savannah, as it subordinated that event to the Grand Prize. Any responsible city offering proper inducements can get the Vanderbilt Cup race, but some assurance must be forthcoming that the event will be staged as the road feature of the year in the United States.

Meanwhile manufacturers and drivers are turning toward the Southwest and West to relieve the present state of uncertainty of racing. Up to the present time 80 per cent. of the applications for sanctions have come from that section of the country.

A. C. A. REPORT NOT READY.

Joint Committee on Revision to Ask for More Time.

The long-delayed report of the joint committee of the Automobile Club of America on the proposed revision of the by-laws and constitution will not be presented at the special meeting of the Automobile Club of America to-night. A number of meetings have been held both at the club and in the offices of Henry W. Taft, the Chairman of the Joint Committee, and although considerable progress has been made it will be several days before the report is completed.

The adherents of the present régime and the opposition members of the committee have been working in harmony, and it is expected that the final report will be satisfactory to both parties, thus avoiding the necessity of minority and majority reports. It is expected that President Sanderson will extend the time to-night for the special meeting for one week.

DISBROW'S WORLD'S RECORD.

Drives Car Over Circular Dirt Mile Track in 38⅗ Seconds.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., April 1.—Motor enthusiasts were still discussing Louis Disbrow's record run yesterday. In the Jay Eye See, a 290 horse power motor race car, Disbrow set a new world's record for one mile on a circular track of dirt, cutting the old mark of 51 4-5 seconds to 38⅗ seconds, a reduction of 13 1-5 seconds. The record was made at a meet sanctioned by the American Automobile Association. The previous record was made over the same stretch in 1907 by Barney Oldfield in his famous Green Dragon.

The time made by Disbrow was 93.26 miles an hour, and one lap was covered a world's record for 12 miles over an eart at 108 miles an hour. Disbrow also set track, making the distance in 11:17.

Harvard Spring Football Practice.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 1.—The opening Spring football practice of the Harvard squad was begun to-day on Soldiers' Field with thirty-eight candidates out. Three of the number only were veterans, Capt. Wendell, Gardner, and Parmenter. Coach Haughton put the men through an hour's work in passing, sprints, and falling on the ball, while Capt. Fisher of last year's team assisted in the work. At the same time the track men came out for their first work on the field, 110 men reporting.

Mile Motor Cycle Record.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 1.—W. E. Hasha of Dallas, Texas, lowered the one-mile world's motorcycle record from 40¼ seconds to 39 3-5 seconds at the Stadium one-third mile track yesterday. The meeting was a benefit for Jake de Rosier, holder of many world's championship records, who was injured seriously on the track several weeks ago.

MORE OLYMPIC TRYOUTS.

Tug of War, Wrestling, and Swimming Events to be Held.

At the last meeting of the Executive Committee of the American Olympic Committee Gustavus T. Kirby, President of the Amateur Athletic Union, made his report in relation to athletic conditions in the West, and he explained fully just what the West proposes to do in relation to the Olympic games. He reported that in and about Los Angeles the tug of war was very popular and that they had a team there that they felt confident could defeat any team in the world. The committee decided that a tryout should be held, and if they showed marked ability and the fund was large enough the Olympic Committee would enter them.

The committee also decided to hold in the Middle West some time in May Olympic tryouts in wrestling in the Graeco-Roman style. An expert committee of Graeco-Roman and catch-as-catch-can wrestlers will pass upon these contests, and the Olympic Committee will consider entering them. It was also suggested that in view of the fact that swimming tryouts were not held on the coast that the Western clubs hold swimming tryouts and forward the results to the Team Selection Committee, and at the proper time they would receive serious consideration.

SMALL PRICES FOR HORSES.

Evergreen Hackneys Attract Few High Bidders at Durland's.

Reginald C. Vanderbilt, who will sail to-day for a short trip to France before he officiates at the Horse Show at London, was among the purchasers last night at Durland's Academy, where the consignment of thirty-three high-bred hackney horses, the property of the Evergreen Hackney Stock Farm of Seaford, Del., were offered for sale under the hammer.

Most of the lot were registered horses and the get of the famous hackney stallion Forester, which also was offered for sale, but the bidding was not spirited and the majority of the horses were sold for nominal sums. The two horses bought by Mr. Vanderbilt were Genesta, half registered hackney, 12 years, and Winnifred, a trotting bred bay mare, which brought $235 and $200, respectively. J. D. Carroll bought twelve head.

The highest price was reached when Evergreen Perfection was purchased by C. W. McLean of Montreal, Canada, for $825.

Union College Football Schedule.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., April 1.—The Union College football schedule was announced to-day as follows:

At Schenectady—Amherst Aggies, Sept. 28; Hobart, Oct. 5; Worcester Tech., Oct. 12; Rutgers, Oct. 26; Hamilton, Nov. 16.

Rochester at Rochester, Oct. 19; Wesleyan at Middletown, Mass., Nov. 2; Stevens at Hoboken, N. J., Nov. 9.

The 1913 football schedule is now being prepared and includes games with West Point, Dartmouth, Brown, and several other large colleges.

Tarpon Along Florida Coast.

USEPPA ISLAND, Fla., April 1.—The silver tarpon have recovered from the cold wave that has been sweeping the gulf and are taking the bait. Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Hunt, J. H. D. Shultz, and Dr. Nash took ten last week weighing from 55 to 90 pounds. These silver kings of the sea seem to be coming in faster than ever before at this season of the year, and good sport is assured until June 1. Society is giving up its golf clubs for the tarpon rod.

RALPH CRAIG MAY RUN AT STOCKHOLM

Intercollegiate Champion Sprinter Is Training for the Trial Races.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, April 1.—It became known here to-day that Ralph C. Craig, formerly of the University of Michigan and the intercollegiate champion sprinter at 100 yards and 220 yards, is in training for the American tryouts to qualify for the Olympic Games in Stockholm. At present he is mostly concerned in perfecting his work in starting, at which he is poor. He has not determined at this time whether he will be a competitor in the tryouts to be held under the auspices of the Amateur Athletic Union in Chicago, or those to be held at the Stadium in Cambridge.

It is conceded that with Craig a member of the American team the chances of American success in the sprinting events have been increased materially. When last seen in competition at the intercollegiate championships at Cambridge he ran 100 yards in 9 4-5 seconds, and 220 yards in 21 1-5 seconds, equaling in the latter instance the world's best record held jointly by himself and Bernie Wefers. He will be entered under the colors of the Detroit Y. M. C. A. It is not known at this time whether he will be a competitor in the Pennsylvania relays, this being dependent upon his condition at that time, April 27.

Horine's Record Investigated.

The announcement that G. F. Horine of Stanford University jumped the remarkable height of 6 feet 6¼ inches last Friday at a dual meet, creating a new world's record and displacing the record of Mike Sweeney, which stood for seventeen years, was verified yesterday by John Elliott, President of the Pacific Association of the Amateur Athletic Union, for many years the recognized authority on athletics on the coast. No one who has followed the work of Horine doubts his ability to do such a feat. He was selected for the all-American collegiate team last year and would have been selected for the all-America team had he competed in open competition as often as Harry Grumpelt of the New York Athletic Club, who was selected. Horine competed in the A. A. U. championships at Pittsburgh last Summer, but was unplaced after a tie for third place with H. J. Burdick, Pittsburgh A. A., who was third, and Wesley M. Oler, Jr., New York A. C., at 6 feet 1 inch. In this event Harry Grumpelt and H. H. Porter each did 6 feet 8 inches, finishing in that order—first and second.

Contributions to Olympic Fund.

Julian W. Curtiss, Treasurer of the American Olympic Committee, yesterday received from the New England Association of the Amateur Athletic Union a check for $1,000. The Association announces that more money will follow. Mr. Curtiss also received the following contributions: Morton F. Plant, $100; Xavier Athletic Association, $25; Benjamin Gratz, St. Louis, $25; R. S. Barnes, $10, and P. J. McDermott, $2. It was announced that the Chicago contribution of $5,000 would be in the hands of the committee to-day.

15-Year-Old Boy Best Shooter.

CHICAGO, April 1.—C. F. Seelig, a 15-year-old schoolboy defeated all comers in the shoot of the Chicago Gun Club yesterday afternoon. The youngster won in the fifty target event by scoring 47 hits. Seelig led F. G. Bills, who was the next highest, by one point. The shooting was done from the sixteen-yard mark.

DEFEND STATE RIGHT TO FIX RAIL RATES

Governors File Protest with Supreme Court in Appeal from Minnesota Decision.

AFFECTS INTER-STATE RATES

Brief Denies Plea of Railroads That 2-Cent Passenger Rate is Confiscatory.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—The battle over State railroad rates for freight and passenger business began to-day before the Supreme Court of the United States. The eighteen Missouri rate cases were first taken up for consideration. Time for argument was extended until next Thursday.

The protest of the Governors took the nature of a brief, filed by a committee of Governors, Judson Harmon of Ohio, Herbert S. Hadley of Missouri, and Charles H. Aldrich of Nebraska. This committee was selected last September at a conference of Governors at Spring Lake, N. J.

The Governors' Brief.

The plea of the Governors, all of whom have been active in railroad legislation and litigation, was in the appeal from United States Circuit Judge Walter Sanborn's decision in the Minnesota Railroad rate case, involving the right of a State to regulate commerce within its borders.

The controversy in the courts, according to the brief which was drafted by Gov. Harmon and which was immediately filed with the clerk of the court, involved no conflict between the States and the Federal authority, but the more extraordinary question of whether railroad rights supersede and dominate State rights. The decision of Judge Sanborn, the brief contends, took the power of States to regulate railroads from the States and left the railroads free to charge whatever rates they please in their traffic within the States. He took the stand that if a State cannot regulate the railroads within its borders then there was no power to regulate them at all.

Position of the States.

In conclusion the Governors discussed the broad questions of State and inter-State commerce and said:

> In this, as in all other cases where inconvenience arises from the division of powers between State and Nation, the only safe and sure reliance is in the intelligence, resourcefulness, patience, and common interest of the American people. They will adjust their business to conditions which result from the form of government they have themselves adopted and require their agents in each branch to co-operate harmoniously and heartily.
> Only the short-sighted, and they are relatively few, will believe that commerce among the States can gain any real or lasting advantage at the expense of local commerce, or that local commerce can thrive long, if at all, from interference with general commerce, even though, by the indirectness of its effect, such interference may escape the condmnation of the law.

The appealed case grew out of that of Shepard versus Simpson in which the Minnesota railroad rate regulations, particularly the two cents a mile passenger rate law, were attacked as confiscatory.

Effect on Inter-State Rates.

The local rates fixed by that State were held unlawful and enjoined because the court found that because of them, carriers would have to change existing inter-State rates. The State's regulation of its own internal commerce was for this reason held to be, in effect, a regulation of inter-State rates.

The governor contended that the basis of the Minnesota case was that the regulation of inter-State commerce follows from the regulation of local commerce through "an inexorable rule of trade" as held by Judge Sanborn. In this connection, the brief quoted Mr. Justice Brewer's opinion in the case of Ames vs. Union Pacific; "Neither can I understand how the reduction of local rates as a matter of law interferes with inter-State rates. It is true that the companies may for their own convenience, to secure business or for other reason, rearrange their inter-Stae rates to make them conform to the local rates prescribed by the statutes but surely there is no legal compulsion."

The brief declared "the right of state regulation extends to every business conducted within its borders, although such business may also exend into inter-State commerce."

Briefs similar to that presented by Gov. Harmon were filed by permission of the Court by the Attorney General of South Dakota, Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas, Alabama and Oklahoma and by the railroad commissions in Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas, South Dakota, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Missouri, and Texas. Each State will be affected directly or indirectly by the decisions.

FEBRUARY EARNINGS BETTER.

Sixty-five Railroads Show a Net Increase of Nearly 12 Per Cent.

The reports of American railroads for February, so far issued, show a big improvement over January and over February of last year. Sixty-five companies have reported aggregate gross revenues of $138,920,000, compared with $127,870,000 for the corresponding month of last year, an increase of 9.06 per cent. Expenses have increased on the average, 8.37 per cent. The aggregate net for these roads, which totaled $30,811,000, shows an increase of 11.55 per cent. for February.

The Pennsylvania and New York Central contributed largely to the improved showing. The Pennsylvania lines, East and West, had gross revenues of $26,283,000 for the month, an increase of $3,412,000. Net earnings were $3,882,000, an increase of $1,094,000. The Central lines earned a total of $19,966,000 gross, an increase of $1,871,000, while the month's net increased from $2,214,000 in 1911, to $3,264,000.

The Illinois Central, which has been having a hard time with strike difficulties, made another poor statement for February, although better than for recent months preceding. February's gross earnings ran $90,000 behind those for last year, while the net carried a decrease of $481,000.

Metal Exchange Election.

James E. Pope was unanimously elected President of the New York Metal Exchange yesterday. He was on both the regular and opposition tickets, and polled 110 votes. For the other offices, except Treasurer, the opposition candidates were elected, the opposition vote totaling 58. R. L. Crooke, who was candidate for Treasurer on both tickets, was elected by the same vote as President Pope. A. B. Hall was elected Vice President. This is the Board of Managers elected: B. Hochschild, H. W. Hendricks, G. E. Behr, A. Baerwald, Edwin Groves, W. Parsons Todd, Erich Benjamin, and J. H. Lang. For Arbitration Committee: C. J. Marsh, J. Langeloth, E. J. Keane, P. R. Jennings, and Humphrey D. Bond.

More Oil Company Dividends.

News of two more dividends declared by former Standard Oil subsidiaries reached Wall Street yesterday. The Indiana Pipe Line Company, which has $5,000,000 capital, shares being of $50 par value, declared a dividend of $3 a share, which is equivalent to 6 per cent. The dividend is payable on May 15 to stockholders of record on April 15. The Eureka Pipe Line Company, which has $5,000,000 capital, in shares of the par value of $100, declared a $10 per share, or 10 per cent., dividend. This is payable on May 1 to stock of record on April [illegible]

WANT PATENT CASE REHEARD

Government and the Defeated Join in Asking a Full Bench Decision.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—The defeated parties to the "patent monopoly" case, which was recently decided, four to three, by the Supreme Court of the United States, to-day asked the court to rehear the issue before a full bench. The Government joined in the appeal with a request for permission to intervene, because the case is regarded of the greatest public importance and involves the enforcement of the Sherman anti-trust law.

The Government's application, signed by Attorney General Wickersham and Solicitor General Lehmann, vigorously declares the court's decision, sustaining the right of a patentee to attach to the sale of an invention restrictions stipulating that the purchaser must use in connection with the patented article only such supplies, which are not patented, as are bought from the patentee of the invention, seriously concerns the United States in several civil and criminal cases now pending under the Sherman law.

The decision, the Government submits, "extends the power of property, held under letters patent beyond the warrant of the Constitution, and the grant of the patent laws, and puts it above the authority of Congress to regulate commerce among the several States, and above the universal limitation, expressed in the maxim, "So use your own as not to injure another's."

The distinctive right, conferred by the letters patent, cannot be made by the act of the patentee to attach to anything in which some quality of his invention does not exist, the petition continues. "It springs from the invention and is limited to the invention; and, while it is exclusive, it is not absolute; and so a contract if also related to the invention, if its purpose and effect is to secure control or monopoly of something else than the invention, is not saved, even as a contract by anything in the patent laws, but offends the public policy of the United States and is void as being in restraint of trade."

The importance of the question, the Government declares, cannot be overestimated, because the entire production and commerce of the country may be burdened and even monopolized, if the exclusive right of inventors may be extended beyond their inventions.

"The monopoly, now being attempted in some branches of manufacture and commerce, through the expansion of patent rights, it is added, "is not the monopoly awarded to inventive ingenuity by the patent laws, but is a monopoly devised and secured by commercial cunning in violation of the anti-trust laws."

JUDGMENT GOOD ANYWHERE.

Wisconsin Must Enforce Minnesota Finding Against Stockholders.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—A far-reaching principle of law was decided to-day when the Supreme Court held that one State could not refuse to enforce judgments of another State in regard to the liability of stockholders for corporation debts.

The decision was announced by Justice Van Devanter in the case of Theodore R. Converse, receiver of the Minnesota Thresher Manufacturing Company, a Minnesota corporation, against Caroline A. Hamilton, a stockholder in the company, but a resident of Wisconsin. A Minnesota court had issued an order assessing stockholders of the company 100 per cent. on their holdings to meet the debts of the corporation.

When an attempt was made to collect on this order the Wisconsin courts held that the Minnesota order was not such a judgment as the Federal Constitution required to be given in another State "full faith and credit," because the Minnesota court had no jurisdiction over a Wisconsin stockholder, not served with notice of a proceeding against him or her. This holding was reversed to-day.

HOARDED FUNDS COMING OUT.

Postal Savings Banks Have Brought $20,000,000 Into Sight.

The National City Bank in its circular for April calls attention to the growth of the Postal Savings banks and comments on the stimulus they have been to the development of more uniform supervision by the State authorities in various parts of the country.

"The high record made by the Postal Savings System," says the circular, "is best indicated by the fact that the Post Offices so far designated have received deposits aggregating nearly $20,000,000, with a reasonable prospect that by the end of the present calendar year this amount will have been increased to from $40,000,000 to $50,000,000, with the service fully self-supporitng. This large sum, which it is asserted by the department officials has come almost entirely from hiding, has been put into active circulation to the mutual advantage of the thousands of depositors and the country at large.

"Up to this time 8,003 Post Offices have been designated as savings offices, which nearly completes the Presidential list, and it is expected that within a week or two work will be begun with fourth-class offices. The department is now at work ascertaining what fourth-class offices are located in towns having banking facilities, and these will be designated first.

"The very great success of the Postal Savings System has stimulated a number of State Legislatures to interest themselves in strengthening banking conditions, and it is expected that in the near future all restrictions as to the pledging of securities will be removed and at the same time laws will be enacted and strengthened which will require a satisfactory supervision of State banking institutions."

TOBACCO TRUST MUST PAY.

Damages of $26,000 Awarded to an Independent Competitor.

NEW ORLEANS, April 1.—Damages of $26,000 were awarded to-day against the American Tobacco Company by a jury in the United States District Court in the anti-trust suit brought by the People's Tobacco Company of New Orleans for alleged conspiracy to destroy competition.

The People's Tobacco Company originally alleged damages of approximately $300,000. By order of the court the principal item, involving the alleged loss of profits, was stricken from the bill.

The testimony developed that the Craft Tobacco Company, which put cigarettes on the local market in opposition to a special brand made by the People's Tobacco Company, was owned and controlled by the American Tobacco Company. It was shown also that the American Tobacco Company sold special brands of cigarettes at the rate of 20 for 5 cents in the territory of the People's Tobacco Company, but prohibited brokers from selling these cigarettes outside of this territory.

The jury awarded actual damages of $8,778. Under the provisions of the Sherman law this sum is tripled, giving the plaintiffs a total of $26,184.

REDUCE FEDERAL DEFICIT.

Revenue for March Exceeds Expenditures by $10,638,000.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—The Federal Treasury is fast overtaking the big deficit of the current fiscal year. The high total of revenue for the month of March, exceeding the expenditures by $10,638,000, has reduced the deficit from $20,570,000 to $9,932,200. The surplus a year ago was only $1,963,000.

Total receipts for March reached $59,296,00 and disbursements, exclusive of the Panama Canal, $48,658,000. The receipts from internal revenue were greater than during March a year ago, and customs showed evidences of Spring trade in excess of March, 1911. A total of $30,409,000 was received from customs and $23,758,000 from internal revenue last month.

The total gold coin and bullion in the trust funds of the Treasury was $1,028,482,000; a month ago it was $1,025,723,000. The total balance in the general fund to-day was $131,534,000, while at the close of February it was $121,898,000. The total cash in the Treasury to-day was $1,915,[illegible]

FOUR INDICTED IN EVERGLADES INQUIRY

C. C. Elliott, Former Federal Engineer, Whose Report Wilson Suppressed, One of Accused.

PERSECUTION, HE ASSERTS

Blames Land Boomers—He and His Assistants Charged with Approving False Vouchers for Drainage Work.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Indictments growing out of the Florida Everglades investigation in the Department of Agriculture were returned by the Federal Grand Jury here, to-day, against C. G. Elliott, Allison D. Morehouse, Ray P. Teele and Frank E. Singleton. The defendants are charged individually with having approved or presented false vouchers against the Government. Elliott and Morehouse have asserted that the charges of technical violation of the law against them and their dismissal from the department were brought about by their opposition to Everglades land promoters.

Elliott formerly was Chief of Drainage Investigations in the Department of Agriculture; Morehouse was assistant chief; Teele formerly was an assistant chief of Irrigation Investigations, and Singleton was an accountant.

The charges were made to Secretary Wilson by J. O. Wright, formerly an assistant to Elliot in the department, but now Chief Drainage Engineer of the State of Florida. Wright, according to testimony at the recent congressional investigation, made a very favorable report on the Florida Everglades. Elliot did not approve it. Wright resigned and went to Florida, and the report, amended by Elliott, eventually was suppressed by order of Secretary Wilson.

The Secretary also suppressed a circular letter prepared by Elliott, in which some facts relating to the Everglades lands were presented in answer to the letters of inquiry from thousands of investors in the various land schemes. Mr. Elliott testified recently tahat two land agents had threatened him in his office, and in the presence of other officials, if he insisted in taking an unfavorable view of the Everglades. They also threatened to take the matter "higher up."

Wright charged that Elliott, Morehouse, Singleton and Teele had technically violated the law in approving vouchers for a transference of public funds. In 1909 the appropriation for drainage work was exhausted. The work in hand was nearly finished, however, and the officials borrowed money to complete it, paying it back out of the next year's appropriation by placing the lenders on the payrolls. It was not charged that any of the defendants profited by the transaction, nor that the Government suffered loss.

Secretary Wilson dismissed Elliott and Morehouse and suspended Singleton. Teele had resigned some time ago. Solicitor McCabe referred the matter to Attorney General Wickersham and to-day's indictments resulted.

"The indictment against me is neither a surprise nor a matter of concern," said Mr. Elliott to-day. "It is only another step in a persecution, the reasons for which are already too many, and will, in good time, be apparent."

George Carter, Clerk of the Joint Committee on Printing, on the witness stand at the Everglades hearing, to-day, enlivened the proceedings by referring to the testimony of Mr. Elliott, in one particular, as a "lying statement."

"If you had made that remark about me," interrupted Chairman Moss, "there would have been a fight in about three minutes."

"I withdraw the remark and apologize to the committee," said Mr. Carter. "If any other gentleman cares to take exception to it I will go outside."

Mr. Elliott, the object of the remark, heard it, but said nothing.

The last witness to be heard will be Secretary Wilson. He will take the stand on Wednesday and the committee will then begin consideration of the report to be submitted to the House.

COMMERCE COURT REVERSED.

Inter-State Board Upheld in Regard to Inter-State Reports.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—The signal victory was won to-day by the Inter-State Commerce Commission when the Supreme Court decided that the commission had the power to compel water lines to report to it regarding intra-State as well as inter-State business. It was the first case from the Commerce Court to be considered by the Supreme Court, and the Commerce Court was reversed.

While the case before the court concerned immediately only water lines, the Government declared in arguing the cases that the defeat of the commission in this case would mean that railroads also need not report regarding intra-State business and the commission's whole system regarding reports relative to commerce would be worthless.

The orders in question required reports regarding the operating expenses and operating revenues of water lines, and affected principally lines on the Great Lakes.

The Commerce court held that the commission had power to require reports only regarding traffic carried under joint arrangement with railroad carriers, but not as to purely intra-State and port-to-port business.

Justice Day said that a mistake had been made by the Commerce Court in confusing knowledge of intra-State commerce with regulation of it. He said it was within the power of the commission to require, a show down of the whole business," intra-State as well as inter-State. Justices Lurton and Lamar dissented.

STANDARD OIL OUSTER LEGAL

Supreme Court Upholds Anti-Trust Laws of Missouri.

WASHINGTON, April 1—The anti-trust laws of Missouri were upheld to-day by the Supreme Court of the United States. The court approved of the State's action in ousting the Standard Oil Company of Indiana and the Republic Oil Company of New York from the State and fining each $50,000 under these laws.

Proceedings were begun in the State against the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, the Republic Oil Company of New York, a New York corporation, and the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, a Missouri corporation, charging them with having entered into a combination among themselves to control the prices of oils and to prevent competition within the State.

The Supreme Court of Missouri found them guilty. The Waters-Pierce Company was a Missouri corporation and the court set a day when its charter would be forfeited if the company did not pay a $50,000 fine. The fine was paid. Only the Standard and the Republic, which were ousted, appealed to the Supreme Court.

The assertion was made that the corporations could not be ousted in the same proceedings. Furthermore, it was urged that ousting corporations was a greater punishment than was inflicted upon individual violators by the laws.

The International Harvester Company recently appealed to the court from a Missouri ouster decree, the appeal being based on the ground that these laws were unconstitutional.

Justice Lamar announced the unanimous opinion of the court. He held that no right of the corporations had been denied under the law in the trial.

For a Good Friday Holiday on 'Change

Waking up to the fact that the Stock Exchange does not close automatically on Good Friday as it does on legal holidays, brokers started a belated petition in circulation on the floor yesterday asking the Governing Committee to decree Friday a holiday. All of the European exchanges are closed on Good Friday. The petition received the signatures of practically all of the active brokers yesterday, and it is expected that the Governors will act favorably on it at a special meeting.

THE BUSINESS WORLD

FRUIT TO BE FULL WEIGHT.

Market Denies That Georgia Peaches Will Come in Short Baskets.

Some difference of opinion exists in the New York fruit market as to the probable outcome of the stand taken by the Bureau of Weights and Measures against the handling of short shipments of Georgia peaches by local dealers. The recent letter of Commissioner John S. Walsh stating that determined action would be taken against dealers handling such shipments, has caused apprehension among certain commission men. Many of them fear that the publicity given by the letter to the shipment of 20,000,000 alleged short four-quart peach baskets to Georgia fruit centres will have a detrimental effect on the demand of the general public for this class of fruit. Others believe that the Commissioner has been misinformed, and is laboring under a false impression.

It is claimed by representative dealers that the four-quart Georgia peach basket, which in Southern trade circles is commonly called a cup, is not short under the standard measure of various States. The cubic contents of these cups is equivalent to a little over a gallon, which means that they contain over four quarts of fruit if packed even with the top. It is said to be the usual practice of shippers to pack them higher than the top, with the result that they contain nearer five quarts than four. Six of these baskets are shipped in a single carrier, and it is the contention of some dealers that this carrier is not supposed to contain twenty-four quarts of peaches, but six baskets.

The law covering the point made by Commissioner Walsh specifies that the quart measure must contain 67.2 cubic inches, the standard four-quart basket containing therefore 268.8 cubic inches. To meet the intent of this law it is suggested in the market that shippers stamp the net weight of the contents on each basket, seeing in every case that the basket contains as much or more fruit than required by the certifying stamp.

Advices from Atlanta received yesterday state that the Georgia Fruit Exchange will see that all shipments to the New York market controlled by it will fully comply with the law.

IRISH LINEN TO GO UP.

Increase in Cost of Flax and British Coal Strike Will Affect Rates.

Despite the fact that in most cases the production of Irish linen mills is already under contract for the next few months, the outlook is anything but cheerful for manufacturers. Advices from Belfast received in the New York market yesterday state that the scarcity and high price of flax is rapidly raising the cost of production, and that there is every prospect for a general advance in the price of the finished material.

The chance of an early settlement of the English coal strike is about the only solace to be found in the present situation. The strike has been the cause of short and irregular shipments to the various markets of the world, and with the trouble over a decided improvement in the condition of the trade on the other side is expected.

Business in the New York market does not as yet reflect the unsettled condition of the Irish trade to any great extent, but it is said that advances to be made in the primary market will have their effect here within the next few months.

The feature of the local market at the present time is the renewal of the demand for linen waistings, which is said to have improved greatly within the past week. Dress linens are also reported to be selling freely.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Lace Pins Are Held Not to be "Jewelry"—Other Tariff Decisions.

The Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday sustained a protest filed by George Borgfeldt & Co., regarding the classification of lace pins composed of steel plated with gold. Collector Loeb held the articles to be "jewelry" and exacted a duty of 60 per cent. under the provisions of the Tariff act of 1909. The importers alleged that as steel is the component material of chief value, the tax should be 45 per cent. under the metal schedule.

Judge Sharretts states in his decision for the customs tribunal that an analysis of the pins shows that gold is a minute and insignificant part of the articles compared with the base metal. Furthermore, the pins are of the kind in popular use and have a small value. The decision that pins of this kind bought and sold by the gross on a basis of six or more for a cent are jewelry is subject to serious doubt. While the importers did not submit testimony in their behalf, the protest is upheld and the Collector reversed.

David Gunsburg, a passenger on the Cunarder Lusitania, was given lower rates of duty on fox skins. He declared the value of the skins to be 7,000 francs, but the customs officials exacted a 20 per cent. duty on a sum considerably in advance of that declared as market value. After listening to the testimony of well-known New York furriers Judge McClelland finds in favor of the importer. The Custom House authorities are ordered to make a refund of the duties on the skins.

Importers of evergreens from Holland won a victory when the board, in a decision by Judge Waite, held that the plants are commercially known in the importing trade as "seedlings" and as such free of duty. The Government took duty at the rate of 25 per cent. on the value under the present tariff as "nursery or greenhouse stock." It was contended by W. K. Harris and William Larzelere & Co., the importers in the test case, that any tree or shrub grown for seed is a "seedling," regardless of its age, size, or treatment subsequent to germination. This view is upheld by the board in view of the Government's failure to make out a case.

COMMODITY MARKETS.

Wheat Irregular, Coffee Weak, Other Staples All Show Gains.

Wheat was active and irregular, breaking early, steadying late on old crop months, but was weak on new. Corn and oats were active and at new high season levels, with continued unfavorable weather. Provisions also made new high levels, on the small movement of hogs. Cotton scored small further advances. The outlook was for more favorable weather, but futures sold locally were well absorbed. Liverpool advices and spot dispatches were an aid to bulls. Cottonseed oil continued active and strong, selling at new high levels, influenced by the continued upward tendency of lard and larger consuming inquiry.

WHEAT.

Wheat broke sharply in the morning trading, the May delivery rallying in the afternoon, recovering a greater portion of the decline, while the new crop deliveries were relatively weak. Although cables were generally firm and higher, the early action of the American markets was very disappointing considering the strength abroad, and prices ran off ⅝c. to 1⅛c. English markets were ¼c. to ⅝d. higher; Berlin ⅝c. higher, Antwerp 1½c. to 1⅛c. higher, and Budapest 1⅛c. higher. The Buenos Aires market was also up. The foreign statistics were bullish as far as the Liverpool stocks were concerned, which were less than one-third of the amount on hand a year ago. World's exports were 1,000,000 bushels larger than expected, amounting to 11,376,000 bushels, against 12,288,000 last week, and 12,144,000 last year. The amount of grain afloat for Europe increased 2,952,000 bushels, and aggregates 49,552,000 bushels. The American visible supply of domestic wheat decreased 2,012,000 bushels, [illegible] 784,000 bushels, and the Canadian visible increased 738,000 bushels. The weather conditions were more favorable for both the growth of the Winter wheat and for the beginning of Spring work in the Northwest. This was reflected in the weakness in the new crop deliveries. The break in May, which was led by the West, was apparently due to the execution of stop orders, support being withdrawn, while the selling was in operation, but as soon as the selling was over the offerings again were quickly taken, and buying was aggressive for houses which were large buyers on the last dip. Owing to the primary elections the Chicago Board of Trade will be closed April 2 and 9, but will not close on Good Friday. Notwithstanding the strength of the foreign markets no export business was reported. Excepting three loads of Manitoba, No. 2 Red was quoted at $1.07⅞ f. o. b.; No. 1 Northern, $1.17⅞; No. 2 Hard Winter, $1.12⅝; No. 1 Manitoba, $1.18⅜.

OTHER GRAINS.

CORN.—Corn was active and strong, with new high levels made for the season prices, closing a little under the best. More rains in the South and Southwest, limited offerings of corn from the country, and strong interior cash markets, which were quoted ½c. to 1½c. higher, had a good deal of effect in stimulating general commission house demand. The visible supply decreased 287,000 bushels. The European markets were firmer, but export business is out of line. World's exports were 3,358,000 bushels, against 3,001,000 bushels the previous week. The amount of corn afloat for Europe decreased 1,071,000 bushels. Spot corn was firm, with No. 2 quoted at 79½c. f. o. b.; car lots were nominal.

OATS.—The market was strong and also made new high levels, closing at an advance for the day. Further unfavorable weather for Spring work, a decrease of 201,000 bushels in the visible, and the strength of other grain influenced buying. Western receipts were comparatively full. Cash oats were firm, with standards, and No. 3 White, 60½c. in elevator; No. 2 White, 61c.

PROVISIONS.

Hog products made new high levels for the season, owing to the small live hog movement, only 68,000 at all points, a further gain of 5 to 15c in live hog prices, and continuation of fair demand for product. The close was at about the best.

COTTONSEED OIL.

Advances were extraordinary as compared with the sessions of the last several months. Buying of new crop oil deliveries was particularly urgent, and other months were sympathetically influenced. There were some assertions of unwarranted aggressiveness on the part of refining interests in enforcing higher levels, but it was ostensible that the strength in lard and the tenor of early dispatches pertaining to the cotton crop prospects were inciting considerable buying for both long and short account. An improved export demand for cottonseed oil has been reported, with a moderate home trade claimed, and while there is contradiction noted in the trade advices, a majority of the reports would indicate betterment. Crude continues well absorbed and, in keeping with the new high levels for futures, advanced, quoted at 4.80@4.93 in the Southeast. Future prices were quoted:

COTTON.

With a comparative lack of outside interest the market quietly attained new high levels for the movement, with new crop deliveries at record prices for the season. The tone during the entire session was firm, with gains at the outset of from 3 to 5 points, augmented to a small additional degree in the ensuing trade. Offerings, thought to emanate from leading spot interests, were again absorbed, with a continuation of the scattered demand noted last week, so as to create the impression in some quarters that the market was displaying latent strength.

Weather news was mixed, but it is evident that the realization that extremely favorable conditions are necessary leads to a waiting disposition rather than an aggressive bearish attitude with the first indication of more seasonable conditions. There were moderately heavy rains in parts of Arkansas and Tennessee, with scattered rain in other central and Western sections, but, on the other hand, aside from scattered showers anticipated in the Eastern belt, there was little moisture expected over night. Flood advices, varying in tenor, were unabated, and while there were some claims that about 1,000,000 acres had already been inundated, with considerable damage, other authorities maintained that there was little apprehension as to a general breaking of the levees, while a substantial part of the affected and jeopardized ground was not utilized for cotton. There were some private predictions of a more satisfactory week in the cotton belt, ostensibly based upon the weekly weather forecast from Washington stating that decidedly less precipitation was probable this week than had occurred during the preceding weeks.

Contributing to the steadiness during the day were the cables from Liverpool, which were again higher than due. The Continent was reported a buyer in that market, and it was evident that weather advices from this side were exerting influence. Spot sales were rather small, amounting to only 6,000 bales. Manchester reported yarns hardening and cloths quiet and firm. But meagre information was at hand concerning the labor situation abroad, although it is confidently predicted that on Thursday there will be shown decisive voting by the miners to resume work.

There were advances of ⅛c in the Augusta and Norfolk spot markets yesterday, while other spot centres reported quotations generally unchanged. At Savannah a liberal business transpired. The local spot market was .05c advance, with middlings at 10.95c. Additional stress seemed to be given to prevailing New York quotations, as compared with the values quoted at Southern spot markets, New Orleans, and Liverpool. Accounts from dry goods centres are still encouraging, although at the higher levels a slackening in inquiry of some description is noted, which, however, has not been regarded as unnatural, with the persistent advancing prices of recent date.

COFFEE.

Coffee sales amounted to 80,250 bags, but price changes were small, first prices being unchanged to 5 points higher. The market then sagged a little, closing at 5 points decline to 1 point advance. Havre advanced ½f to ¾f, while Hamburg was unchanged to ¼ pfennig decline. Rio was barely steady at a decline of 75 reis, while Santos was unchanged. Spot coffee inactive, but firm, with very light offerings of desirable grades, unchanged at 14⅛c for Rio No. 7. Total warehouse deliveries in the United States for the week were 96,830 bags, against 89,749 last week and 98,085 last year. Of the former amount New York had 81,853 bags. Receipts at Rio and Santos for the week were 113,000 bags, against 116,000 bags last week, 107,000 last year, and 68,000 two years ago. Contract prices follow:

FINANCIAL MARKETS

RAILWAY EARNINGS GOOD

Money Easier in Berlin—Our Bankers Draw on Foreign Balances to Strengthen Reserve.

In yesterday's trading aggressive strength was shown in the metal shares, including most of the Copper stocks and United States Steel, but the rest of the list was relatively dull and its tone irregular. A further rise in the price of copper and reports that steel manufacturers were having more success in making effective the higher quotations which they have been putting on several classes of products during the last week or ten days, were influential in furthering the forward movement in the stocks upon which interest converged. The day's Stock Exchange record suggested anew that the market had become one of special movements, and for this reason such strength as was displayed was not considered as convincing an indication of the market's true position as the much more general upward movement which occurred during the earlier stages of the advance. Reading, which was conspicuously strong on Saturday, occupied a much quieter position yesterday. Indeed, few of the railroad stocks shared to any substantial extent in the rise which took place in a number of the industrials.

Information of a favorable character bearing on the railroads was not lacking, however, for the returns of railway earnings for the month of February continue to show improvement in both gross and net. The New York Central lines and the Pennsylvania system were among those which contributed to the average improvement of over 9 per cent. in gross and over 11 per cent. in net for the month of February shown by the sixty-odd railroads which have so far reported for that month. Hopes based on current reports of increased net earnings are necessarily modified, to some extent, however, by the insistent demand of railroad labor for increased wages. The demanded of the locomotive engineers have not yet been settled, but already other classes of railroad labor are asking, as the engineers are, for a higher wage.

The Supreme Court, in the first decision which it has rendered on appeal from the Commerce Court, held yesterday that the Inter-State Commerce Commission can require reports on intra-State business, as well as on inter-State business from common carriers subject to the regulation of the Commission. As is suggested in yesterday's decision, knowledge of the railways' operations in intra-State traffic is quite different from regulation of that traffic, but this decision, nevertheless, is one more in the line of those which directly or indirectly bear on the conflict between State and Federal control of intra-State rates. Incidentally, the fact that in the first case on appeal decided by the Supreme Court the Commerce Court has been overruled will be variously viewed by those, on one hand, who felt that the Commerce Court would prove an effective barrier against exactions of the Inter-State Commerce Commission, and on the other hand by those who have been endeavoring to have the Commerce Court done away with for fear that the decisions of the court would have just that effect.

A decline in the open discount rate at Berlin was in keeping with the expectation that following the completion of the preparations for the quarterly payments money will move to a lower level at that centre. This indication of monetary ease abroad is particularly timely, in view of the very small surplus reported by the Clearing House institutions on Saturday. Indeed, it was only the showing of the trust companies which prevented an actual deficit in the Clearing House statement, inasmuch as the banks themselves were $211,000 short of their requirements. Easy conditions abroad will make it possible for this market without incommoding those of Europe to withdraw funds from the other side, as such withdrawals may be necessary to strengthen our home reserves. It is because of the availability of this secondary reserve that such a showing as that made by the banks in last week's statement is without immediate effect in hardening rates here. The continued decline in foreign exchange rates yesterday suggested that the process of transforming part of our foreign reserve into home reserve was already under way.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Eastern Money for California.

The American National Bank of San Francisco reports that an impending avalanche of Eastern exchange from Los Angeles and San Diego, together with April's tax settlement, has operated as a restraint upon an exchange market that otherwise would have shown considerable buoyancy. Ten millions of Los Angeles bonds and $2,000,000 more from San Diego have been negotiated in the East, and the larger part of the money in payment soon will be forwarded to California. For this reason the San Francisco banks are holding a surplus of actual cash which ordinarily would have been invested in Eastern exchange. The silver situation is quiescent, with little business in sight, although there is keen interest as to what the future course of the market will be.

Unionizing Traction Employes.

If the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers can persuade the Subway and Elevated motormen to quit, which General Manager Hedley says is impossible, they will have accomplished more than the street railway unions have been able to do. Two years ago an effort was made to organize the traction employes of Manhattan and Brooklyn. The men showed such indifference, and in many cases opposition to the movement for a union that the walking delegates gave them up as hopeless. In Brooklyn the movement was effectively ended by the discharge of the first dozen Elevated guards who agreed to help agitate. The pension system has been a strong argument against the formation of a union for strike purposes. When a man joins in a walkout he loses all the credit he may have accumulated in several years' service.

Baers Retirement Again Rumored.

Following the abrupt rise in Reading on Saturday Wall Street heard yesterday that President Baer, whose retirement has been rumored on several occasions, will leave the Presidency of the Reading Company on June 30 next. The last occasion on which this report was circulated brought forward a statement from a close associate of the President of the Reading Company that he would at most leave the Presidency to become Chairman of the Company It was not thought likely that he would sever his association with the company entirely. With a new President the Reading Company, it was being suggested yesterday, would likely adopt some new policies, and among these some thought would be a more liberal attitude toward the distribution of earnings. Many times it has been reported that some special distribution was to be made by Reading, and each time the failure of these reports has been coupled with intimations that some special distribution would be much more likely if it were not for Mr. Baer's opposition.

Failures So Far in 1912.

Although, taken as a whole, the first quarter of this year has made a poor showing in the matter of commercial casualties, there was marked improvement as the quarter progressed, the March showing, for instance being not only better than February's, but the best for any month since October. According to the returns compiled by Bradstreet's there were 4,000 failures in the three months period, a total only four times exceeding in the same quarter of the past thirty-one years, these being in 1908, 1897, 1896 and 1885. Compared with the first quarter of 1911 there was an increase of 14 per cent., and compared with the first quarter of 1908, when the after panic effects were in full swing, the decrease is only 4.4 per cent. In respect to the total of liabilities the comparison with previous years is not bad, the total of $52,885,461 being actually less by 9 per cent. than the total liabilities in the first three months of 1911, though it is an increase of 16 per cent. over 1910. Compared with 1908, on the other hand, a decrease of 52 per cent. is shown.

⁂

Copper sold at 15⅞ cents yesterday, with the quotation at 16 cents late in the day, although actual sales at that figure could not be definitely placed. The advance in the price in London to the equivalent of 16 cents, presumably as a result of the clearing since the last session of the Metal Exchange on Friday of the coal strike situation, will not have its full effect on the Continent and in this market until to-day. Producers are well sold, and some of the large agencies are refusing to quote. Others who have copper for earlier than July delivery are offering only small lots on inquiries. The Copper Producers statistics are expected on April 9, and while the large interests are reluctant to make guesses at this juncture there is some disposition to concede an increase in production during March. As far as the immediate future is concerned close observers among the producers can see no let-up in the demand. Reports from abroad tell of a probable immediate increase in British requirements because of the fact that England was practically out of the market during the period of uncertainty engendered by the coal strike and may now be expected to make up for the time lost.

"There is a real and general expansion in the industries using copper," said the representative of one of the largest interests yesterday. "It is shown not only in the statistics of diminishing visible supplies, but can be checked up in other ways. In Germany, for instance, not only is the industry going full tilt, but we are constantly receiving advices of plans for expansion of capacity. In France, too, there is expansion and a remarkable increase in manufactures for export. Here the increase in demand is well illustrated in the thirty per cent. gain in deliveries for the past four months over the corresponding period of a year ago. The increased use seems to be in all lines. I happened to see some figures of the use of copper in making copper sulphate, which goes largely into agricultural uses. Where 981,120 pounds were used in January, 1910, two months ago the figures were 3,414,000 pounds."

Stock Market Averages.

The twenty-five leading railroad stocks averaged up to a new high record for the year yesterday, and closed nearly a point above their best closing average since Jan. 1. The twenty-five industrials showed improvement, but were quite a bit below the high level of last Thursday. The averages follow:

STOCKS OUT OF TOWN

Many Gains in Local Issues in Fairly Active Markets of Other Cities.

RECORDS MADE IN BOSTON

American Sugar Sells Above 130 for the First Time Since 1909, and Coppers, Too, Make Records.

Trading in the principal out-of-town markets yesterday as indicated by dispatches to THE TIMES, was characterized by strength, though the session was dull in some centres.

Prices were firm in Baltimore, but gains were confined largely to small fractions. International & Great Northern was in some demand and advanced more than 1 point for the day.

Stimulated by the advance in the metal, copper stocks made material upward progress in Boston, though active operations were limited to groups of favorites. In these advances of several points were the rule rather than the exception. Calumet and Hecla rose to its highest in many months, or since the decline that followed the announcement of the merger plan early last year Mayflower made a new high record, and several others reached tops for the movement. Among those most prominent for strength and activity were Quincy, Superior, Wolverine, Lake, Mohawk, Franklin, Arizona, Commercial, East Butte, and Butte Balaklala. Amalgamated rose about 3 points on buying for New York and local accounts. The shining star in the industrial list was American Sugar, a favorite with New England investors, which crossed 130 for the first time since 1909, responding to heavy earnings, talk of an extra disbursement and disagreement of the jury in the prosecution of officials. New Haven moved up 2 points on fairly heavy purchasing.

Trading in local stocks in Chicago was featureless, except for an advance of something more than 1 point in American Can preferred, a decline of 1 point in Diamond Match, and a drive at Illinois Brick The Brick shares were well supported, however, and an initial loss was made up later. Chicago banks, the Stock Exchange, and Board of Trade will be closed to-day on account of the Aldermanic election. Chicago clearings were $56,314,144, and balances $3,838,569. New York exchange was 20c. premium.

Except for another break in Asphalt stocks and a further up turn in Lake Superior securities there was very little worthy of recording in the Philadelphia market. Buying of Lake Superior stock broadened considerably, the price advancing across 30 before the first hour was over on transactions of nearly 3,000 shares for that period. In the afternoon a better demand sprang up for the traction stocks than has been in evidence for some days, and the result was an advance of about one-half point each in Rapid Transit and Union Traction and of 1 point in Philadelphia Traction. Philadelphia Electric and United Gas Improvement remained rather heavy. The trading elsewhere was insignificant, as far as the purely local list was concerned. The arbitrage group, however, was quite active and strong, particularly United States Steel and Reading.

Manufacturers' Light and Heat and Pure Oil common were again active features in Pittsburgh. The latter sold at from 10½ to 10⅝. Manufacturers' Light was moderately strong, selling up to 32½, which, in effect, represents a new high point since 1906, as the stock became "ex-dividend" last week and did not get above 32¼ with the dividend on. Ohio Fuel Supply sold "ex" the dividend of 2 per cent., or 50 cents per share, at 46½. Oklahoma Natural Gas was one-half point higher at 64. Crucible steel preferred failed to reflect the strength of United States Steel common in New York, selling at 82.

Yesterday's transactions on the various out-of-town Exchanges, as reported to THE NEW YORK TIMES, were as follows:

BOURSES OF EUROPE

Money Is Easy at the Outset in London, but Hardens in the Afternoon.

STOCKS THERE STRONGER

Firm in Paris, Lower in Berlin—New High Record for Marconi Shares.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Tuesday, April 2.—The London Times in its City article this morning says:

"At the opening a general disposition was looked for to increase ease in short loan rates. There was also a decided inclination to take bills. This view of the position was not held very long. Money was more plentiful, and the market had no difficulty in repaying the Bank of England the moderate total of loans which fell due. But even during the morning it began to be perceived that the supply was not over-abundant. Some fairly heavy calls due to various transfers of cash took place, including those connected with the payment and renewal of $100,000,000 in Union of South Africa bills. None of these operations resulted in putting much, if any, fresh money into the market.

"During most of the afternoon the demand was not relaxed, as had been hoped, but at the close balances were occasionally lent at under 3 per cent. The India Council called a small amount from the market discount.

"Rates which had declined in the morning as compared with Saturday, hardened again in the afternoon, partly on the withdrawal of $100,000 in gold from the Bank for export to Argentina.

"The tone of the stock market was remarkably firm, in view of the Jewish holiday to-day with general holidays approaching. The large budget surplus, the prospect of cheaper money, and the news that miners were returning to work in considerable numbers had a favorable influence in home markets. There was some increase in the volume of business.

"Another favorable feature was the buoyancy of Argentina railway stock on the prospects of bumper traffic.

"Copper shares showed great strength, owing to the sharp rise in the price of the metal.

"American shares rallied in the late dealings, when there was some keen buying of United States Steel and Reading common.

"Apart from the rise in copper shares the only item of interest in the mining market was the weakness of tin shares.

"Elsewhere the feature of the day's history was the activity in Marconi shares."

LONDON, April 1.—The stock market was quietly cheerful under the influence of cheap money and the coal trade outlook. Consols and home rails were dearer, and copper shares were buoyant under the lead of Rio Tintos. Marconi stock was strong and sold at 7¼, a new high record. Mexican rails were flat.

American securities were quiet and featureless during the forenoon. Later United States Steel and Amalgamated Copper advanced, but the rest of the list eased off. The closing was uncertain.

Money steady, 2¾@3 per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 3¼@3 5-16 per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for three months' bills is 3¼@3 5-16 per cent.

Investors Who Know Us

One of the reasons why investors who know us favor securities which we offer is that unlike many other banking houses we ourselves have a heavy cash interest in the equity behind each individual security. This in itself is a guarantee of proper and efficient management.

We offer only the securities of public utility corporations which we control permanently and operate.

The Golden Mean

of conservative investment to-day is, in our opinion, represented by Public Utility Bonds.

They partake of the nature of Municipal Bonds in safety, but yield a higher income return.

They can be bought and sold as readily as many Railroad Bonds, but they are not subject to market fluctuations. Considering the degree of safety offered by well-selected Public Utility Bonds, they yield the highest return of any securities in the market at present.

The Price Cereal Products Company manufactures and sells Algrain, a new and distinctive cereal, combining the four most nutritive grains—wheat, rice, oats and barley—in just the proportions to make a complete and well balanced easily digested food, with a delicious flavor at low cost to the consumer.

The Company's exclusive right to manufacture and sell Algrain is protected by patents, trade-marks, secret processes, etc.

The Company bears a name valuable in the trade. Doctor Price, the inventor of Algrain, is also the inventor of baking powder and of Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder, which he has sold to the so-called Baking Powder Trust. He is now President of the Price Flavoring Extract Company, a successful and long established corporation.

Based on reports of Haskins & Sells, certified public accountants, on manufacturing costs and selling price from six months' operation at part capacity of plant at Yorkville, Michigan,

The original copy of this report may be seen at the office of the undersigned.

The Company has no debts funded or otherwise.

The Company will have, on completion of present plan, tangible property valued in excess of the amount of the preferred stock, without allowance for the value of patents, trade-marks, etc. The original copies of inventories and appraisals made by Messrs. Haskins & Sells and the Appraisal Engineering Company may be seen at our office.

The purpose of this issue is for the acquisition of property and to provide ample working capital.

In view of the great success of, and large dividends paid by, cereal companies under ordinary circumstances, we believe that the Price Cereal Products Company is assured unusual success because of its strategic advantages and that initial investors in this stock through the present offering will secure an investment which will greatly appreciate in value.

THE OUTSIDE SECURITIES.

Curb Stocks Active with Fractional Gains in Mining List.

Curb trading was in substantial volume yesterday, both among industrial and the mining issues. There were a number of substantial gains in the tobacco and Standard Oil former subsidiaries, though Standard Oil of New Jersey was weak, reacting from Saturday's spurt on the unconfirmed rumor of a melon cutting. The shares opened yesterday at 368 and sold off to 360. Few of the established mining issues failed to show small gains over opening levels, though these were not in all cases maintained to the close.

Transactions reported yesterday in the outside market, with opening, high, low, and last prices, were as follows:

FINANCIAL.

International Traction Company

NOTICE TO OWNERS OF FIFTY-YEAR 4% COLLATERAL TRUST GOLD BONDS OF THE INTERNATIONAL TRACTION COMPANY, AND TO DEPOSITORS UNDER THE BONDHOLDERS AGREEMENT BEARING DATE JUNE 21, 1910.

Pursuant to the terms of Article Fifth of the Bondholders Agreement, dated June 21, 1910, notice is hereby given by the Committee acting under the said agreement that it has caused to be made and filed with the Depositary, J. P. Morgan & Co., 23 Wall Street, in the City of New York, N. Y., a statement of further proposed changes and modifications in and of a departure from the Bondholders Plan, all of which are set forth in said agreement, designated the "Substituted Bondholders Plan." The Committee announces that 99% of the above mentioned bonds have been deposited, and that the said Substituted Bondholders Plan has been proposed in compliance with the expressed wishes of the owners of large numbers of deposited bonds.

The Substituted Bondholders Plan is necessary because the Public Service Commission of the State of New York has indicated unwillingness to allow for the new company proposed in the Modified Bondholders Plan, a capitalization sufficient to enable the Committee to carry that Plan into effect. The Substituted Bondholders Plan, the Committee is confident, will assure a speedy and satisfactory readjustment of the finances of the company and will be acceptable to the Public Service Commission.

The Substituted Bondholders Plan provides that all holders of said bonds of the Traction Company who have deposited or who shall deposit the same with the Committee, shall receive therefor, without expense, new 4% collateral trust bonds of the International Traction Company of the same par value as the deposited bonds, together with cash for all accrued interest on the deposited bonds from the date of the last interest payment thereon by the Traction Company or by the Committee to the date from which the new bonds shall draw interest.

The deposited collateral trust bonds are part only of an authorized issue of $30,000,000. The new issue is to be limited to $18,335,000 par value, that being the aggregate par value issued and outstanding of the present deposited collateral trust bonds.

The new bonds are to mature on the first day of July, 1949, the same date of maturity as that of the deposited bonds, and are to be secured by the same collateral, including all of the stock of the International Railway Company (the principal operating company, which owns the stock of the other operating companies) except that, in place of the $4,343,977.83 unsecured certificates of indebtedness of the operating companies, there is to be substituted as security at least an equal amount of a new issue of 5% bonds, hereinafter more fully described, to be made by the International Railway Company, and to be secured by a mortgage which will be a lien on all its properties.

The security for the new collateral trust bonds of the Traction Company thus will be materially increased by the aforesaid substitution, as the said certificates of indebtedness are unsecured, while the said new 5% mortgage bonds of the International Railway Company will represent a direct lien on its properties.

The stock of the International Railway Company which, as hereinbefore mentioned, constitutes the principal part of the security for the present collateral trust Traction bonds, represents an equity in the properties of the operating companies upon which there is the prior lien of $12,651,500 par value of existing mortgage bonds. It is an essential part of the Substituted Bondholders Plan that by the mortgage securing said new 5% mortgage bonds of the International Railway Company there shall be provided a sinking fund estimated to be adequate to provide for the payment of all of said underlying mortgage bonds, on or before the maturity of the new collateral trust bonds of the Traction Company in July, 1949, so that the stock of the Railway Company may represent the direct ownership of the entire property, subject only to such bonds as (with the consent of the Public Service Commission as hereinafter more fully described) may be issued under the Railway Company's new mortgage, for additional property and for the above proposed substitution of bonds for the unsecured certificates of indebtedness of the operating companies.

Originally it was contemplated that, under the provisions of the indenture securing the existing collateral trust bonds of the Traction Company, the additional bonds of said issue, aggregating $11,665,000, were to be issued for the purpose of refunding said existing mortgage bonds of the operating companies. In that event, all of said $30,000,000 of existing collateral trust bonds of the Traction Company would be outstanding at the maturity thereof, and all but about $1,000,000 of the said existing bonds of the operating companies would have been retired. Under the Substituted Bondholders Plan, the aforesaid sinking fund is so calculated that, on the maturity of the new collateral trust bonds of the Traction Company, there shall be outstanding only $18,335,000 thereof, and that all the $12,651,500 of underlying bonds of the operating companies shall have been retired.

The necessity hitherto existing for the application of the income of the Railway Company for extensions and betterments was the underlying cause for the existing defaults in the payment of interest on the outstanding collateral trust bonds of the Traction Company.

Through the creation of its said new issue of 5% mortgage bonds, hereinafter more fully described, the International Railway Company will be placed in a position itself to provide for the financing of necessary extensions and betterments to its properties, without being required to exhaust its net earnings for such purposes, thus leaving its income available for dividends on its stock which, when received by the Traction Company, will enable that company to make its interest payments on its said new collateral trust bonds.

The deed of trust securing the new collateral trust bonds of the Traction Company will contain provisions prohibiting the Traction Company from permitting the Railway Company to create or to issue any mortgage bonds on its property, other than its said new 5% mortgage bonds, or to issue any further bonds secured by any existing mortgages on its property or on the property of the other operating companies, or any part thereof, or to borrow money except in the usual course of business for its current corporate purposes.

The International Railway Company's new issue of 5% mortgage bonds hereinbefore mentioned will bear interest at the rate of 5% per annum, will mature fifty years after the date thereof, and in order to provide for the future capital requirements of this rapidly growing property, will have an authorized issue of $60,000,000 par value. These bonds will be issuable for the following purposes only:

(a) To refund (subject to the action of the Public Service Commission) said underlying bonds of the operating companies (the sinking fund providing, as estimated, sufficient funds to take up the new bonds issued for such refunding purposes prior to the maturity of the new collateral trust bonds of the International Traction Company); outstanding car trust certificates of the Railway Company; and obligations incurred in the purchase of equipment and in improvements and betterments to the property of the operating companies since January 1, 1911;

(b) To provide for the exchange of the said $4,343,977.83 of certificates of indebtedness of the operating companies for such new 5% mortgage bonds of the Railway Company to be pledged, as hereinbefore mentioned, as security for the new collateral trust bonds of the Traction Company; and

(c) To provide (subject to the action of the Public Service Commission), under restrictions, for additions, extensions and additional properties for the purpose of the Railway Company, to an amount at par not to exceed the actual cost price thereof.

The Public Service Commission of the State of New York requires that all maintenance and depreciation of physical properties be paid for out of earnings, thus providing an added insurance against the capitalization of such expenditures.

The Public Service Commission further requires that there be submitted to it for its examination a detailed statement respecting all additions and betterments, and only such expenditures as, in its opinion, actually represent an added capital investment may then be paid or be provided for out of the proceeds of these bonds.

The said bonds of the Railway Company will be secured by a mortgage which will be a lien on the physical properties of the Railway Company and upon the stocks of the operating companies, until such time as the necessary proceedings can be completed to merge the operating companies into the Railway Company, whereupon the said mortgage will become a direct lien on their properties also.

In order to expedite the early consummation of the Substituted Bondholders Plan, depositing bondholders are requested to indicate their consent thereto my mailing to the Secretary of the Committee, at the address set opposite his name hereto, a consent in the following words:

> "The undersigned, holder of certificate of deposit for $ of the Fifty-Year 4% Collateral Trust Gold Bonds of the International Traction Company issued under the Bondholders Agreement bearing date June 21, 1910, hereby assents to the Substituted Bondholders Plan dated March 22, 1912, adopted by the Committee and filed with the Depositary on said date."

Under the provisions of Article Fifth of the original Bondholders Agreement, depositing bondholders who dissent have two weeks, until April 23, 1912, within which to withdraw their bonds, if they so desire.

Dated New York, March 22, 1912.

Monthly estimates will be paid of ninety per centum (90 per cent.) of the work done at the contract price. Every proposal for said work must be accompanied by a money deposit in the form of a draft or certified check upon some good banking institution in the city of Albany or New York, issued by a national or State bank in good credit within the State and payable at sight to the Superintendent of Public Works for five per centum (5 per cent.) of the amount of the proposal.

The person whose proposal shall be accepted will be required to execute a contract and furnish bonds within ten days from the date of notice of award delivered to him or them in person or mailed to the address given in the proposal.

Upon execution of the contract and approval of bonds, the certified check or draft will be returned to the proposer unless the same shall have been presented for collection prior to such time, in which case the amount of the deposit will be refunded by the Superintendent of Public Works.

The deposits of bidders other than the one to whom the award of contract shall be made will be returned immediately after the award has been made.

The amount of bond required for faithful performance will be ten per centum (10 per cent.) of the amount of the estimated cost of the work according to the contract price, and an additional bond, known as the labor bond, in the sum of ten per centum (10 per cent.) of the amount of the estimated cost of the work according to the contract price, will be required as security that the contractor will pay in full at least once in each month all laborers employed by him upon the work specified to be done in the contract.

In the event that more than one surety company is offered as surety on said bonds, co-insurance only will be accepted.

Each proposal must be addressed to the Superintendent of Public Works, Albany, N. Y., and must be indorsed on the envelope with the name of the construction for which the proposal is made.

Award, if made, will be made to the person or persons whose proposal shall be lowest in cost to the State for doing the work, and which shall comply with all provisions required to render it formal. Before any award shall be made the lowest bidder will be required to satisfy the Superintendent of Public Works of his ability to provide suitable equipment and materials for the proper performance of the work.

The right is reserved to reject all proposals and readvertise and award the contract in the regular manner if, in the judgment of the undersigned, the interests of the State will be enhanced thereby.

DUNCAN W. PECK,
Superintendent of Public Works.

TO NAME NEW DESTROYER.

Commodore Henley's Descendant Will Attend Launching of the Henley.

Miss Constance Henley Kane, of 635 Park Avenue, a descendant of a family that has for years had some member serving in the navy, will leave for Boston to-day on her way to Quincy, Mass., where she will name the new torpedo boat destroyer Henley, which is to be launched to-morrow at the yards of the Fore River Ship Building Company. From Boston Miss Kane will go to Quincy with her uncle, Lieut. Col. Theodore Porter Kane, commanding the Marines at the Charlestown Navy Yard.

Miss Kane is a great-great-granddaughter of Commodore Henley, for whom the new torpedo boat destroyer is named. She was proposed as sponsor for the Henley by Rear Admiral Staven B. Luce, who is her great uncle. Miss Kane is a granddaughter of Rear Admiral Theodore F. Kane, who died four years ago at the Park Avenue Hotel.

The Henley is a sister ship of the Perkins and Stewart, now in commission. She is the latest type of her class and is equipped with both turbine and reciprocating engines, said to be the first vessel of her class to carry both kinds of engines.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—The Consular and Trade Report will note the following foreign trade opportunities. Further information regarding these may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Manufactures, care of the Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C., giving the number of item referred to.

8,462. CEMENT WORKS.—An American Consul has forwarded a communication from a business man in his district, in which he expresses a desire to interest Americans in the erection of cement works in a territory containing a vast amount of cement stone of the first quality, of which he holds the right of exploitation.

8,463. HAND CORN GRINDERS.—A business man in a European country is interested in the possible purchase of American hand corn grinders. The inquirer has received a number of propositions from manufacturers of milling machinery intended for large establishments, but he is not interested in devices of this character at present. He desires to import hand corn grinders for the preparation of stock feed.

8,464. MACHINERY OF VARIOUS KINDS.—A Consul in the United Kingdom has received an inquiry from a merchant who would like to get in touch with manufacturers in the United States of the following machinery: Revolving and oscillating air-heated pans used for coating pills and other chemists goods, and machinery for cracking nuts, almonds, and apricot stones.

8,465. STREET CLEANING MACHINERY.—A commission representing a foreign municipality has recently been investigating the subject of mechanically-driven vehicles for street cleaning and has studied the systems in use in other cities and has recommended that a sum be included in next year's estimates for the purchase of five machines, of a type to be approved after the results of various trials have been ascertained. As this may be an opportunity for American manufacturers of mechanically driven street cleaners, it might be to their advantage to communicate with the Superintendent of Street Cleaning in the city in question.

8,466. TURKISH RAW SILK.—An American Consul in the Levant furnishes the name of a prominent exporter of Broussa silk who wishes to establish relations with American importers.

8,467. TOMBAK PLATE.—A Consul in Germany reports that a firm in his district is in the market for 3,000 kilos (6,613 pounds) of tombak plate (tombakblech.) He furnishes references. Prices should be quoted for certain cities. Correspondence, which should be in German, should be addressed direct to the firm.

8,468. ROSIN AND BENZINE.—A business firm in a European country wishes to purchase rosin for soap-making purposes in lots of fifty tons. Also benzine for domestic purposes in lots of fifty tons. Exceptional bank references furnished and correspondence may be in English. The Consul also states that the firm is a large purchaser of glucose and other materials from American firms.

8,469. COTTONSEED OIL, TALLOW, LARD, AND CORN OIL.—A business man in Germany is desirous of representing American manufacturers of cottonseed oil, tallow, lard, and corn oil in that country.

8,470. AUTOMOBILE AGENCY.—An American engineer who has been connected with various manufacturing concerns in Europe for the past fifteen years, the last four of which has been with an automobile company, would like to secure an agency for an American automobile.

8,471. COPPER EXCHANGE.—Consul James E. Dunning of Havre, France, reports the creation of a copper exchange in that city to take the place of the indirect buying through London, where the French have heretofore had to deal. Latham & Co. of Havre, an influential house with American bank connections, would like to hear direct from Americans interested, and can give any required assurances as to responsibility.

8,472. RUBBER STOCKINGS AND BANDAGES.—A business firm in Germany would like to get in touch with American manufacturers and exporters of first-class rubber abdominal bandages, rubber stockings, and bandages.

8,473. MACHINE FOR CUTTING BRISTLES AND FIBRES.—The publishers of a trade journal in the United Kingdom would like to secure the name of a manufacturer of a machine for cutting bristles and fibres fitted with a steel circular knife, which it is believed is produced in the United States.

8,474. PLUMBING GOODS AND SANITARY SUPPLIES.—The plumbers in a European city are in the market for plumbing goods and sanitary supplies.

8,475. AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS.—A business firm in the West Indies, having offices in a number of cities, desires receiving a proposition for granting an exclusive agency for selling agricultural implements.

8,476. INCUBATORS AND POULTRY SUPPLIES.—A Consul in France is in receipt of an inquiry from a person about to be engaged in chicken raising on a large scale in his district for catalogues, with export price lists, of high-class and thoroughly reliable incubators, taking at least 300 eggs.

8,477. SILK GOODS.—An American Consul in a European country has an inquiry from a business firm for the names of American manufacturers of silk goods known as the "Sunrain silk," sample of which accompanied the report.

8,478. CATALOGUES FOR CONSULATE.—American manufacturers are requested to renew their catalogues, which have been filed in the American Consul General's office, Singapore, Straits Settlements. It is stated that many of these catalogues are not up to date. Interest is being aroused in these files, and concrete results in the shape of orders to American manufacturers have already been obtained.

8,479. PAPER TOWELS.—A firm of direct importers and sole agents for certain lines of paper goods in the United Kingdom informs an American Consul that it would like to secure the names of American manufacturers of paper towels, such as are perforated and prepared in rolls.

8,480. OLIVE OIL.—An American Consul reports that an exporter in a Mediterranean country, who has been engaged in the olive oil trade for many years, desires to establish relations with some American firm to represent him as agent in this line.

8,481. FOODSTUFFS AND FANCY GROCERIES.—A British firm of merchants and commission agents has indicated to an American Consular officer its desire of securing additional agencies for American foodstuffs of all kinds.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Frank Work and Kernochan Houses on Madison Square Sold for Twenty-Story Loft, Representing $1,500,000 Investment—Other Loft Deals—Investor Buys Upper Broadway Corner—Washington Square Deal.

Activity in the midtown loft zone was the predominant feature of the realty market yesterday, the most important and interesting deal being the sale of the two old dwellings at 11 and 13 East Twenty-sixth Street, facing Madison Square on the north, and which will be torn down early in May for a big loft structure. With the demolition of the house at 13 one more of the many famous residences of prominent New Yorkers will pass away, this being the home for many years of the late Frank Work, the well-known financier and horse fancier, who died there just a year ago. When Mr. Work took up his residence there Madison Square was the centre of fashionable residences, and he lived long enough to see the majority of them give way to towering commercial structures. The house at 11 is owned by J. Frederic Kernochan.

Both houses have been sold by M. & L. Hess, represented by Henry L. Dinkelspiel, 11 for Mr. Kernochan and 13 for the estate of Frank Work, with the abutting property at 6 and 8 East Twenty-seventh Street, to the Flemish Realty Company, Joseph E. Goldberg, President. The frontage on both streets is 58.6 feet and 197.6 feet deep The Flemish Realty Company will take title on May 1, and work will then begin upon a twenty-story commercial building, which is to be ready for occupancy early in February, 1913.

The entire operation will represent an investment of about $1,500,000. The new building will be between the Brunswick Building on the west and the recently completed structure to the east erected by Henry Corn, and which was fully rented before its completion. Only one of the old-time residences will remain in the block when the Kernochan and Work houses are torn down—the old Field dwelling at 21 East Twenty-sixth Street. On the southeast corner of Twenty-fifth Street and the square an old apartment, with the former Hegeman and Harper residences, have lately been torn down for a tall office and loft structure.

Big Plot sold in Rope Walk Block.

A big deal in the old "Rope Walk" block, Twenty-ninth Street, between Sixth and Seventh Avenues, was made by M. & L. Hess, who sold for William P. Dixon the old buildings at 115 to 123 West Twenty-ninth Street, 92 feet front, and taking in a portion of the old "rope walk," to the Realty Holding Company. Last year the same brokers sold for Mr. Dixon 129 to 141 West Twenty-ninth Street, which included a part of the "rope walk" and Pacific Place. This plot has since been improved by two modern twelve-story buildings, both of which are fully tenanted.

Loft Deal in Thirty-seventh Street.

A loft deal which will result in the erection of a modern twelve-story building between Seventh and Eighth Avenues has been made by I. Randolph Jacobs, who has sold to the Marmac Construction Company the plot at 241 to 245 West Thirty-seventh Street, 75 by 100. The buyers will erect at once a building for heavy loft uses, to be ready for occupancy Dec. 1 next. In part payment Mr. Jacobs takes the seven-story loft on the northwest corner of Fifth and Lewis Streets, on a plot 49 by 114 feet.

Buys in Fourth Avenue District.

The Japan Paper Company, located for many years at Union Square and Sixteenth Street, has purchased from the Realty Holding Company (N. J. & E. H. Hess) the old four-story dwelling at 109 East Thirty-first Street, on plot 22 by 98 feet, situated 120 feet east of Fourth Avenue. The buyers will alter the building for their future business home. Edgar A. Mannig was the broker in the transaction.

Upper Broadway Corner Sold.

A Broadway corner in the choice west side district, being the southeast corner of Broadway and Seventy-eighth Street, has been sold by Frederick W. Saltzsieder to an investor. The plot fronts 51.7 feet on Broadway and 45.2 feet on Seventy-eighth Street, and is covered with a two-story commercial building.

In the Washington Heights section, the plot of four lots on the east side of Amsterdam Avenue, 49.11 feet south of 160th Street, extending through to St. Nicholas Avenue, purchased a few days ago by Louis K. Ungrich, is reported to have been resold by him to the Middle Town Realty Company, John Katzman, President. The property has frontages of 50 feet on both avenues. It is said that the buyer will improve the property with an apartment house.

Washington Square Deal.

William A. White & Sons have sold for Henrietta M. Parker the property 73, 74, and 75 Washington Square South, an irregular plot, having a frontage of 62.4 feet on the square, a depth of 95 feet on the west side, and 56 feet on the east. The plot was accumulated by Mrs. Parker in 1900 and 1905. In 1909 a three story and basement garage was erected on the plot and leased, through the same brokers, for a term of years to Cuneo & Podesta.

Park Avenue Dwelling Sold.

The three-story factory structure at 9 Elizabeth Street has been bought by Adler & Gottesman from Elias A. Cohen. The plot is 25 by 100, and the buyers will use it for their business.

LEGAL NOTICES.

NEW YORK SUPREME COURT, NEW YORK County.—In the matter of the application of LOUIS L. LORILLARD, for the discharge of a certain mortgage of record.

The petitioner, Louis L. Lorillard, having presented his petition in the above-entitled proceeding praying for the discharge of record of a certain mortgage made by Peter Lorillard and Catharine A. Lorillard, his wife, to Hartford Life Insurance Company, dated December 4, 1854, and recorded December 9, 1854, in Liber 482 of Mortgages, at Page 197, in the office of the Register of the County of New York, given to secure the payment of $35,000 and interest and covering premises situate in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, and this court being satisfied that the said petitioner has made reasonable effort to ascertain the names of one or more of the receivers of said Hartford Life Insurance Company, if any were appointed, or of the person who had or has the care of the closing up of the business of such corporation, and that the same cannot be ascertained with reasonable diligence, and on reading and filing the affidavit of George A. Lewis, verified the 28th day of March, 1912,

Now, on motion of Bowers & Sands, attorneys for the petitioner, it is hereby Ordered that the receiver or receivers of said Hartford Life Insurance Company, if any were appointed, and the person who had and the person who has the care of the closing up of the business of such corporation, Richard S. McCreery, Louis L. Lorillard, and Henry G. Barbey, as Trustees under the last will and testament of Peter Lorillard, deceased, George L. Lorillard, Beeckman Lorillard, and Katherine B. Lorillard, and the Register of the County of New York, and all persons interested, show cause at a Special Term, Part I. of this court, to be held in and for the County of New York, at the County Court House in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 15th day of April, 1912, at the opening of court of that day, or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard, why said mortgage should not be discharged of record; and it is further Ordered that this order be served personally not later than the 10th day of April, 1912, upon the Register of the County of New York, and that this order be published twice in The New York Law Journal and in The New York Times, the last publication to be not later than the 10th day of April, 1912.

FORECLOSURE SALE.

NOTICE OF FORECLOSURE SALE PURSUANT TO ADJOURNMENT.

CHANCERY SALE.—In pursuance and by virtue of decrees of foreclosure and sale in favor of THE NEW YORK TRUST COMPANY, complainant, made and entered by the Circuit Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Michigan, Southern Division, and of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Northern District of Ohio, Western Division, and of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of Ohio, Eastern Division, which decrees were dated on the 24th day of April, A. D. 1911, and entered in said Eastern District of Michigan, Southern Division, May 4th, 1911; in said Northern District of Ohio, Western Division, May 6th, 1911, and in said Southern District of Ohio, Eastern Division, May 19th, 1911, in causes pending in said respective courts, and which were entitled: The New York Trust Company, complainant, vs. Detroit, Toledo & Ironton Railway Company et al., defendants; Knickerbocker Trust Company, complainant, vs. Detroit, Toledo & Ironton Railway Company, defendant; William J. Courtney et al., complainants, vs. Detroit, Toledo & Ironton Railway Company, defendant; (Consolidated Cause. In Equity); the causes pending in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Northern District of Ohio, Western Division, and in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of Ohio, Eastern Division, being ancillary to the cause pending in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Michigan, Southern Division; and in pursuance of orders directing adjournment of sale, entered therein on the 26th day of September, A. D. 1911, and on the 23d day of December, A. D. 1911, NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the undersigned, Special Master Commissioner of said courts, will sell at public auction to the highest bidder, on TUESDAY, THE NINTH DAY OF APRIL, A. D. 1912, at 12 o'clock noon, Standard time, of said day, at the former Delray Station building of the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton Railway Company, on River Street, in the City of Detroit, County of Wayne, and State of Michigan, being on the property described to be sold, as an entirety in one parcel, all the properties by the said decrees directed to be sold, to wit: ALL the properties by the said decrees declared to be covered by the General Lien and Divisional First Mortgage from the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton Railway Company to The New York Trust Company, dated May 2, 1905, and by the said decrees directed to be sold.

The said Master Commissioner will accept no bid of less than $2,500,000, which minimum sum was fixed by the Court in the said decrees in order to prevent a sacrifice and to protect the interests of all concerned as the least sum for which the said property should be sold. He will not accept any bid unless the bidder shall forthwith place in his hands at the time of bidding, as a part of his bid and a pledge to make the same good if accepted and the sale confirmed, the sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars in cash, certified check or certificate of deposit approved by the Master, which sum shall be forfeited in case the bidder, if successful, shall fail to make good his bid and comply with the terms of the said decrees and of any orders thereafter, made as to future payments or otherwise. But the same shall be applied on the purchase price in case of such compliance, or returned in case the bid is not successful or the sale shall not be confirmed by the court. Nor will the Master accept a bid unless the purchaser shall, upon making his bid, pay to the Master for deposit in the registry of the said Court the sum of $11,769.80, or such other sum as shall be adjudged to be due to the Tiffin & Northwestern Railroad Company on the matters set forth in its intervening petition in the said suit; provided the said sum shall not have been paid by the receivers or other parties to the said suit prior to the said sale. If the bid of the purchaser is not accepted and the sale to him confirmed said last named deposit shall be returned to the purchaser; otherwise the said fund shall be held subject to such orders as the Court may make on the said intervening petition. The right of the court is reserved to reject any bid and to retake and resell the property or any part thereof upon failure of the purchaser to comply with any order of the Court as to the payment of the remainder of the purchase price or any part thereof, or upon failure of the purchaser to comply with any condition of the sale or any order of the court in that regard.

There shall be paid in cash of the price at which the said properties shall be sold in addition to the amounts paid at the time of the sale, such further portions of the purchase money as the court shall direct. The remainder of the purchase price may be paid either in cash or in claims payable under Article 3 of the said decrees, or in receivers' certificates payable under Article 3 thereof, or in the said General Lien and Divisional First Mortgage bonds with overdue coupons thereof, or in Consolidated bonds with overdue coupons thereof at such proportion of value as the holders thereof would be entitled to receive thereon on distribution of the proceeds of the sale in case the purchase price were wholly paid in cash.

All taxes and assessments upon the properties sold and all said receivers' certificates, and all claims payable under said Article 3 of the said decrees will be allowed out of the purchase money where the purchaser produces proofs of such liens and claims and receipts for the payment thereof, or surrenders such certificates. The Special Master will, in his discretion, accept, temporarily, instead of the actual delivery of the said bonds and coupons or receivers' certificates, the certificate of any trust company, satisfactory to him, that it holds the said bonds and coupons or receivers' certificates subject to the order of the said Special Master, and will deliver them to him on demand for cancellation or other disposition.

The said Master, in pursuance and by virtue of the decrees of foreclosure in favor of Knickerbocker Trust Company, complainant, made and entered by the said Circuit Courts of the United States in this advertisement of sale first mentioned, dated and entered on the same days and in the same places as the said decrees in favor of the New York Trust Company, complainant, WILL ALSO AT THE SAME TIME AND PLACE OFFER FOR SALE and in separate parcels all other lines of railway and additional mileage of the defendant Railway Company and other property of any kind and nature which has been constructed or acquired in whole or in part by means of said Consolidated Bonds or with the proceeds of the sale or disposition thereof; subject only to purchase money liens thereon as in said Consolidated Mortgage set forth, not including in said property, however, any property which is subject to the prior lien thereon of the said General Lien and Divisional First Mortgage (all of which said property subject to said General Lien and Divisional First Mortgage is to be sold under and pursuant to the preceding provisions of this notice), one hundred shares of the stock of the Toledo Southern Railway Company and ten hundred and fourteen shares of preferred stock of the Ann Arbor Railroad Company, being certain property of the said Detroit, Toledo and Ironton Railway Company included in the mortgage or deed of trust from that company to Knickerbocker Trust Company, complainant herein, dated May 2, 1905, to secure certain bonds designated as Consolidated Bonds. The Master will accept no bid for the said shares of stock from any bidder who shall not place in his hands or deposit with him at the time of making the bid, as a pledge that the bidder will make good his bid if accepted by the Court, the sum of twenty-five dollars per share in cash, certified cheque or certificate of deposit approved by the Master, which sum shall be forfeited in case the bidder if successful shall fail to make good his bid and comply with the terms of the said decrees, and any orders thereafter made as to future payments or otherwise, but which said sum shall be applied on the purchase price of the said stock in case of such compliance, or will be returned in case the said bid is not successful or the sale shall not be confirmed by the Court. The right of the Court is reserved to reject any bid and to resell the said stock, or any part thereof, upon the failure of the purchaser to comply with any order of the Court as to the payment of the purchase price or any part thereof, in cash or otherwise, as may be directed. If either the said properties, not, as aforesaid, subject to the General Lien and Divisional First Mortgage, or the said shares of stock shall be purchased by or on behalf of the holders of the said Consolidated Bonds, the remainder of the purchase price over and above the amount in cash required to be paid at the time of sale, may be paid either in cash or in receivers' certificates, or in claims payable under Article 3 of the aforesaid decree of The New York Trust Company, or in said Consolidated Bonds and overdue coupons thereon, at such proportionate value as the holders thereof will be entitled to receive thereon respectively on distribution of the proceeds of such sale, in case such purchase price were wholly paid in cash.

Any person proposing to purchase at the said sale either the said railway properties or the said stock, is referred to the said decrees in this notice specifically mentioned, and to the notice or advertisement of said sale heretofore published by the undersigned Special Master Commissioner upon the 15th, 22d, and 29th of August, and the 5th, 12th, and 19th of September, A. D. 1911, in the following newspapers, viz.: Detroit Free Press, Toledo Blade, and New York Times, for a more full and complete description of the property, rights, and franchises therein directed to be sold, which it is proposed to sell in accordance with the foregoing notice, and also for the terms and conditions upon which the sale of the said properties, rights, and franchises shall be made. The said three decrees in favor of The New York Trust Company, Complainant, are exact duplicates of each other, and the said three decrees in favor of Knickerbocker Trust Company, Complainant, are exact duplicates of each other, and all of the said decrees may be found filed and recorded in the offices of the Clerks of the United States Circuit Courts at Detroit, Michigan; Toledo, Ohio, and Columbus, Ohio, respectively, and which are subject to the inspection of the public generally. Certified copies of the said decrees will be in the possession of the said Special Master at the time and place of sale, and may be inspected by interested persons or bidders.

REAL JOAN OF ARC NO WINDOW SMASHER

In Eloquent Terms Father Vaughan Absolves Soldier Maid of Modern "Militancy."

CARDINAL AT HIS LECTURE

Inventor Marconi Presides and Also Comes in for Praise from Noted Jesuit Priest.

One of the most sumptuous ballrooms of the city was crowded last evening with men and women prominent in the world of society and achievement listening with rapt attention while a priest in his cloth of black stood on a raised platform and told the old story of the peasant girl of Domrémy, who could neither read nor write, and who had never ridden a horse, but who took up the sword and led the soldiers of France to victory. It was Father Bernard Vaughan, the English Jesuit, lecturing in the grand ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria on "Joan of Arc, the Matchless Soldier Maid."

Simply and eloquently he told the story from her birth at Domrémy and her childhood before the coming of the voices and the visions, through the times of her triumphs and her suffering to the great tragedy in the market place at Rouen.

"I love to talk of her," he confessed, "for she was unique in history, more marvelous than any Joseph before the Pharaohs, more marvelous than any Daniel before the lions, more marvelous than Cecilia. She was trained in God, and if she won one of the fifteen decisive battles of the world it was because God sometimes uses the weak to confound the strong, for a dab of clay in His hands could effect far more than the stones in David's sling."

It was when he was speaking of those Autumn months after the attack on Paris, when the wretchedness of the princeling on the throne of France and the jealousy of the soldiers and courtiers about him set Joan aside for the time and left her with nothing for her sword-hand to do, that Father Vaughan stepped forward through the centuries to the present in New York and in London.

Might Break Hearts, Not Windows.

"She found that there was no place for her," he said. "She found that she was not wanted. What would a lady here in New York do if she found that she was no longer wanted, that no longer she had the entree to society, that no longer she was a visiting card? If she were like Joan of Arc, she would visit the sad and the tempted, the troubled and the sick, for it was in such work that the soldier maid filled the months and grew before God in womanhood and sanctity."

"Many people have asked me if, were she living to-day, she would be a suffragette," said Father Vaughan, and there was a ripple in the audience as people leaned forward lest they miss his reply. "How can I tell? Send your wireless across the great spaces and ask her. There is a large number of learned, wise, and holy men and women who think women ought to have the ballot, and a great number equally wise and learned and good who think they ought not. I do not know what Joan of Arc would have thought. If she were here you could ask her, but if she were here, ladies and gentlemen, I think she might break our hearts, but I know she would not break our windows."

This was the only time that the question of suffrage was touched upon in the evening devoted to the Maid whose name is on the banners of so many enlisted in the suffrage cause, except for the brief and much applauded sentiment which Signor Marconi expressed in his introductory speech when he said that Joan of Arc's example "goes a long way to show that women can fill any position in the world."

Cardinal in Box, Marconi Presiding.

For, while the lecture of last evening was given under the patronage of Cardinal Farley, and while His Eminence attended, sitting in one of the boxes, it was Commendatore Guglielmo Marconi who acted as Vice Chairman and did the actual presiding. Before he launched into his lecture Father Vaughan paused to pay a tribute to Marconi, and more than once in the course of his story of the soldier maid he mentioned wireless.

"I must render my thanks to this man to whom God has given such wonderful powers, through whose wireless I read every morning the news from my distracted country, and who is going to San Francisco to set up his communication between that coast and Japan, wonderful communication always, but never more wonderful than the message sent when he, as a little child, lisped baby prayers that shot in no time across the infinite spaces to the great white throne."

Father Vaughan's voice was rich with scorn when it came time to speak of Cauchon, the priest, who figured in the last sad chapters of the Maid's life.

"What a terrible thing it is," he said, "when any section of the Church gets tied to the chariot wheels of the state! You see it everywhere. You see it in France. You read it in this history of Joan of Arc. It was not the Church that tried her. Do you tell me as a Catholic that Cauchon represented the Church! He represented the English policy. He was a slave and a miserable churchman."

Then he spoke of her rehabilitation by Pope Calixtus III., and her beatification by Pius X. "And soon," he said, "her name will be in the catalogue of the canonized."

England's Unforgivable Sin.

"One thing that I cannot forgive England was that they should have cried out that they were beaten by a devil-sent woman. How could my countrymen have been so stupid. It was not bad to have been beaten by a God-sent girl—but one sent by the devil. Oh, they were stupid, for any one sent by the devil we will beat together with the devil himself."

The lecture closed with the picture of the Maid, "white her clothing, white her face, white her hands, and white her soul," as she mounted the scaffold in the market place of Rouen, where, with thousands of people shouting about her, she stood alone, with none to comfort her as the flames from the fagots leaped up like wild things, their tongues licking her clothing and eating her flesh. And the word with which Father Vaughan finished was the word that was the cry, "her sweet, strong voice lifted through the canopy of smoke to heaven—the name of her Master."

"Blessed Joan of Arc," Father Vaughan wrote in the foreword printed in the programme, "has something to say both to man and woman, boy and girl, irrespective of their religion, their nationality, and their political outlook."

His Portrait as an Inspiration.

"Hang up my portrait of this matchless maid on the line in that gallery of living pictures which follows you withersoever you go and in and with which you move and have your being, and you will find that La Pucelle de Dieu will, in her own good time, deliver to you a message from God which shall inspire you to grade up your life to ambitions for creed and country loftier and holier than ever you dreamt in your wildest dream could have been yours. Having once gazed into the features of Jeanne d'Arc you never again can be what you were before you had met her and learned the story of her divine mission to the world in general and to France in particular."

Father Vaughan, at the outset, expressed his indebtedness to Nicholas F. Brady, who he said had had the burden of getting him an audience.

Among the box-holders and guests in that audience were Mr. and Mrs. William E. Iselin, Chevalier Fara Forni, Mr. and Mrs. George B. Cortelyou, Mr. and Mrs. N. F. Brady, Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Taft, Judge and Mrs. Martin J. Keogh, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Iselin, Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Achelis, J. D. Crimmins, Mr. and Mrs. George C. Haven, Loyall Farragut, J. Lynch Prendergast, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Gould Jennings, Mr. and Mrs. William Post, Mrs. Jose de Navarro, Mr. and Mrs. John Hall Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Lyttleton Fox, Dr. and Mrs. Martin Burke, Mrs. Anne Leary, Mrs. Mason Renshawe Jones, Mrs. G. Stanton Floyd-Jones, Mrs. Morgan J. O'Brien, Mrs. William J. Sheehan, Mrs. Charles J. Welsh, Mrs. James W. Wallace, Miss Elisabeth Marbury, Arthur Williams, Miss Anne Morgan, Mrs. Philip Lydig, Mrs. Hugh D. Grant, Mrs. Thomas E. Murray, James Butler, Mrs. Frank B. Garvin, Countess de Laugier Villiers, and Mrs. J. C. Brady.

The proceeds of the lecture will be devoted to Catholic charities which have Father Vaughan's approval.

Foot Post at Broadway and Manhattan St.—A 42d St. Complaint.

Police Commissioner Waldo has notified the Public Service Commission that at its request he has established a traffic footpost at the intersection of Broadway and Manhattan Street. This is a particularly dangerous point, as there is a heavy street car and automobile traffic there, much carting is done to the 129th Street wharves, and the cars in turning in and out of Manhattan Street from Broadway still further complicate conditions.

Another point at which the street traffic conditions have caused many complaints is to the south of the Times Building in Forty-second Street. Here, recently, Justice Hotchkiss of the Supreme Court had a narrow escape in an accident, and the running of the street cars is particularly confusing. The block between Seventh Avenue and Broadway is very short, and it is always doubtful whether a street car will or will not stop there. It is the natural point for them to halt for the convenience of Subway passengers, persons wishing to enter the Times Building or to transfer up or down Broadway, and in many cases they do come to a stand.

But every now and then, just as some-one is about to get on or off a car, they keep right on and across Broadway, if going east, or Seventh Avenue, if going west, at a fair rate of speed. To passengers who are awaiting them at their usual halting place this is annoying, and to pedestrians who rely on their coming to a halt it is very dangerous.

At the office of the Public Service Commission it was stated that the question of this corner had been considered recently, but it was explained by the Third Avenue Railway Company that they were powerless in the matter, as the police regulations provided that when the crossing over Broadway and Seventh Avenue was clear the cars must go across at once, without a halt.

ALSOP TRANSFERS PROPERTY

Real Estate of 75-Year-Old Bridegroom Goes to Sons.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., April 1.—Confirmation of the reported estrangement between Edward B. Alsop, the 75-year-old retired steel manufacturer, and his 19-year-old bride, formerly Miss Effie Pope Hill of Washington, Ga., was contained apparently in a deed filed here to-day by Mr. Alsop, transferring practically all his local property, valued at more than $3,000,000, to his sons, Harold P. and Edward H. Alsop.

Credence is given this view of the action by reason of the fact that it is specifically stipulated that the young bride shall not share in any of the proceeds from this part of her husband's estate either during his life or after his death.

The deed provides for a trust, Mr. Alsop to draw the rents and all profits during his life. The property includes holdings in the business section of the city, a plot of five acres in the Shady Side district, and another of fourteen acres in the Squirrel Hill residential section.

The marriage of Mr. Alsop and Miss Hill was the surprise romance of the season to Pittsburgh, New York and Washington society. Mrs. Hill, upon hearing the early rumors of the engagement opposed the match.

"The wedding," the young bride explained after the ceremony, "was to have been held March 13, but we changed it because I did not want to be married on a 'hoodoo' day."

Recently, after a forty-five day honeymoon, the Alsops returned home and separated immediately, the bride going to a Connecticut sanitarium and her husband supposedly coming to Pittsburgh. It was variously reported that Mrs. Alsop's mother had declared and denied that her daughter never would rejoin her husband.

BUSINESS TAKES TWO HOMES

Work and Kernochan Houses Give Way to a Twenty-Story Loft.

The home of the late Frank Work, at 13 East Twenty-sixth Street, facing Madison Square, between Fifth and Madison Avenues, was sold yesterday with the adjoining house at 11 East Twenty-sixth Street, owned by J. Frederic Kernochan. Early in May both houses will be torn down for a twenty-story loft building. Mr. Work, who died there in March, one year ago, resisted all efforts of business to drive him from the home which he had occupied for many years. Mrs. Burke-Roche, Mr. Work's daughter, lived there until recently.

With the demolition of these two fine residences only one of the early dwellings in that block will be left—the old Benjamin H. Field house at 21 East Twenty-sixth Street. The Work and Kernochan houses, with abutting property in the rear, running through to Twenty-seventh Street, were sold by M. & L. Hess to the Flemish Realty Company, who will erect the new building.

ASK WHEELER BILL VETO.

Bureau of Municipal Research Tells Dix It Will Impair Milk Supply.

The following telegram in regard to the Wheeler bill was sent to Gov. Dix yesterday by the Bureau of Municipal Research:

"The children of New York State are the direct beneficiaries of past steps taken by State and local authorities to improve and protect the milk supply. The children will be the victims of the Wheeler bill if approved by you. If it becomes law dealers may 'short value' consumers with impunity unless prevented by local authorities, not always equipped or competent to take vigorous action. This sudden attempt to emasculate the law by removing the penal clause is the best proof that the penal clause should stay. The milk supply is State-wide and should be governed by State and not local regulations.

"We respectfully urge that you veto the Wheeler bill as vicious, against the interest of the people of the State, and of benefit only to the dealers who will profit at the expense of all."

Arnold Constable Not to Move.

Arnold, Constable & Co., in a statement issued yesterday, deny a rumor that the concern is looking for premises in upper Fifth Avenue, and another report that it contemplates retiring from business within a short period either by liquidation or sale.

SHUSTER IS ENGAGED BY NATIONAL CITY CO.

To Represent the Interests of the Bank's Stockholders in South America.

HAS A ROVING COMMISSION

Concern Which Employs Him Was Formed as a Holding Company of the National's Foreign Securities.

W. Morgan Shuster, former Treasurer General of Persia, has been chosen by the National City Bank interests to represent them in South America. The bank is not permitted to do business outside the country, but the National City Company, formed last year by stockholders in the bank to handle such business as conflicted with the National charter, has already invaded the South American field. This company has engaged Mr. Shuster.

News of Mr. Shuster's appointment came last night from Washington and was confirmed here by President Vanderlip of the National City Bank. He said that Mr. Shuster would go to South America in May, and meanwhile would find enough to keep him busy here and in Washington. He has had a broad training in financial matters in the Government service, but is less familiar with banking and will need a month to get in touch with the company's policies.

Mr. Vanderlip explained that the company had already had a good deal of South American business, having participated in Government loans in the Argentine Republic and Costa Rica, a municipal loan in Lima, Peru, and large loans in Brazil. Mr. Shuster will have a roving commission which will give him the continent as his field.

The company was formed last Summer to take over stocks owned by interests identified with the bank, and the bank's stockholders received the new concern's stock in the shape of a bonus. Like practically all of the other large National banks, these securities, which the bank is not allowed to hold under its National charter, had been accumulating in friendly hands and were regarded as the property of the stockholders of the bank, though not legally owned by them. Among the securities taken over were blocks of bank stocks, and the formation of this holding company by the largest bank in the United States, and one long regarded as synonymous with the "money power," brought attention from Congress.

Investigation developed the fact that there were some 300 similar holding companies allied with National banks all over the country, and that the National City Bank had been many years behind some of its largest rivals in adopting the device. President Taft decided after hearing opinions of the Controller of the Currency and the Attorney General that there was no law prohibiting such holding companies. Meanwhile the National City Company had disarmed the most pointed criticism by selling out its holdings of bank stocks.

The South American field until a year or so ago was almost untouched by American bankers, and most of the development in the southern republics was left to English and Canadian capital. About five years ago Wall Street capital began to flow into Andean railway enterprises. The National City Company plans to do business not only in South America but all over the world.

W. Morgan Shuster had attained an enviable reputation in Government circles before he became famous as the man whose dismissal by Persia England and Russia demanded because he had done too well his work of setting the nation on its feet financially, thereby endangering their influence. He is 35 years old. He had started to study law when he took a stenographer's position with the Peace Commission to Cuba. When the commission left the island he stayed as right-hand man to the Auditor, having learned Spanish, and was soon promoted to be Collector of Cuban Customs under the protectorate.

His work in cleaning up the moss-grown Cuban service brought him to the attention of Secretary Root and in 1901, when he was only 24, he was sent to the Philippines to take charge of the customs at Manila. He had the task of revising the Philippine tariff and reorganizing the Customs Service throughout the archipelago. After five years of this work he was promoted by Governor General Taft to the post of Secretary of Public Instruction, and was also made a member of the Philippine Commission. In 1909 he resigned and returned to Washington to finish his law course. He was recommended to Persia by President Taft and Secretary Knox.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—W. Morgan Shuster, who is at his home in this city, said to-night that he might not start for South America for two months.

"I shall be engaged in the interval in arranging all details of the work and preparing my itinerary," he said. "As to how the different conditions affecting loans in South America will be dealt with I could not possibly speak now."

MRS. NICODEMUS'S STORY.

Woman on Trial for Killing Husband Says He Mistreated Her.

Mrs. Genevieve Nicodemus, who shot and killed her husband on Oct. 8, related all the facts of her married life to Judge Rosalsky and a jury in General Sessions yesterday, in her last effort for acquittal.

She told how she met Nicodemus while walking with some little children whose mother was ill, how he had made love to her, and how her father had fought against their marriage. She said that she gave her husband all of her earnings, and he complained that she did not make enough to support him.

The witness told how she obtained a position in a moving-picture show, where she worked for $6 a week, while her husband was in the country, sending her numerous letters asking why she did not send him any money and describing the good times he was having.

The trial will be continued to-day, when Mrs. Nicodemus will tell of the actual shooting.

LONG FIGHT OVER WILL ENDS.

Robert H. Thompson's Widow and His Family Reach Agreement.

After twenty-two months of litigation in the Brooklyn courts, the contest over the $2,000,000 estate of Robert H. Thompson, the paper manufacturer, was settled yesterday amicably by Mrs. Maybelle Ames Thompson, whom he married four months before he died, and the members of his family.

Mr. Thompson was 80 years old when he married Miss Maybelle Ames, who was his stenographer in his Boston office. They were married in February, 1910. He died in June of the same year. She is 32 years old. It was found after his death that he had made a will, dated June 19, 1908, leaving all his property to his son, J. Linton Thompson, and his two grandchildren, Robert H. Thompson, Jr., and Mrs. Marion T. Funk. The testator's widow was ignored.

She began proceedings to have the will declared invalid, as it was alleged that the testator made it as a result of undue influence over him by Mrs. Marion T. Funk. During the trial "spook" letters were read purporting to have come from "Muzzie," the first Mrs. Thompson, from the spirit world. Surrogate Ketcham declared the will void. Appellate Division reversed Surrogate Ketcham and ordered a trial before the Supreme Court and a jury, which rendered a verdict in favor of Mrs. Thompson, but Justice Garretson later set aside the verdict. The dispute was about to go to the Appellate Division again. It could not be learned yesterday what the settlement was.

LIEBLER & CO. SUE SHUBERT.

Enter a Demand for One-Half the Profits from "The Blue Bird."

Theodore A. Liebler and George C. Tyler, composing the firm of Liebler & Co., began suit yesterday in the Supreme Court against Lee Shubert, alleging that Shubert had failed to turn over to them their share of the profits of "The Blue Bird," in which the plaintiffs say they have a half interest.

According to the papers of the plaintiff the agreement to produce "The Blue Bird" was entered into on Oct. 17, 1910. By the provisions of this agreement Liebler & Co. were to procure the company and rehearse the play and Shubert was to do the booking and look after the finance. Expenses and profits were to be shared equally, according to the complainants' papers and this agreement had not been kept. Max D. Josephson of 115 Broadway is attorney for Liebler & Co.

Mr. Shubert had nothing to say about the suit last night.

RECEIVER FOR ARKANSAS LINE

Missouri and North Arkansas Had Defaulted on Interest.

Special to The New York Times.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 1.—The Missouri & North Arkansas Railroad, owned principally by St. Louis capitalists and Gen. Powell Clayton, was placed in the hands of receivers by Federal Judge Triber this evening. The application was filed by the St. Louis Union Trust Company, holder of $600,000 of the railroad bonds. John Scullin of St. Louis, one of the principal stockholders of the company, was present in court, and the attorneys stated that the proceedings were by consent of all parties interested.

Judge Triber appointed W. S. Holt of Little Rock, George Sands of Eureka Springs, and Jesse McDonald of Joplin, Mo., receivers. Each filed a bond of $25,000. Mr. Sands was Vice President and General Manager of the road.

The receivership proceedings were not unexpected, as the company has defaulted several times on interest.
